Victory for De Gasperi Virtually Sure in Italy; Red Reaction Awaited

Control of Senate Certain; Winning Trend Maintained In Chamber Race

Rome (Wednesday) April 21 (NYHT).—Nearly complete returns in Italy's critical parliamentary elections virtually guaranteed this morning that the country will be governed by anti-Communists and anti-Fascists for the next five years.

Only war or revolution is likely to change the picture, and the government indicated it considers the possibility of a revolution sharply reduced as the result of the heavy defeat the Communists have suffered at the polls.

Returns from three fourths of Italy's 41,647 polling places gives the Communists only 32.1 per cent in the new Chamber of Deputies, a drop of 7.7 percentage points compared with the last previous national election in June, 1946.

Senate Returns Nearly Complete

Nearly final returns for the Senate, which were tabulated earlier yesterday, gave the Communists and their allies only 30 per cent in that body.

The Christian Democratic (Catholic) Party won the greatest victory in its career and guaranteed that it will be the nation's dominant political force at least until 1953. Returns from 31,794 polling places in the Chamber balloting gave the party 9,554,614 votes out of 19,694,912, or 48.5 per cent. Nearly final results for the Senate gave the Christian Democrats 47.6 per cent of the votes.

Associates of Premier Alcide de Gasperi said it is virtually certain that the country's new government wil consist of an alliance between the Catholic Party and the Right-wing Socialists headed by Giuseppi Saragat, a coalition similar to the one which is now in office. Such a government would be based on opposition to Communism and co-operation with the United States and the European Recovery Program. Both Communists, and neo-Fascists will be excluded, government sources said.

To Exclude Communists

The Associated Press quoted Saragat as saying, "The Communists will not be admitted to Italy's new government." The United Press similarly quoted De Gasperi as declaring he would exclude all extreme Leftists from his new cabinet.—Editor's note.]

Returns from the Chamber of Deputies at the three-quarter mark and nearly final results in the Senate baloting gave Saragat's anti-Communist Socialist Workers' Party (P. S. L. I.) 10.2 per cent, a gain of 3.7 per cent over what they have had in the past.

The results indicated that Saragat's party has made great inroads into Communist strength. Saragat wants socialistic reforms, but inside the western European and American part of the world. At the three-quarter mark, the counting of votes for the lower house gave him 1,447,714 votes, or 7.4 per cent. Undoubtedly, almost every one of these voters were among communism's folowers two years ago.

The conservative National Bloc received 11 per cent of the votes for the Senate and 3.1 per cent of

Third Raid Reported On Ammunition Dump

Milan, Italy, April 20 (AP).—The second armed raid in three nights on an army ammunition dump was reported today by a reliable police official.

The latest raid, in which a sergeant major was injured, occurred early today near San Rocco, 55 miles from Milan in the strong Communist area of northern Italy. The official said sentries opened fire and the raiders fled.

Hoffman Gives Estimates

Britain to Get Biggest Slice Of First Year's ERP Total

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Britain will need the lion's share of American help during the first year of the European Recovery Program, Administrator Paul Hoffman told a tough and economy-minded House Appropriations Subcommittee yesterday.

Hoffman put the British share tentatively at $1,324,000,000, which is almost exactly a quarter of the $5,300,000,000 program already authorized by Congress for 16 nations and western Germany.

He estimated the probable French share at $1,130,000,000, the Italian at $703,600,000 and the Dutch at $599,600,000. As for western Germany, he placed the total for the three zones and the Saar at 549 million dollars, not including funds still to be sought by the Army to prevent "disease and unrest" in the combined Anglo-American zones.

The new administrator submitted his country-by-country breakdown at the start of a long and probably difficult effort to get funds for the recovery program.

Both Houses have already authorized the program by four-to-one votes, but almost all the funds still have to be appropriated except for a billion dollars to be made available by the sale of notes to the Treasury.

Chairman John Tabor (R., N. Y.) has estimated that he will not have a bill ready before May 10. In the meantime Hoffman and his new organization are operating on a billion dollars advanced by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The figures he submitted yesterday were revisions, after thorough checking, of a tentative country-by-country estimate issued by the State Department during earlier congressional hearings. In some cases Hoffman estimated that the recipient countries would need less from the United States than they could pay for from their own resources.

He told the subcommittee that Portugal and Switzerland would not get a penny of financial help from the United States, since they were well able to pay cash for whatever they might need from the Western Hemisphere.

Some of his estimates for the smaller countries, like the proposed $32,800,000 of American help for Norway, seemed sure to produce

Members of the Daughters of the American Revolution yesterday resolved to dedicates themselves "earnestly to the business of recognizing and exposing communism wherever it is seeking to entrench itself or has already done so."

A resolution to this effect was adopted by the Fifty-seventh Continental Congress in its morning session at Constitution Hall. Delegates then adjourned for luncheon and afternoon meetings.

Last night they attended the gala President-general's reception in Constitution Hall. Delegates filed by President General Mrs. Roscoe C. O'Byrne and other high officers. The Pages Ball followed at the Mayflower Hotel.

U. S. Safety Threatened

Inadopting the anti-Communist resolution by unanimous acclaim, delegates declared "the safety of the United States is now gravely threatened by the aggressive presence of an ideology completely contrary to the principles of freedom under law, private enterprise, and social justice upon which this nation was founded and by means of which it has endured with phenomenal developments and security."

The Daughters charged Communism is thmreatening to destroy our form of government through the dissemination of false and dangerous doctrines, subtly and persistently infiltrated into many groups, subtly and persistently in-

U. S. Offers To Send Force To Palestine

Trusteeship Proposal Gets Cold Shoulder From Britain, Russia

Lake Success, April 20 (AP).—The United States today made a carefully hedged offer of American troops to support a United Nations Palestine trusteeship.

Russia and Britain promptly turned thumbs down but for different reasons.

Warren R. Austin, chief United States delegate to the second special U. N. Assembly on Palestine, proposed a trusteeship scheme for the Holy Land in a speech to the Assembly's 58-nation Political Committee. He said the United States would chip in troops to back it up if other selected nations would help with their soldiers.

The statement had the evident approval of President Truman. Authoritative sources said it could be assumed that talks had been held with United States Senate and House members.

A British delegation spokesman declined for his country any share in a trusteeship army. He said Britain would not have any troops or naval units available for any Palestine duty after August 1. That is the date the British have decided on for the final evacuation of the Holy Land.

The second turn-down came from Russia, which was not asked to contribute soldiers.

Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet deputy foreign minister, declared Russia still wanted to carry out the partition scheme approved last fall by the regular Assembly. He declared he would vote against the new American proposals for a U. N. trusteeship.

The United States and Russia teamed last fall to put partition through the Assembly. Gromyko's speech today was the final and formal break in that partnership in the Assembly.

Among 'Stone Age' Natives

5 D. C. Scientists Reported Marooned on Primitive Isle

Five Greater Washington scientists yesterday were reported marooned on Primitive Groote Eylandt (Great Island)—among natives with a Stone Age culture—off the north central coast of Australia.

A terse dispatch to the Australian Embassy here reported that the expedition, which includes 10 Australian scientists, two of them women, have been isolated by storms, torrential rains and floods.

The Washington area men are Frank M. Setzler, anthropologist and deputy party leader, 4219 49th st. nw.; Herbert G. Deignan, ornithologist, 2236 Decatur pl. nw.; Dr. Robert Miller, ichthyologist, 2911 S. Dinwiddie st., Fairlington, Va.; Dr. David Johnson, mammalogist, 4604 Calvert rd., College Park, Md., and Howell Walker, 2451 P st. nw.

Walker is a staff writer and photographer for the National Geographic Society. The other four are Smithsonian Institution scientists.

During a recent, brief letup in the tropical heavy weather, reportedly the worst in history of the Australian Northern Territory, an RAAF plane managed to drop emergency supplies to the expedition.

The remote island, about which little is known, is about 25 miles wide, 42 miles long and about 25 miles distant from the nearest Australian mainland—a hump of uncharted land known as Arnhem Land, hitherto unmapped and unexplored.

Purpose of the expedition sponsored by the National Geographic, Smithsonian Institution and Commonwealth of Australia is to study the aborigines of Arnhem Land, who probably also dwell on the island.

These natives are said to be so primitive they are on a cultural par with the Stone Age of 10,000 to 15,000 years ago. They have not yet developed the bow and arrow, relying on wooden and stone spears and sticks, to hunt, fish and fight.

Bill Proposes 3 Million in U. S. Forces

Draft Revisions Filed in House; Regulars' Strength Increased 610,000

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

A revised draft bill, designed to boost America's regular armed services, National Guard and organized reserves to a strength of more than three million men, was formally introduced in the House yesterday.

Chairman Walter G. Andrews (R., N. Y.), of the House Armed Services Committee put in the measure calling for the induction of men aged 19 through 25 for two years in uniform.

Earlier, Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.) came forward with a new move in the legislative battle over national security. Branding the armed services unification act as a "flop," he introduced legislation calling for an outright merger of the forces.

2 Important Revisions

Morse and other members of the Senate Armed Services Committee have been sharply critical of the disagreement of Army, Navy and Air Force chiefs over the defense program.

Two major changes are contained in Andrews' new draft bill. One would allow new top strengths for the Regular forces totaling 2,006,000 officers and men. This is about 610,000 more than the current number and some 360,000 above what was proposed by Defense Secretary James Forrestal.

The other new feature removes manpower ceilings from the National Guard and organized drilling units of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force Reserves. And—most important—it would permit 18-year-old youths to enlist in one of these organizations and be exempt from the draft as long as it is in existence and vacancies exist.

Officials Agree on Proviso

Members of the House committee said the latter proviso has been one of the most perplexing features of the bill. It has been changed several times. The present solution, however, has been agreed to by Army, Navy and Air Force personnel chiefs, National Guard and Reserve leaders, and committee experts and is expected to stand, it was said. It would:

1. Permit men of draft age to join the Guard or an organized reserve unit holding regular paid drills and be exempt from the draft if they enroll before the bill becomes law.

2. The Guard and Reserves would be a "haven" against the draft only to the extent that vacancies exist. All of the reserve components are below their authorized strengths, which are partially determined by funds available.

3. Another section provides a further source of manpower for the Guard and Reserves—besides veterans and older men. After the draft gets under way, youths could enroll in the Guard or drilling Reserve unit, if vacancies existed, up to the time they were 18 years and 6 months old and be exempt from induction.

4. The annual appropriation bills would fix the size of the National Guard, Organized Naval Reserve

Lewis Urges All Miners Back As 150,000 More Quit Work; Two Fines Total $1,420,000

Union Chieftain Assessed $20,000; Additional Fines May Be Levied

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Sentenced yesterday to pay fines totalling $1,420,000, John L. Lewis and his coal miners' union face the possibility of even heavier fines to come.

Federal Justice T. Alan Goldsborough, who levied the fines for the offense of criminal contempt of court, said he will decide on Friday whether to set a further penalty for civil contempt.

If he does, it will probably be in a much larger amount. But it will be "contingent"—to be exacted only if the miners refuse to go back to work.

Yesterday's fines—$20,000 against Lewis and $1,400,000 against the union—are double penalties for second offenders. In December, 1946, Goldsborough set fines of $10,000 against Lewis and $3,500,000 (later remitted to $700,000) against the union. The offense, then as now, was for failure to heed a court order to stop a coal strike.

Sentence Passed

On Monday, Goldsborough found Lewis and the union guilty of contempt, in refusing to obey a restraining order of the court during the period April 5-12. Yesterday, passing sentence, he said his own "individual judgment" would be to give Lewis a jail term.

But, he said, the Department of Justice "has access to reasons for judicial action in a case of this character" which he did not. Therefore, he would accept the department's recommendation. This did not include a jail sentence, but only the fines doubled from the 1946 amounts.

Promising on Monday that "expediency" would play no part in determining the punishment, Goldsborough nevertheless observed yesterday that "we have to accommodate ourselves to circumstances." He added:

"The welfare and the health and safety and the orderly way of life of 143 million people are involved, as well as the national prestige in foreign countries which must be sustained in view of the present international situation."

Fines a Punishment

The fines for the offense of criminal contempt are considered as a form of punishment for what was done. A further penalty for civil contempt would be, theoretically, a payment to reimburse persons injured by the offense.

Actually, however, it will be in the nature of a "prod" to the miners.

It is expected that if a great proportion of them are not working by Friday, Goldsborough will decree a large fine. He would then probably set a date when the defendants must return to court and satisfy him that they have complied with the court order—that is, that the men have gone back to work.

If so, the fine would be abated. If not, a certain amount would be

Walter Reuther Shot, Condition Critical

Detroit, April 20 (U.P.).—Walter P. Reuther, president of the CIO United Auto Workers, was shot tonight by an unidentified gunman who fired through a window in his home, his wife reported to police.

Mrs. Reuther told the United Press "Walter is seriously hurt."

Police said Reuther was hit by a shotgun blast fired through the rear window of his home while he was standing in the kitchen.

They said his right arm "was nearly torn off by the blast."

Police said Reuther was rushed to Grace Hospital in "critical condition."

They said they thought the dynamic union leader would lose his arm.

Police said Reuther's assailant got out of a new red car and fired the shot.

Police said the assailant made a "clean getaway" in the car.

Reuther, 40 and fiery, was elected vice president of the big auto union in 1942 and in 1946 succeeded R. J. Thomas as president.

At last November's UAW convention in Atlantic City, he won a sweeping victory that carried him back into office and swept out a left-wing faction that he had battled continuously since he started union activities.

260,000 Now Idle But Mine Area Reports Indicate Short Walkout

More than 150,000 miners began a new walkout yesterday, but John L. Lewis promptly asked them to return to their jobs at once.

He sent a telegram to district presidents of the miners' union, saying, "I do hope you will convey to each member my wish that they immediately return to work."

This made it clear that the new stoppage, which flared like wildfire as a protest to the contempt fines imposed on Lewis and the union yesterday, was a spontaneous protest of the rank-and-file members.

Walkout May Be Short

Thus there was strong hope that the walkout would be only a short one. For the United Mine Workers is a remarkably well-disciplined union and Lewis' every "wish" is exceedingly close to law.

Lewis acted under the threat of a fine even heavier than the one he got yesterday if the miners stayed away from work. Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough planned to consider on Friday setting a further fine for civil contempt.

It would be applied, presumably, only if the miners refused to obey a court order to stop the strike. It would be remitted, or never decreed at all, if they were back on the job.

But before Lewis' telegram was received by various regional officers last evening, thousands of men had trooped out. Added to more than 100,000 who never returned from the strike that began March 15, this meant that some 260,000, out of a total of 400,000 miners were away from the collieries.

Resentment Runs High

Resentment and anger among the miners was high, but there were signs that they had expected something worse—a jail sentence for Lewis.

By nightfall, at least three district presidents had appealed to the men to return to work. They were in the Illinois, Oklahoma-Arkansas and West Virginia areas.

Associated Press and United Press reports from coal mining areas gave this picture as of last night:

Possibility of a spreading work stoppage was voiced by David Fowler, president of UMW, District 21, in Kansas City.

Fowler termed the fines "unjust" and said they would cost the Government "ten times more in production than it has suffered to date."

He added:

"The men cannot risk their lives to dig coal when they know the Government is against them. I doubt if anyone can influence them now."

However, a UMW representative in the Pittsburgh fields expressed relief that the union leader had escaped with just a fine.

"That (the fine) wasn't so bad," the official said. "A jail sentence would have been bad. All the miners would have gone out then and that's for sure."

U. S. Printing Free, Economy Cook Book

Marks Departure From High-Pressure Food-Saving Drive

By Tom Twitty

Government printing presses, working on 24 hour shifts, are grinding out the first one million copies of a Government cookbook which will be offered free to every family in the United States, it was learned today.

The ambitious cookbook project will be the king-pin in a brand-new voluntary food conservation program replacing the not-so-successful high pressure campaign which in recent months has involved meatless, eggless and poultryless days.

Full details of the new conservation program, designed to save grain for shipment to a hungry Europe threatened by communism, will be announced some time this week, perhaps by the White House itself, it was learned.

Instead of driving, exhorting and shaming the public to conserve foods such as top-grade meats, the cookbook is designed to lure the public into doing what the Government wants done—for example, substituting "potato-burgers" for choice T'bones.

The 48-page book is entitled "Money-Saving Main Dishes" and contains about 150 tested recipes for main dishes especially prepared by the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture.

The book runs the gamut of main dishes from "Scotch meat patties," through "eggaroni" to "roast turkey quarter." A quarter turkey can be just as tasty as a whole one, the book asserts, and gives directions.

Missing from the book are directions on how to handle beef roasts, frying chickens, broilers and steaks which the Government hopes people can forget about for a while.

Atomic Energy Commission Renominated

Truman Calls Back List, Resubmits It After Seeing Senator

The White House yesterday renominated the five members of the Atomic Energy Commission, after having earlier recalled their names.

No explanation was given for the recall and later nominations. However, the final action was taken just after President Truman had a visit from Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) chairman of the Senate Atomic Energy Commission.

Hickenlooper's committee will consider the names, and recommend to the Senate whether or not to confirm them. Hickenlooped declined to tell reporters what his attitude toward confirmation would be. He is a close friend of one of the nominees, William W. Waymack, named for a two-year term. Waymack formerly was editor of the Des Moines Register and Tribune, leading newspaper in Hickenlooper's Setate.

Apparently influencing the sudden White House decision to withdraw the names early in the day was a statement by Chairman Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) of the Senate Republican Policy Committee.

Taft reported his committee had engaged in a general discussion of impending presidential appointments and what action the Republican majority in the Senate might take.

"They don't want to make any rule," Taft said, "but the inclination is to slow down."

The Republican attitude would indicate the GOP members hope to hold up major appointments until after election, when in case of a Republican victory the new chief executive would name them. If such inaction resulted, Mr. Truman can make recess appointments good until Congress meets next year.

In Event of 'Unusual Peril'

District Commissioners Ask Wide Powers in Emergencies

The District Commissioners yesterday asked Congress for emergency powers broader than those they held during the war.

A draft of the proposed measure sent to Senate and House leaders not only seeks a law to supplant the still-effective remnants of the Blackout Act of 1941 but regulations to be used in event of "unusual peril."

The brownout clause of the 1941 wartime measure, invoked twice during 1946 coal strikes, expires June 30.

These emergency moves—one for 26 days in May and 15 days in November-December—are mentioned specifically and high in the letter which accompanied the suggested legislation.

To justify a state of emergency, the letter said, the Commissioners must find "that the health or safety of persons or the safety of property in the District may be in jeopardy by reason of unusual peril."

No specific mention was made of a possible coal shortage in the wake of yesterday's court action against John L. Lewis and his miners, but fuel shortages occupied a prominent and repetitious place in the covering letter and the proposed law.

"Some recent events in the District have indicated the need for legislation of this character," the letter said. "It has been necessary on two occasions for the Commissioners to order brownouts. These actions were made necessary by the extremely short supply of coal." It also pointed to last winter's fuel oil shortage.

"It is not inconceivable that with more severe conditions, greater consumption and more difficult problems in the production and distribution systems than have prevailed this winter, it might become necessary to impose governmental restrictions on the use of fuel oil."

Defining "unusual peril," the measure lists:

Flood, earthquake, extraordinary storms . . . widespread disease or contagion, shortage in supplies, riots, sabotage or insurrection.

To meet these possibilities, the Commissioners include these needs:

1. Power to appoint special police without pay.

2. To accept voluntary service during an emergency.

3. To compel evacuation of any part of the District.

4. To borrow money to acquire and distribute food, fuel and supplies to prevent and alleviate suffering.

5. To take and pay just compensation for any private property, personal or real, which may be needed to carry out the bill.

Accused District Dairy Drops Combine as Sole Milk Source

Wakefield Dairy is purchasing milk from sources other than the Maryland & Virginia Milk Producers Association, The Washington Post learned yesterday.

Some other milk distributors indicated they might also withdraw from purchasing agreements with the association.

The move is regarded as significant in view of the fact that the Wakefield Dairy is one of seven area dairies accused in a grand jury indictment of conspiring with the producers' association to fix prices and restrain trade.

One of the charges in the indictment, returned March 8, is that the defendant dairies agreed to purchase their entire requirements of milk from the association, and to refrain from the purchase of milk from other sources.

While reluctant to discuss the move, John F. Hillyard, attorney for Wakefield Dairy, which is operated by Simpson Bros., Inc., said yesterday "we have made arrangements to purchase milk from other sources."

The attorney said the company is purchasing "at least some milk" on the open market.

Bruce B. Derrick, secretary treasurer of the Milk Producers Association, would make no comment on Wakefield's milk purchases.

Spokesmen for other companies involved in the indictment said they were still purchasing milk from the association.

However, a few dairy officials gave signs of considering other sources of supply.

The other defendants in the anti-trust case, besides Wakefield, the association and Derrick as an individual, are Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase Dairy Co., Thompson's Dairy, Inc., Richfield Dairy, Inc., Safeway Stores, Inc.'s Lucerne Milk Co., Alexandria Dairy Products Co., Inc., and Harvey Dairy, Inc.

All have pleaded not guilty. The trial is set for May 8.

N. Y. Subway Fare Boosted to Dime Effective July 1

New York, April 20 (AP).—Mayor William O'Dwyer tonight approved a 10-cent subway fare and a 7-cent surface vehicle charge, signalling the end of New York's historic nickel fare. He said the new rates would go into effect July 1.

O'Dwyer's action broke all political precedents. The fare has long been a debated issue, but previous attempts to alter it have in the end been rejected. The 44-year-old subway system has had a nickel fare from the beginning.

The mayor said his decision was based on recommendations of the board of transportation, which pointed to mounting operating deficits on the transit system.

A prime factor in recent moves to boost the fare was the clamor of the city's 42,000 transit workers for pay increases. Operators of subway trains and surface vehicles now get $1.20 an hour. They are asking $1.50.

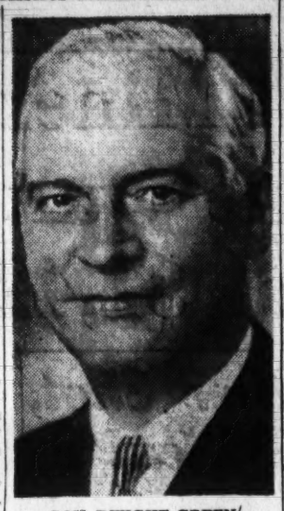
Gov. Green as Temporary GOP Chairman Called Mirror of Publisher McCormick

The naming of Gov. Dwight H. Green of Illinois as temporary chairman and keynoter of the Republican national convention to be held in June probably was a sour dose to swallow for the liberal side of the GOP camp.



GOV. DWIGHT GREEN/
Keynoter from Illinois

It is generally agreed that Green has been a good Governor since his entrance into the executive mansion at Springfield, Ill., in 1941. It is just as generally agreed by objective newsmen that Green mirrors the political theories of Chicago Tribune Publisher Robert R. McCormick.

One reporter who has covered the political scene for many years put it in these words:

"Colonel McCormick's whim is Green's law—but the Governor tries to give the taxpayers a run for their money."

If this is so, Green can hardly be expected to hold the same internationalist views as such prominent Republican prospects as Stassen, Dewey and Vandenberg.

Colonel McCormick has put the weight of the Chicago Tribune behind Senator Taft and political observers say that Taft will be Green's choice too.

Called Pete by Intimates

Green has been accused of being a prewar isolationist, as has Colonel McCormick and the Chicago Tribune.

Actually, the Governor of Illinois has only ventured daintily into the field of foreign affairs, but his all-out support of such staunch isolationists as Senator Brooks of Illinois (who also has the support of McMormick's Tribune) has branded him.

Known as Pete to intimates, the Illinois Governor was born January 9, 1897, in Ligonier, Ind.

Now 51, he gained prominence in 1927 when, as a special United States attorney, he prosecuted the notorious gangster Al Capone and won a conviction on tax fraud charges.

Green served three years—from 1932 to 1935—as United States attorney for the northern district of Illinois.

Republicans recalled him from private life to campaign for mayor of Chicago against the powerfully entrenched Kelly-Nash Democratic machine in 1939.

Lost But Made Good Showing

Green lost to the incumbent Mayor Edward J. Kelly, but he made a commendable showing.

In the 1940 election, Green was the Republican candidate for governor. Although President Roosevelt captured the state, Green carried all but one candidate on the state GOP ticket to victory. He became the state's first Republican governor since 1932. Green won reelection in 1944.

Green was a student at Wabash College when World War I enveloped this country. He left college, joined the army and became a flying instructor with the rank of lieutenant.

After the war he studied law at the University of Chicago and was admitted to the bar in 1922. In 1926 he came to Washington as a special internal revenue attorney, his first public post.

The Illinois governor is handsome, married, has two daughters, ages 16 and 20, and likes college football.

Choice of Green as Keynoter Has GOP Liberals Disturbed

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Nobody was talking for the record, but Republicans who think of themselves as "liberals" were puzzled and disturbed yesterday by the selection of Gov. Dwight H. Green of Illinois as the GOP keynoter this year.

Governor Green's speech at the Republican national convention in Philadelphia on June 21 will set the tone for his party's 1948 campaign.

The objection to Green among the GOP liberals, of course, is his close association with Col. Robert M. McCormick, whose Chicago Tribune has vehemently opposed the bi-partisan foreign policy of recent years.

Three views were expressed on Capitol Hill in the talk about Green's selection:

1. That it was a victory for the forces of Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio.

2. That it seemed to confirm reports that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey would like to have Green as his running mate—or at least in his Cabinet—if he himself should get the GOP presidential nomination and win in November.

3. That it really wasn't very important since Governor Green, like any keynoter, will be expected to make a middle-of-the-road speech that won't give oxense to any element of the Republican Party.

The expectation has been that Governor Green would be Illinois' favorite-son candidate at Philadelphia.

Ordinarily, a presidential candidate is not chosen for the keynoter's role. Bearing this in mind, some Republicans voiced the suspicion that Green eventually might joint other Illinois leaders and plump for Taft, a favorite of Colonel McCormick.

It was their theory that the Taft strategists caught the Dewey people off guard.

According to reporters who were at Philadelphia when the choice was made Monday by the GOP arrangements committee, the Dewey forces were primarily concerned with blocking the selection of U. S. Senator Eugene D. Millikin of Colorado as the keynoter. Millikin had publicly indorsed Taft for the presidential nomination.

Agreement on Governor Green followed a series of conferences among Representative Clarence J. Brown of Ohio, Taft's campaign manager; Werner W. Schroeder, Illinois national committeeman and likewise a Taft man, and J. Russell Sprague, New York national committeeman and one of Dewey's campaign managers.

Before Green's name was placed in nomination, according to the story from Philadelphia, Roy W. Dunn, Minnesota committee member, got in touch with Harold E. Stassen to ascertain his views. Dunn reported Stassen as saying that he had no objection to any of the candidates being considered for keynoter.

One of the arguments used in booming Green for the post was the fact he is the senior Republican governor in the Nation. Last week he was nominated for a third term by Illinois Republicans.

Columbia, S. C., Negroes Vote In Primary

Columbia, S. C., April 20 (AP).—Negroes voted freely here today in a meaningful South Carolina election for the first time since 1876.

Those with registration certificates for a city general election May 11 were invited by State Democratic Chairman W. P. Baskin to vote in today's city Democratic primary to nominate two council candidates.

Baskin's invitation came after the Supreme Court of the United States yesterday refused to review a District Court ruling that Negroes could vote in the State's heretofore all-white primaries.

In 1876 Wade Hampton was elected Governor of the State. The Red Shirts, foes of carpetbaggers and scalawags who were in power steered his election to success.

Since then, Negroes have been effectively excluded from participation in elections, either through stiff qualifications, by party nominations in conventions and, most recently, by party primaries limited to white Democrats.

Glenn O. Schultz, city election registration board chairman, estimated that less than 500 Negroes were among 4880 persons with registration certificates.

Dewey Plans 10-Day Tour In Oregon

Albany, N. Y., April 20 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey announced today he would campaign for the Republican Presidential nomination in Oregon for at least 10 days, beginning with speech in Portland May 1.

There he will address the annual convention of the Oregon State Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Dewey also announced that he would visit some other States in the Pacific Northwest. He will not go into California, however. His practice has been not to invade a State that has a strong favorite son candidate. Gov. Earl Warren of California is one of the five avowed candidates for the GOP nomination.

It is expected Dewey will remain in the Northwest for approximately three weeks, and will visit Washington, Montana and possibly Nevada.

Dewey termed "excellent" the designation of Gov. Dwight Green of Illinois as keynoter and temporary chairman of the GOP national convention in June.

Dewey's decision to campaign extensively in Oregon was foreshadowed by his defeat at the hands of Harold E. Stassen in Wisconsin and Nebraska.

Dewey and Stassen are the only contestants in the Oregon balloting.

MOCK CONVENTION PARADE—Washington-Lee "Republicans" parade down Lexington's Main st. en route to the first session of the mock political convention

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Lexington, Va., April 20.—Delegates to the mock Republican convention staged here by Washington and Lee University tonight started placing in nomination at least 11 candidates for the post of G.O.P. standard bearer.

More nominations will be made Wednesday and balloting will not be completed until late Wednesday night, convention leaders predict.

The 11 now in nomination are, in the order of their nomination: Thomas E. Dewey, of New York; Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio; Gov. Dwight Green of Illinois; Gov. Earl Warren of California; Representative Joe Martin of Massachusetts; GOP National Chairman Carroll Reece, Harold E. Stassen, Senator Arthur Vandenberg, of Michigan, Senator Edward Martin of Pennsylvania, John L. Lewis (by West Virginia), Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Dewey was placed in nomination by Alexander Andrews of Flushing, N. Y. In the noisy, band-led demonstration that followed were banners from 19 States. They were: West Virginia, Florida, Washington, New York, North Carolina, Idaho, Arkansas, Alabama, Texas, Massachusetts, Kansas, Louisiana, Kentucky, Nebraska, New Hampshire, Colorado, Missouri, Maryland and Nevada.

There was a brief scuffle when a California delegate tried to take his placard into the parade.

California "delegates" will nominate Warren, and have been advised by California State Chairman Arthur W. Carlson that Warren will not accept a vice presidential nomination. California will vote here for Warren for 10 ballots.

Nominations started after the mock convention adopted a characteristic GOP platform, after the anti-poll tax plank was amended to provide for "some sort of mental test" in lieu of the tax.

The platform contained 16 domestic and six foreign planks, the former including Federal aid to education, a permanent fair employment practices commission, and Federal anti-lynch legislation.

The delegates—all men since Washington and Lee is a men's college—loudly booed at an attempt to strike out a plank giving semi-indorsement to universal military training. The amendment was overwhelmingly defeated.

Before the nominating speeches were made, the 1100 student delegates heard Representative Clarence W. Brown (R., Ohio), keynote speaker and temporary chairman, deliver a sizzling attack upon the "New Deal."

"Both on the home front and its foreign policy the New Deal of the late President Roosevelt and of President Truman has been the party of "the double cross," Brown insisted. He referred to the "deals" at Tehran, Yalta and Potsdam and then "the sorry spectacle" of the Palestine switch.

As the student delegates started tossing GOP hats into the ring, dark horses began to paw the earth in every corner looking for a deadlock among delegations for Dewey, Senator Robert Taft of Ohio and Harold E. Stassen.

Chairmen of State delegations are acting completely under instructions from the regular GOP State headquarters. Some chairmen are telephoning their State headquarters after every ballot just to be sure they are following instructions.

The convention got off to a brilliant start this afternoon with a mile-long parade complete with college beauty queens, clever floats and a menagerie of livestock which even included a performing bear.

All 4200 residents of this beautiful little Shenandoah Valley town turned out to see the three-band parade. They hung over the quaint wrought-iron balconies and filled main street, spilling over into the road.

With complete impartiality they applauded floats for Dewey and floats for Stassen and floats for Taft. For the moment, apparently, but only for the moment here, the civil war was forgotten.

Earlier in the day, convention leaders faced disaster in this Democratic stronghold. They were looking for a large picture of Abraham Lincoln to hang in traditional fashion in front of the speaker's rostrum.

Nowhere in all of Rockbridge County was there a picture of the Great Emancipator. Finally William Atkinson, managing editor of the Roanoke, (Va.), Times, came to the rescue with a picture lurking—no doubt in some dark corner, in Roanoke.

Because this mock convention is being run by student delegates cooperating with GOP State headquarters, it is of more than usual interest to Republican politicians.

On hand besides Keynoter Brown, chairman of the executive committee of the Republican Party, are Senator C. Wayland Brooks (R., Ill.), and Representative Leslie Arends (R., Ind.), GOP whip in the House.

Except for the youth of men acting as delegates, the scene in the big gymnasium here is exactly like that of a real convention, with delegates grouped about their State placards, and banners all over the hall.

Brown, an alumnus of Washington and Lee, told the convention the next President of the United States is being nominated here because "the American people are tired of Hybrid Henrys and High Tax Harrys."

Ben Haney of Texas, chairman for Dewey, has instructed a claimed 300 delegates to stick to Dewey for eight ballots. After that there'll be a recheck.

Champ Clark's Grandson for Taft

Marsh Clark of Washington, son of Associate Justice Bennett C. Clark of the Appellate Court, and grandson of Champ Clark, is managing Taft's campaign. He claims 200 ballots to start and expects to get added support on the fourth and fifth.

It looks here as if supporters of Gov. Dwight Green of Illinois are watching to see whether Taft or Dewey can get a majority. James Stansfield of Paris, Ill., campaign manager for Green, said Illinois will never vote for Stassen or Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.).

Philip Lanier, campaign manager for Vandenberg, who says emphatically he has received neither funds nor materials from Vandenberg supporters, says he has found no real opposition to the Michigan Senator, and feels confident of victory on late ballots.

Stassenites Claim 200

Supporters of Stassen, who temporarily include Pat Robertson, son of Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.) say they are sure of 200 ballots to start and predict great gains later.

The convention today adopted a characteristic GOP platform, drafted by a committee of law students headed by Claude E. Taylor of Martinsville, Va., a member of the staff of the Washington and Lee Law Review.

Paraguay Nips Plot To Overthrow State

Foreign 'Terrorists' From Argentina Defeated at Base

Asuncion, Paraguay, April 20 (U.P.).—Failure of a plot to overthrow the government and assassinate President Higinio Morinigo was disclosed officially today.

A statement issued by acting Foreign Minister Marion Ferrario said that about 100 men described as "agents of international terrorism" crossed the border from Argentine last night and attacked the important Campo Grande military base outside Asuncion.

They were armed with sub-machine guns and hand grenades. According to Ferrario's statement, other groups within Asuncion had planned to assassinate the President, cabinet ministers and other high officials.

It added that one Lieutenant Silva, officer of the guard at Campo Grande, was killed while leading the successful defense of the base.

Located 6 miles outside the city, Campo Grande is both the country's chief military aviation base and headquarters for the First Cavalry Division, key unit of the Paraguayan army.

Gaitan Funeral

Thousands Gather for Bogota Rites

Bogota, Colombia, April 20 (AP).—Thousands of Colombians garbed in black gathered for 10 blocks around today to pay funeral homage to Liberal Party Leader Jorge Gaitan, whose assassination set off the Colombian revolt of April 9.

Members of the working class congregated on the sidewalks at an early hour although the services did not start until 11 a.m.

Only a few people were allowed in the house for the final religious services. He was buried under the living room of his home, which will be made a national shrine.

In the center of the city people continued to lay flowers at the spot where Gaitan was killed.

(Advices from Medellin and Cali reported more than 140 persons were killed during the unsuccessful revolution in the western part of the country when the insurrectionists seized the Bogota radio April 9 and proclaimed a new government.

(In Caicedonia the local board of directors of the Conservative Party were reported slain in the public square. About 500 stores were sacked in Medellin. In Cali 24 persons were killed in rioting, 18 in Buenaventura and 100 in the small towns of Jamundi, Lacumbre, Palmira, Bolivar Alcala and Cartago, the advices said.)

San Jose Still Hears Shots Despite Pact

San Jose, April 20 (AP).—Despite a peace agreement aimed at ending Costa Rica's civil war, more than 500 armed militiamen roamed the streets of San Jose tonight and sporadic shooting was heard throughout the city.

Former government officials were fleeing the country and efforts were being made to disarm all forces of the former government.

The peace agreement was signed yesterday by President Teodoro Picado and a representative of Jose Figueres, rebel leader who led the successful uprising. Santos Leon Herrera assumed office as interim president.

The International Airport has been taken over by a handful of mobile unit soldiers, but a large number of militiamen remain there. Pan American Airways said its planes will not land tomorrow unless the militiamen are withdrawn.

Costa Rican Envoy Leaves for Home

Panama City, Panama, April 30 (U.P.).—U. S. Army air forces and troops in the Canal Zone were placed under a general alert today.

No Chinese Commitment

Dr. T. F. Tsiang of China, chairman of the Political Committee, spoke as the Chinese delegate in support of the general idea of trusteeship. But he said he would not talk now about furnishing Chinese troops.

Arthur Creech-Jones, British Colonial Secretary, and the Arab countries are slated to talk tomorrow when the committee meets at 10:30 a. m.

Authoritative informants said the United States would not have to obtain congressional approval to send Marines or other units to Palestine to back up the trusteeship idea. They said American forces have been sent on executive order to other places to protect American lives and property and forces could be sent to Palestine on Executive order.

30,000 Greeks Drive on Rebels

Athens, April 20 (U.P.).—United States-advised Greek army troops are surging ahead on the Roumeli Front in south central Greece, but have not yet made contact with anysizable guerilla force, official announcements and Greek press reports indicated today.

An estimated 30,000 government troops, supported by naval and air units, are believed to have cornered about 2000 guerillas in the mountainous area north of the Gulf of Corinth and northwest of Athens.

King Paul left yesterday to tour the fighting front and it was reported today that Lieut. James A. Van Fleet, commander of the United States military mission, would join the King in the fighting area tomorrow.

Jews Level Last Arab Fort At Jerusalem End of Highway

Jerusalem, April 20 (AP).—Haganah, the Zionist militia, removed today the last of the Arab strongholds on the Jerusalem end of the bloody 42-mile provision highway from Tel Aviv.

This did not prevent the Arabs from nipping off the tail of a Jewish food convoy in a fresh attack on the Jerusalem Jews' lifeline, however.

Haganah dynamiters blew up a number of buildings in Biddu and Beit Sureik, virtually leveling the two Arab villages after several hours of gunfire in the fight for control of the road.

Farther west, however, the Arabs attacked a convoy bringing provisions for the Jewish feast of Passover, which begins Friday. About 100 cars, including those carrying David Ben Gurion, Premier designate, and several other officials of the Jewish state, got through but the last six armored cars of the convoy were cut off. Jewish casualties included a woman killed and four men wounded.

It was learned that five Haganah men were killed in a convoy fight in the Judean hills on the Tel Aviv-Jaffa convoy route. Two Arabs were killed by Jewish snipers in Jerusalem.

(A dispatch from Damascus, Syria, which quoted an Arab liberation army communique from Palestine, said widespread fighting took place. The communique declared 30 Haganah men were killed in Haifa in attacks on a Jewish arms factory and a huge mill. The Arabs said they pushed back a Jewish attack on Wadi Masnas in the Haifa area, and clashed with other Jews at Safad and Nebi Yusha.)

Jews reported seven Arab casualties in the repulse of an Arab attack on Maanit Settlement on the coastal plain.

A broadcast by Haganah said another Jewish settlement had been founded in the Negeb, southern Palestine desert.

3 Powers Set Pattern for West Germany

London, April 20 (AP).—The United States, Britain and France laid out today a pattern for restoring western Germany's financial stability and giving it a government with a wide measure of self-control.

Official American observers were optimistic as they emerged from the first session of the current three-power talks on Germany. They predicted far-reaching decisions would be made.

The three powers adopted an agenda similar in broad outline to the one which served the first meeting a month ago. Russia was not invited to either session.

Major items for this meeting are the role of Germany in the European economy and control of the Ruhr; evolution of the political and economic organization of Germany; provisional territorial arrangements; security against German aggression.

A preliminary subject will be admission of the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg—the Benelux countries—to the meeting. This is a formality.

The question of reparations from Germany was dropped for this meeting. Officials declined comment, but some observers said this may mean the three powers have decided to postpone a reparations decision in order to speed the work of getting western Germany back on its feet.

The problems connected with the Ruhr will be discussed tomorrow.

Vienna Incident

U. S., Soviet Exchange Hot Protests

Vienna, April 20 (AP).—The United States and Russia angrily protested today the action of the other power's soldiers in a clash on the streets of the American zone of Vienna.

Russia threatened a disruption in Russo-American collaboration in Vienna unless American soldiers it said were "guilty of provocative action" against Soviet officers were called to account.

The United States accused the Russians of "armed invasion" of the American zone and asked the Soviets to take appropriate action.

The clash was precipitated by the unsuccessful attempt of three Russian officers in civilian clothes to arrest a displaced person in the American zone. American military police wrested the woman from the Russians.

American authorities identified the woman as Elsa Pfeffer, a German. The Russians said she was a Russian subject, Anmed Wlasenko, "who, like a number of her kind, had hidden herself in the American zone."

The Russians said she was a former hospital employe "who fled from the Soviets after committing criminal offenses."

Lieut. Gen. Geoffrey Keyes, American high commissioner in Austria, said the attempted arrest was a violation of a four-power agreement ruling out arrests by one occupying power in a city zone occupied by another.

Russians Reject Suggestion on Austria

London, April 20 (AP).—Russia rejected today an American suggestion that a special committee be named to determine Austria's ability to meet Soviet claims against former German property on Austrian soil. The rejection was not explained.

The action came at the ninety-ninth session of the four-power foreign ministers' deputies on the terms of an Austrian peace treaty.

Chiang's Troops Open Drive To Halt Red Threat at Yangtze

Nanking, China, April 20 (U.P.).—Nationalist troops have opened a large-scale offensive in an attempt to cut off Communist forces threatening to cross the Yangtze River into the Nanking-Shanghai area, semiofficial dispatches reported today.

The government move followed reconnaissance reports of Communist troop movements and a Communist radio broadcast boasting the Red Yangtze offensive would begin in May.

The nationalists were said to be moving north and east along an extended line from Hsuchow to Nantung, 80 miles north of Shanghai. Dispatches said they would attack along the eastern seaboard in an attempt to recapture towns held by Communist regulars.

The Nationalists also will try to wipe out Communist guerillas, contained in a pocket north of the Yangtze and about 100 miles inland, the dispatches said.

Chinese Wage Bitter Fight for No. 2 Post

Nanking, April 20 (AP).—Four candidates were locked today in a battle so bitter for China's vice presidency that it threatened the unity of the Kuomintang, the ruling party.

Resentment blazed among some National Assembly delegates because the central executive committee of the Kuomintang was believed to be secretly supporting Sun Fo, now the vice president.

The committee had announced publicly it would take no part in the contest. Chiang Kai-shek himself was reported backing Sun.

Italians Here Hail Victory Over Reds

Washingtonians of Italian descent yesterday cheered the anti-Communist victory in the Italian elections.

Ugo Carusi, Washington chairman of the Committee for a Democratic Italy and former head of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said:

"We're delighted that the people of Italy have chosen to remain free and democratic, and thus further strengthen the bonds of friendship and goodwill between our countries and our peoples."

He pointed out that his organization sponsored 12,000 "freedom cables" in an eleventh hour appeal to Italians to vote anti-Red.

"It's wonderful," said Anthony Campitelli of 1203 Decatur st. nw., builder. "It's just the way we though it would be." William Amoroso, president of the Sons of Italy, said: "I'm thrilled."

The Rev. Orlando Marseglia, acting pastor of the Italian Baptist Church, said he was "not surprised, because I think that fundamentally the Italian heart could not go Communistic."

Father Nicholas DeCarlo, pastor of the Holy Rosary Church, said, "People in the U. S. are conservative; they are not Communists. They sent thousands and thousands of telegrams to Italy urging a vote against the troublemakers."

Christopher Niosi, of 610 2nd st. nw., grocer, expressed his reaction in this way:

"I feel a joy in myself. I feel grand what happened. I sent a special delivery letter to my people in Italy to tell them the joy."

He said he had written "before all the time to tell them to vote for the Democrats."

Joseph Bonuso, attorney, of 1707 H st. nw., who is former president of the Lido Civic Club, commented:

"I think it was wonderful. We worked hard for it—all we Italian Americans."

The Gallup Poll

Big Majorities Oppose Reds In Five Marshall Plan Nations

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., April 20.—As Paul G. Hoffman begins the huge task of making the Marshall Plan work, an important question is: how strong a force is communism among the voters in Europe?

Sunday's election demonstrated the vote-getting strength of the Communist Party in Italy, but it is likewise important to know the approximate strength of communism in western European countries participating in the European Recovery Program.

Five European affiliates of the American Institute of Public Opinion have recently completed tests of political party strength in their countries—Finland, Norway, Sweden, France and the Netherlands.

In none of the nations does the poll show more than one out of four voters, favoring the Communist Party. These surveys indicate present-day thinking of typical men and women throughout these countries. However, it should be noted that the polls were conducted during relatively quiet periods as far as election campaigning is concerned. The heat of campaign propaganda and pressure might change the figures considerably in either direction.

The highest proportion of Communist adherents is indicated in France, the lowest in Norway. The following table gives the date of the survey and the percentage of voters choosing the Communists.

France (February, 1948)	24%
Finland (February, 1948)	20.0
Sweden (January, 1948)	12.7
Netherlands (November, 1947)	8.0
Norway (January, 1948)	5.0

Postwar elections have been held in each of these five nations and here are the percentages polled by Communists:

France (Nov., 1946)	21.9%
Finland (Dec., 1947)	20.3
Sweden (1947)	11.2
Netherlands (July, 1946)	10.0
Norway (1945)	11.9

Further light is shed on the views of the Dutch toward communism by an up-to-date poll conducted by the Nederlands Institut voor de Publieke Opinie (Gallup Poll) on attitudes toward the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia.

Only seven out of 100 typical voters in Holland had not heard of the overthrow of the government. The overwhelming majority of those familiar with the event took a very serious view of what it meant for their own country.

Their views were expressed several ways: the coup was a terrible event like Hitler's domination of the country; democratic freedoms have been taken away; or the Communist seizure of power served as a warning to other countries liberated by the Allies.

Only 4 per cent of the voters sided with the Communists who seized power in Czechoslovakia because "the workers should take power," or because it was a step against "United States imperialism." Three per cent, while not siding with one side or the other, said the fall of the Czech government was the fault of America and the Western powers.

Meat Output Rises Despite Strike

Meat production in the United States is gradually increasing in spite of the strike of packinghouse employes, the weekly production report of the Agriculture Department indicates.

Total meat production under Federal inspection last week was 253 million pounds, only 10 per cent below the 282 million pounds in the same week a year ago. It is an increase of 11 per cent over the previous week.

those for the new Parliament's lower house. Previously they had commanded 14.5 per cent of the seats in the National Assembly, the constituent body which has functioned pending election of a Parliament.

The more or less undisguised neo-Fascist groups had 403,000 votes, or 2.1 per cent, at the three-quarter mark in the counting of lower house ballots. Nine tenths of these went to the Italian Social movement, which practices anti-Semitic racism, denounces wartime anti-Fascists as traitors and opposes the United States and Russia equally. Although these groups undoubtedly will be banned from the government and will be unimportant in the Parliament, they prove that Italy's liberation did not tear up the last roots of fascism.

All Italy waits to see how the Communists will react. In Milan, the nation's third reddest city, the Democratic Popular Front announced that next Sunday there will be a "manifestation of Milan's people to reaffirm anti-Fascist and democratic unity."

Sunday is the third anniversary of the date on which the Communist-led underground seized control of Milan as the war neared its end. The date has become a symbol for northern Italy of the secret armed force which the Communists once wielded and may still be able to wield.

Milan Rioting Quelled

Announcement of the demonstration is in violation of the blanket order that the anti-Communist government has issued against postelection demonstrations, it was indicated in Rome, but aides of Prime Minister Alcide de Gasperi said that he probably would not interfere.

[Truckloads of soldiers rushed to Milan's central Duomo Square early today to quell rioting, the Associated Press reported. Police said three men were injured and that "a certain number" had been arrested "for political reasons." Police and soldiers withdrew after clearing the square.]

Meanwhile, Communist Yugoslavia indicated that Italy's anti-Communist vote will mean tense relations between the two countries. Yugoslavs during the electoral period, made several gestures of friendship, but Communists disclosed in Rome yesterday that Yugoslavia has made a bitter protest to the Italian government over several recent "violations of Yugoslav skies" by American military reconnaissance planes. The planes allegedly are based in Italy. Yugoslavia told the Italian government that it would be held responsible.

Newspapermen asked Italy's Ministry of the Interior last night about published reports that the Communists will claim that they have won the electoral victory and will start a revolution.

"So far as such plans are concerned, the government repeatedly is receiving information from police about the organization of illegal activities," the ministry replied calmly. "The government feels there is no special reason for alarm, however, especially now that the Italian people have so freely pronounced themselves in favor of democratic legality."

Oslo, Norway, April 20 (U.P.).—Foreign Minister Halvard Lange said tonight Norway will reject any Soviet proposal for a military treaty, but must expand its economic relations with Russia and other eastern European countries.

filtrated into many groups, public and private."

In line with the keynote of the Congress, "A Strong America," DAR delegates asked Congress for an "immediate and consistent program for military preparedness fully adequate to the defense of our country in any circumstances."

Later in their deliberations, the congress is expected to consider resolutions dealing with the admission of displaced persons and relaxation of present immigration bans.

Reports on Activities

President General O'Bryne led off the national officers who reported on the year's activities. She called for completion of the building program, estimated to cost $900,000, as an answer to the "expanding needs of our society for a period of approximately 50 years."

Declaring it is "not economy to half solve the crisis now," Mrs. O'Bryne said it would "be a tragedy" for the project to fail of approval, "because the expansion of our membership and of our service has reached its limit, as presently equipped."

When discussion on the building projects reaches the floor today, microphones will be placed in the hall so delegates may voice their opinions. Mrs. O'Byrne, who has promised a "wide-open discussion," is expected to be opposed by some delegates who feel the plan would relegate Memorial Continental Hall to relative obscurity as a library. The hall was the scene of the historic Washington Arms Conference.

Mrs. Rex Hays Rhoades, treasurer-general of the DAR, told the congress that the DAR is "one of the best customers" of the Post-office Department, as she warned of the mounting expenses and urged economies.

"I am convinced," she said, "that modern youth would call your treasurer-general's office 'big business.' When an office sends out over 4000 checks a year and has a payroll of $200,000 a year, it certainly cannot be considered small business."

The District of Columbia twice won recognition from national officers yesterday. The local chapter was winner of the $25 award offered to the State reporting the largest number of books on the request list sent to the DAR library. The chapter also won the blue ribbon award for the six outstanding gifts of the year, presented to the curator general. The gifts included an early American silver creamer, a Revolutionary sword, two carved ivory fans, a wedding pin cushion of 1799 and a hooded cradle.

Mrs. O'Byrne told the delegates yesterday that last year she had invited Gen. Douglas MacArthur to appear at the DAR Congress this year. She then read a letter from MacArthur in which he declined the invitation "as there is no present prospect of my being in the United States by that time," but praised the DAR for having "done much to perpetuate in American hearts and minds a veneration for the mighty spiritual qualities which in those dark days wrested victory for a righteous cause."

Washington Post Article

As yesterday's proceedings got underway, Mrs. O'Byrne called attention of the DAR delegates to the comprehensive story of DAR history, written by Lee Grove of The Washington Post staff, which appeared in The Post last Sunday.

Holding up a copy of the paper for all to see, she praised The Washington Post for its coverage and added, "and the National Society didn't go to them, that young man came to us for information."

The congress reconvenes this morning at 9:30 when, in addition to the building program, delegates will consider amendments to the constitution and by-laws of the society. Among these is an amendment to the by-laws prohibiting campaigning by national officer candidates except in the year before the election. National officers are elected for three-year terms.

This afternoon delegates will hear addresses by national figures considering national defense problems. Speakers will be Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall, Representative Frances P. Bolton (R., Ohio); Maj. Gen. W. H. Arnold, chief of the Army's budget division, and Col. Louise Johnson, past national commander of the American Legion.

Tonight at 7:30 DAR delegates will hear reports of the State regents and submit nominations for six vice presidents-general and two honorary vice presidents-general. The congress will continue in session through Friday.

Draft Bill Proposes Force of 3 Million and similar Army and Air Force units. While great care would have to be taken to avoid exhausting the manpower pool for the regular services, the plan would permit substantial expansion of the Guard and Reserves.

Service chiefs have said that it would be impossible to recruit the National Guard to its full authorized strength of nearly 700,000 officers and men by voluntary means. Universal military training has been the official proposed solution.

Not UMT Substitute

The present plan is no substitute for UMT as it would bring in raw recruits—not graduates of the training camps—into the Guard. Also it well might not provide all of the additional 450,000 men the Guard wants.

However, officials felt it could provide another million men in organized, drilling units of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force civilian components to back up the 2,006,000 planned for the active ranks.

Andrews' new draft bill has not yet been approved by the Armed Services Committee. Hearings on the measure will end this week, and the measure is expected to be sent to the floor by May 1.

Senator Morse's attack on the high command at the Pentagon brought such criticism — often heard off the floor of late—into formal debate for the first time.

He declared that the leaders of the ormed forces have been unable to get together and present Congress with an "integrated program for national security." The result, Morse said, has been "a grand record of utter confusion."

The bill he introduced would "merge" the armed services into one department of national defense. One secretary would head it, with assistant secretaries for Army, Navy, and Air, and but one military chief of staff would be authorized.

Gurney Asks Patience

Chairman Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee answered Morse. He defended the unificatoion program and said he was hopeful that an integrated, single recommendation would be submitted to his committee today.

Several years will be required to work out the kinks from unification, Gurney told the Senate. It may take as long as 20 years to acieve true unification, he added.

Other memeers of the committee—who spent months working out the unification plan less than a year ago—said privately that they would not support Morse's bill at this time. But they were emphatic in their hope that it would bring some "knocking of heads together" at the Pentagon and produce the desired results.

Charges Selfish Concern

Morse charged that some defense chiefs are more concerned with "their own individual cases" than proper security. No one has been able to say what the defense budget will be, he said, but declared that it apparently will total "at least 20 billions a year."

This country, Morse added, "could not continue long expending 20 billions of a 40-billion-dollar budget for defense and remain a free economy." He also criticized Senators who stress invincible air power and said the evidence before the committee is that it will not be enough to give us security.

Earlier in the day, Senator Robert Taft (R., Ohio), GOP policy leader, forecast that the dispute over the preparedness program may force Congress to postpone its plans to adjourn by June 19. He voiced the belief that its cost could be held to 13.5 billions and within a balanced budget, despite the recent income tax cut.

Thomas Opposes Draft

Testimony on the draft bill continued before the House Armed Services Committee, with Norman Thomas opposing the measure as "Unamerican." The former Socialist Party presidential nominee predicted that many men will refuse to serve, if drafted in peacetime.

Noting that a Negro leader and proposed a program of civil disobedience against what was called a "Jim Crow draft," Thomas said: "I don't indorse that. But I don't think it will be limited to objections on the color line. I believe many right-thinking Americans will follow a civil disobedience program."

For World Disarmament

Thomas said the draft "will inevitably" lead to war. He said there should be a plan for world disarmament under the United Nations.

Andrews' draft would provide for inductions to begin 90 days after the bill becomes law. It would register men 18 through 30, and exempt veterans with at least a year's service from all service. Those with three to 12 months prior service would have to enroll in the National Guard or Reserves to escape induction. Married men would be deferred.

Another change in the measure removes a proviso which would have given draftees the educational, loan and other benefits of the GI bill of rights.

Missile Test Area to Be Set Up In Chesapeake

Baltimore, April 20 (AP).—The Army's district engineer announced today restricted and prohibited areas will be set up in Chesapeake Bay May 15 for the firing of guided missile tests off Tangier Island, just below the Maryland-Virginia State line.

The tests are being made by the Naval Aviation Ordnance test station at Chincoteague, Va.

The prohibited area, 1000 yards in radius, is just south and east of Tangier Island, and the restricted area is another circle, 3 nautical miles in radius.

Vessels are warned not to enter the prohibited area at any time and may not go through the restricted area during firing.

The Army engineer said advance notice will be given of firing and red flags will fly on the perimeter of the prohibited area. Planes will search the area before each test.

No date has yet been set for the tests.

Senate Committee Acts on Arms Control Measure to Aggression

By the United Press

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday shelved an Administration request for permanent controls over exports of war materials.

Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) indicated the committee would prefer a simple extension of the present law, which provides for temporary controls over all exports.

The Administration-backed bill would give the State Department permanent peacetime authority to license the sale of munitions to friendly nations, and to ban shipments to potential enemies of any goods which "directly or indirectly" might be used to build up a war machine.

Many Congressmen regard the measure as the forerunner of an administration move to send American military lend-lease supplies to the non-Communist nations of western Europe.

Assistant Secretary of State Charles E. Saltzman and Assistant Secretary of Navy W. John Kenney, who testified before the committee in favor of the bill, were closely questioned about its possible connection with a news arms-to-Europe program.

Biggest ERP Slice Going to Britain

outcries in Europe that the sums would be too small.

"My great fear," Hoffman told the subcommittee, "is that even with the most careful planning and the most rigorous supervision of expenditures, this amount ($5,300,000,000) may prove insufficient to accomplish the degree of recovery we seek."

Monetary Fund Proposal

Similar European complaints were expected from a decision, announced yesterday by the International Monetary Fund, to make dollar loans to the Marshall Plan countries "only in exceptional or unforeseen cases." Eleven of the Fund's member countires are taking part in ERP.

Britain has already made short-term borrowings of 300 million dollars from the Fund; France has borrowed 125 million, and Belgium, the Netherlands, Denmark, Norway and Turkey have obtained smaller loans. From now on they will have to look to ERP to meet their dollar needs, although the Monetary Fund presumably will be willing to lend them pounds, francs or other currencies.

The directors of the eight-billion-dollar currency pool explained that member nations should aim at keeping the Fund's resources "at a safe and reasonable level during the ERP period, in order that at the end of the period such members will have unencumbered access to the resources of the Fund."

Baptism of Fire

Hoffman's appearance before the Tabor Subcommittee in closed session was his congressional baptism of fire. It came just two weeks after his appointment as director of the vast recovery program and before he even had a skeleton staff assembled.

He still has not appointed a deputy administrator, a special ambassador in Europe, a general counsel and most of his division heads. His choices for some of these posts were sent to the White House before last weekend.

Flanking Hoffman in the committee room yesterday were his director of operations, Wayne Chatfield Taylor; his consultants, Calvin B. Hoover and Richard M. Bissell, Jr., and a few Government officials who have been working on the program. Acting Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett followed Hoffman with a general statement to the subcommittee.

Critical Subcommittee

For the ERP hearings Taber had chosen a subcommittee about as critical as any that he could have found. Two of its members, Representatives Karl Stefan (R., Neb.) and Francis Case (R., S. Dak.) had fought ERP to the bitter end, and had voted against the authorization bill.

Others on the subcommittee were Representatives Richard B. Wigglesworth (R., Mass.); Albert J. Engel (R., Mich.); Frank B. Keefe (R., Wis.); Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.); John H. Kerr (D., N. C.), and George H. Mahon (D., Tex.). Many of these had voted for ERP with misgivings, and some expressed their dislike of the bill during the floor debate.

Taber himself has announced that he will conduct a searching inquiry into each country's needs and into the capacity of the United States to meet them. He also has promised a rigorous inquiry into the dollar assets held in the United States by citizens of the Marshall Plan countries.

Burning Car Backs Out Of Garage, Honks Horn

Glendale, Calif., April 20 (AP).—It was something of a self-starting fire in the L. L. Biggs' sedan, but luckily it also had an alarm. This is the way Fire Marshal Al Hunt said it must have happened:

The car was parked in the Biggs garage, gear shift in reverse. Fire, possibly from a cigarette, broke out, short-circuiting the starter and backing the car through the garage doors.

It stopped after a few feet and the blaze shirt-circuited other wires, setting off the horn. That woke up the Biggses and they called the fire department.

Mrs. Ross Confirmed

Lewis Draws $20,000 Fine assessed for each day the miners stayed away from their jobs.

Under the law, Goldsborough could also set a jail sentence for Lewis for civil contempt. But since the Justice Department did not recommend one yesterday, it is highly doubtful that it would suggest a prison term on Friday. It is equally doubtful that Goldsborough would prescribe a prison term, even on a "contingent" basis.

Petition Up Today

Today, however, union and Government attorneys must appear before him in another legal matter. This is a petition by the Government to replace the present restraining order with a full-fledged injunction, to run for 80 days. It would forbid a strike during that period.

District May Get $852,000 of Fines

If the higher courts uphold the fines imposed yesterday on John L. Lewis and the United Mine Workers, the District government will net $852,000 in the process.

Under the law, and because the District Court handles a great amount of Federal litigation, 60 per cent of all fines assessed revert to the District. The rest goes to the U. S. Treasury. When Lewis and the union were fined $710,000 in December, 1946, the District got $426,000.

Veterans Group Asks President to Speak

President Truman was invited yesterday to attend the annual convention of the Spanish-American War Veterans to be held here August 22-26.

The invitation was extended by National Commander Horace M. Havenner of Des Moines and Representative Martin (R., Iowa).

The President took the invitation under advisement.

New Trial Asked In Damage Suit Over Rail Crash

Annapolis, Md., April 20 (AP).—The Court of Appeals was asked today to order a new trial in a damage suit against the Pennsylvania Railroad resulting from a train-truck crash which killed seven men and injured four at Fruitland, in 1945.

The appeal was made for the survivors of four of the men who died, and for each of the men injured.

Attorneys maintained the Wicomico County Court erred in admitting some testimony on rules for protecting crossings. They also charged the jury was not properly instructed.

This was the second appearance of the case in the Appellate Court.

Last year the court upset an award of $13,000 to survivors of Edward S. Brewer, saying the lower court should have told the jury there was not enough evidence of railroad negligence.

Wardens Change On 'The Rock'

EDWIN B. SWOPE — JAMES A. JOHNSTON

James A. Johnston, 74-year-old penologist who has headed both California State and Federal prisons starting in 1912, will retire April 30 as warden of Alcatraz Penitentiary in San Francisco Bay. He will be succeeded by Edwin B. Swope, now warden of the Federal Correctional Institution at Englewood, Colo. Johnston, whose retirement after 15 years of Federal service is mandatory because of age, has been named assistant director of the United States Bureau of Prisons with headquarters in San Francisco. The law permits the reappointment of specialists to new positions.

Lewis Urges Miners Back

was Morgan, Pa., where the miners gathered in angry groups.

"Three organizers (union) were up here twice, begging us to return to work—and the men walked out on them," said Miner Joe Leverotti. "That ought to prove this work stoppage was our idea—not Lewis'."

Unidentified miners at one Ohio mine said, "It's going to be a long strike unless Judge Goldsborough's decision is changed."

However, Hugh White, president of UMW District 12 in Illinois, ordered his miners to go back to work. He told them "no purpose can be served by individual action by miners at this time."

In West Virginia, George Titler, president of District 29, also ordered the miners to go back to work immediately "because it ... least six months before they get a decision from the Supreme Court."

Indian Slayse Brother For 'Bewitching Him'

San Diego, Calif., April 20 (AP).—The FBI today charged a 67-year-old Indian with murdering the brother he accused of bewitching him. FBI agents related:

Felix Verdugo, 67, the defendant, accused brother James Verdugo, 48, of using witchcraft to induce chest and leg pains in Felix. Felix ignored a tribal medicine man's explanation that age probably caused the aches. Saturday, James was killed with a 30-30 rifle slug.

Felix said his pains ceased when James died.

Fairfax '49 Budget Argued at Hearing

In Montgomery

$10,000 Pay Promised Dr. Ellicott

A $10,000 annual salary has been assured Dr. V. L. Ellicott, Montgomery County health officer, by the Maryland State and Montgomery County governments, he told the county commissioners yesterday.

Currently earning $6250 in State and county funds, Dr. Ellicott recently announced he was seeking higher pay elsewhere.

County health officer since 1932, he told the commissioners that Dr. Robert H. Riley, State Health Department director, had promised him $2500 additional salary following promise of a county increase of $1250. He currently receives $3150 from the State and $3100 from the county.

At the same time, Dr. Ellicott asked a pay boost from $4140 to $6000 for Dr. Claire A. Christman, assistant county health officer, and that she be given a leave of absence from October 1 to June 1 to study at Johns Hopkins University. The assistant disclosed recently she also is considering offers of higher paid jobs.

The commissioners took Dr. Elliott's requests regarding his assistant under advisement.

Taxpayers Urge Reduction; School Figure Defended

An overflow crowd crammed Fairfax County Courtroom yesterday to argue the county's proposed record of $6,500,000 budget for the next fiscal year.

Yesterday's public hearing was preliminary to the expected adoption of the budget by the board of county supervisors today, though not effective until July 1, the budget must be adopted by April 30.

Most opposition yesterday was aimed at (1) the proposed increase in tax rates on personal property and real estate from $4.07 to $3.47 per $100 and (2) the school budget, which would consume $5,969,000 of the total expenditures.

Organized protest came from the Fairfax County Taxpayers Association. Led by Chairman George Schulz, the association asked that the county try to collect "all available taxes now levied before levying more."

County Executive Secretary R. M. Loughborough admitted, under the present assessment method, persons may live in the county two years before paying taxes. The present system, he said, was required by State law. Supervisor C. B. Runyon of Falls Church suggested a sales tax as the only means of obtaining revenue from persons who remain in the county only a short time.

Discussion was centered on school needs. H. A. Ward, president of the county Federation of Citizens Associations, arose to justify school construction allotments in the budget, declaring that by 1950 school enrollments could be expected to jump by 2000 to 8000 pupils.

Mrs. Mark M. Reagan, president of Falls Church Parent-Teacher Association, commented that county schools are now so crowded that many children must attend classes in Quonset huts because of lag is school construction.

School Superintendent W. T. Woodson pointed out the county school enrollment has increased 1000 to the present 11,800 during the last year. He anticipated even greater increases during the next few years.

Court Upholds Committee in Calling Marshall

District Court Justice Richmond B. Keech ruled yesterday that the House Un-American Activities Committee acted properly in subpenaing George Marshall and demanding records.

Marshall, chairman of the Civil Rights Congress, is on trial on a charge of contempt of Congress. This grew out of his refusal to produce records of the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties of New York, of which he was chairman in April, 1946, when the committee was investigating the organization.

The jury was excused from the courtroom yesterday while the defense argued that the committee's subpena was too broad and that some 90 records requested by the committee were irrelevant to the investigation.

School Patrol Boy Saves 2d Child From Auto in Year

If it wasn't for a passerby, nobody would know that 11-year-old Joseph Fisher of 707 Somerset pl. nw., is twice a hero.

Joseph

Last October, Joe, a school patrolboy at the Whittier Elementary School, pulled a schoolmate from the path of an automobile. Margaret Truman presented Joe the American Automobile Association Life-Saving Medal for this achievement.

Last week Joe did it again. A high school student backing his car into the intersection of 5th and Sheridan sts. nw., failed to see a kindergarten youngster crossing the street. But Joe did.

Mrs. Lillian Prescott of 225 Sheridan st. nw., who witnessed the rescue, told Miss Elsie Green, principal of Joe's school. George R. Hammond of the District AAA will recommend that Joe receive a citation at the patrolboy parade May 15.

To Show War Pictures

Authentic war pictures will be shown at a meeting of the 14th District Citizens' Association Friday at 8 p. m. in the Bowie school, Bowie, Md.

Prince Georges Hears Zoning Pleas Today

Prince Georges County commissioners will hold public hearings on 11 petitions for rezoning and 9 applications for use ordinances at 10 a. m. today in the County Service Building, Hyattsville, Md.

James B. Bland, county treasurer, told the commissioners at their meeting in Upper Marlboro yesterday that he had collected $2,917,907.95 in 1947 taxes. Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie reported he had collected $3280.45 in fines and costs during March in Hyattsville Police Court.

The commissioners were invited to attend the dedication of the "President's Tree" at Sligo Creek pkwy and Maple ave., Takoma Park, at 6:30 p. m. April 26 in a letter from John W. Coffman, sr., chairman of arrangements for the Takom Park Historical Society. The tree has carved upon it the names of 11 of the Presidents of the United States from George Washington to Andrew Johnson.

Second Wife Says She's Legal Widow

Two women have filed papers in Montgomery County Orphans Court each claiming she is the legal widow of the late Otis A. Worthington, Silver Spring real estate man, who died April 8.

Worthington's first wife, Mabel, and Attorney C. O. Bourdeaux, jr., were appointed administrators of Worthington's estate soon after his death. Yesterday, a second wife, Naomi, contending she is the legal widow, challenged the appointments.

Court officials said they understood Mrs. Mabel Worthington and the real estate man were divorced in Nevada in 1936. Soon afterward, they said, he was married to Mrs. Naomi Worthington in Carson City, Nevada.

In her petition, Mrs. Mabel Worthington, of Salisbury, Md., claimed she and Worthington had been separated since 1936. There were two children by the first marriage, she said, Lane, 16, and

A hearing on Monday has been scheduled by the court for the two claims.

Chicago, April 20 (AP).—Howard Lang, 13, youngest murder defendant in Chicago history, was sentenced to 22 years imprisonment today for slaying his 7-year-old playmate.

Lang confessed he killed Lonnie Fellick last October 18 by stabbing him and crushing his head with a heavy stone after forcing a third boy to hold the victim's legs.

Lang's mother, Mrs. Alma Lang who has been married five times, wept when sentence was passed in criminal court.

Invoices Offered In Moreschi Trial

Prosecution Says Documents Will Show Involved Conspiracy by Six Union Leaders

A mounting array of check stubs and invoices, which the prosecution says will detail an involved conspiracy, yesterday was introduced in the District Court embezzlement trial of six former building union officials.

Special Prosecutor Leo A. Rover said the documents would show how Larry Kelly used funds of the International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers Union (AFL) for personal gain.

Rover told the court he will later show that the six defendants knew of Kelly's activities and the existing documents.

Defendants are Faust Moreschi, union international representative; George Morgan, George W. Plumner, Evans H. Hamilton and Joseph Speed, former local officials, and Isaac Weiner, real estate operator who allegedly conspired to build restaurants at Cedar Point, Md., with union funds.

Three Acquitted Monday

Three of the top union leaders were acquitted of the conspiracy charge bya court-directed verdict Monday.

Kelly, alleged ringleader of the looting, disappeared in 1943 during the Grand Jury probe here and has been reported dead.

Among the documents introduced were invoices showing that several local liquor dealers had sold more than $14,000 worth of liquor to the El Patio Restaurant in 1942 and several checks showing that Kelly, co-owner of the El Patio, used union funds to pay the bills.

The courtroom and jury of eight men and four women were given a brief bit of wit in an otherwise dull day, when Justice Alexander Holtzoff remarked about the testimony on the liquor:

"It's unfortunate we have only the invoices here."

To which Rover replied: "If it will help any, the Government has the liquor in question stored in a warehouse."

Rover also introduced a check for $4100, signed by Kelly, which he said was drawn on union funds and used to pay the balance on Kelly's home in Berwyn, Md.

Illegal Checks Alleged

Earlier in the day, Rover told the court that Leo Mazdin, financial secretary of the union until he joined the Army in 1943, had drawn checks on union funds in the County Trust Co., Leonardtown, Md., without a countersigner, as required by the union's constitution.

Charles Fenwick, assistant cashier at the Leonardtown bank, testified the bank honored checks signed by Larry Kelly, although it had never received a letter authorizing his signature or a signature card.

"The cashier told me to testify that he had called Nazdin about Kelly signing the checks if I was questioned about it in court," Fenwick stated, explaining that he himself had never inquired about Kelly's authority to sign checks.

Also introduced among the documents was a bank deposit slip, made out by Isaac Weiner, showing he had deposited a check for $1500, signed by Kelly, in the Leonardtown bank in August, 1942.

Rover said he will prove that the $1500 was part payments for barracks Weiner was building at Cedar Point.

Hutchinson Expected To Oppose Robertson

Richmond, Va., April 20 (AP).—Martin A. Hutchinson, leader of the liberal wing of the Democratic Party in Virginia, said today he will make "an announcement" this week on his political plans.

It was expected the announcement would be his decision to oppose Senator A. Willis Robertson, either in the August Democratic primary or as an independent national Democrat next November.

Hutchinson received 31,605 votes in the August, 1946, primary when he opposed Senator Harry F. Byrd.

Chevy Chase May Restore Landscaping

Landscaping that once lined Connecticut ave. north of Chevy Chase Circle may be restored. The Chevy Chase Garden Club yesterday had the proposal before it and plans to conduct further studies.

Residents of the area were told of the suggested restoration at the 35th annual meeting of Chevy Chase Village Monday night.

About 150 homeowners, meeting in the Chevy Chase Library, also heard reports by the Village Board of Managers on the past year's activities.

A budget of $45,050 for the coming year was approved together with the report of Treasurer P. A. Davis, which listed a $1498.20 balance. Davis expressed hope the village would receive more money than anticipated from its share in Maryland taxes.

Reporting on a census taken last year, the board revealed that the village has 502 houses and 2003 residents.

Arthur W. Defenderfer, chairman of the board, conducted the meeting.

Talbot Tomato Crop Due to Be Short One

Easton, Md., April 20 (AP).—Prospects for tomatoes in Talbot County, one of the main producers of Maryland's chief truck crop, were described as "slack" today by County Agent R. S. Brown.

Brown said many farmers are planting smaller acreages because of experiences last year. Frost wiped out early tomatoes last spring. Replanted fields matured along with later varieties and canneries simply could not handle the glut. Prices collapsed and thousands of baskets rotted in the fields.

AN APPEAL FOR THE NEUTRALITY OF JERUSALEM

THE HOLY CITY MUST NOT BECOME A BATTLEFIELD

Whereas, the United Nations General Assembly, on November 29, 1947, recommended that the City of Jerusalem and its immediate environs be set apart as a special enclave under a Special International Regime to be administered by the Trusteeship Council of the United Nations, in order to protect and to preserve the economic, spiritual and religious interests located in the Holy City sacred to the three great faiths throughout the world: Christian, Jewish and Moslem, and to this end to insure that order and peace should reign in Jerusalem.

Whereas, the General Assembly also decided that the City of Jerusalem should be demilitarized, its neutrality be declared and preserved; and provided that to assist in the maintenance of internal law and order, and especially for the protection of the Holy places, religious buildings and sites in the Holy City, the Governor, to be appointed by the Trusteeship Council, shall organize a special police force of adequate strength.

We, therefore, appeal to our own Government, to the United Nations, to the government of Great Britain, and to the people of Palestine, to work out some plan whereby the neutrality of Jerusalem will be guaranteed and whereby Jerusalem may become a haven of refuge and a place of peace. We pray that our Government shall take the lead in the Security Council to see to it that the Security Council votes to empower the Palestine Commission of the United Nations to take all steps which may assist in the maintenance of peace in Jerusalem.

We Americans of the Christian and Jewish tradition in the Nation's Capital unite in this plea to our Government and in our prayers for the peace of Jerusalem.

Free Italy

The cynic who said that the outstanding phenomenon of our times is the "enthusiasm for slavery" may think second thoughts as a result of the election returns in Italy. The returns are not yet complete. But the left-wing forces already have conceded victory. And the jubilant De Gasperi, Italy's Prime Minister and leader of the Christian Democratic Party, is claiming a 2-1 victory for the anti-Reds. The credit for what may well turn out to be an absolute majority for De Gasperi's party must be pretty widely dispersed. America's contribution was significant. There are those who raised a question about the wisdom of American "intervention," but the effort was thrust upon America, if only to disabuse the Italian mind of the lies that had been sedulously circulated about America in a campaign that the Communists fought on one issue: The Soviet Union or the United States. On the spot, Ambassador James Dunn worked skillfully and indefatigably in keeping the spotlight on the facts of American aid, and, altogether, the teamwork of our diplomacy was a model of foresighted action.

Italy rates second after the Soviet Union in the strength of its Communist Party. A Communist plan had been suspected of plunging the country into civil war in case the vote went against the Communists. Whether Minister of the Interior Scelba pulled their claws by seizing the widely dispersed caches of Communist arms remains to be determined. But one way is now available to De Gasperi in making the setback turn into a progressive decline. And that is to act as vigorously in reform as he acted in the campaigning. Without a doubt communism has flourished in the absence of it, particularly in connection with land distribution. The American people, who have followed the election in Italy closely, will applaud the decision of the Italian people to stay in the free world and will hope that they will now get a considerate administration.

Waiting For A Lead

The "five lonely pilgrims" of the U. N. Palestine Commission whose job was to implement partition with economic union in Palestine have suspended operations. They are confronted at Lake Success and in Palestine by ineluctable facts which have made a mockery of their activity. What will come out of the Assembly's special session is speculative. In spite of Mr. Austin's 47-point statement of a trusteeship plan for Palestine, the American "suggestion" will not necessarily be determinant, for members of our delegation seem to have gone out of their way to emphasize that no initiative and no leadership will be forthcoming, and that the Austin statement is not "a formal proposal." The delegates, in other words, will be left to themselves to decide the "reconsidered" approach to Palestine.

This leaves the delegates in a vacuum, for the "reconsideration" is taking place at American request, because America happens to have changed its policy on Palestine. None of the other delegates seems to be anxious to take the lead. Why should they? Action, as they know, is the only thing that will count in Palestine, yet the United States is committed against any "enforcement," and has hitherto consented only to a peaceful adjustment acceptable to Jew and Arab alike. In the Austin statement the stand is again dodged as to who is to maintain peace in a trusteed Holy Land. Nor can the delegates be convinced by our past acrobatics that the last word has been said about American policy. Puzzlement, it is reported, is combined with suspicion that something is cooking which Mr. Austin is not yet prepared to reveal. It looks as if the United States wants simply to mark time till the British quit and the mandate reverts to the Allied and associated powers of the first World War; that is to say, Britain, France and the United States, but not the Soviet Union.

There will, of course, be no standstill in Palestine while the debate is pursuing its leisurely and leaderless course at Lake Success on a subject that last November the French delegate called "most particularly urgent." The mutual Jew-Arab slaughter will go on. And two new developments are establishing a pattern. Partition has become a fact that is evident to all United Nations observers in Palestine, and now, according to unabashed Arab sources in Cairo, outside Arab forces are fighting the Jews in Palestine. Before the war the British government, speaking through Mr. Malcolm MacDonald, held that the Arab states had fewer rights in Palestine than "the Jews in Romania." That stand has been forgotten. Trans-Jordan, whose British-trained troops are now in Palestine, is under British influence, but the question of intervention has not even been raised. This is indicative of Arab nose-thumbing at the United Nations that has been invited by nonaction.

It is scandalous in these circumstances that the United States should maintain its embargo on arms shipments to Palestine. The least that ought to be done is to correct this injustice. Soon a port will be available to the Jews—the port that the Palestine Commission asked the British in vain to open for the receipt of the arms necessary to protect them against the incursionists as well as the domestic Arabs under the Grand Mufti. The port will be available on May 15, the date on which the British quit. Judging from present indications, civil war will then have made a battlefield of Palestine, and, if the United Nations is then marking time, we anticipate a boomerang from world opinion, which, according to all indications, is already outraged by the exposure of Jerusalem itself to destruction.

Stern Justice

It was stern and unrelenting justice that Judge Goldsborough meted out to John L. Lewis and the United Mine Workers yesterday. Nevertheless, we think it was justice. The fines of $1,400,000 for the UMW and $20,000 for Mr. Lewis were just twice the sums paid by each on similar contempt charges, with the concurrence of the Supreme Court, a year and a half ago. In accepting the recommendation of the Department of Justice that the previous fines be doubled, Judge Goldsborough doubtless took into account that the recent contempt was a second flagrant offense.

The judge's remarks on Monday also indicate that he took into account the heavy cost to the Nation of Mr. Lewis' repeated lawlessness. For years this union leader has ordered strikes in the mine fields in defiance of the Government and in disregard of the national welfare and safety in both wartime and peacetime. By this arbitrary conduct he has alienated public sympathy from what have often been laudable objectives of the miners' union. In the recent strike he cut off the country's fuel supply in the face of a critical international situation and then ignored for an entire week the court's order to send the miners back to work while the court looked into the question of whether the Nation's peace and security were imperiled.

Mr. Lewis knew perfectly well that he was skating on thin ice. He sent a series of messages that caused some 350,000 miners to leave their jobs without mentioning the word "strike." Then his attorney had the effrontery to go into court and pretend that Lewis was not responsible for the walkout. Justice Goldsborough pointedly reminded them that a strike called by a "nod or a wink or a code" is just as much a strike as if the word "strike" has been used. The very suggestion that several hundred thousand men in the coal fields would walk off their jobs simultaneously without leadership or prior understanding is a patent absurdity. By whatever ruse it was effected it was concerted union action, and the courts would be blind to draw any other conclusion. We think the court is fully justified in laying down the rule that a union is responsible for the mass action of its members. Law would have no meaning if men could evade its provisions and escape its penalties by substituting defiant trickery for compliance.

It was no idle boast when Judge Goldsborough declared that what his court has done in holding these defendants guilty "is a matter which is being watched by every lawless element not only in this country but in the world." No nation can stand by and see its laws thwarted and court orders disregarded without imperiling the authority by which it exists. We think that Mr. Lewis' bid for anarchy has gone quite far enough. The renewal of the strike in some areas yesterday indicated that many of the miners have not yet learned their lesson. But they are only inviting additional penalties for civil contempt, perhaps on a day-to-day basis, as yesterday's court proceedings clearly indicated. The miners must come to understand that the word of John L. Lewis and even their own voluntary decisions taken in their local unions are not superior to the law of the land. Costly though it may be to establish this principle beyond challenge, we think it would be still more costly to permit John L. Lewis to continue dragging the Nation to the brink of disaster year after year by methods that are at once tyrannical and lawless.

Overture, 1948

So far as practical results are concerned the opening game of the 1948 baseball season between the New York Yankees and the Washington Senators was over before it began. The rest was pure ritual, but at least it served the good purpose of keeping some 30,000 persons, including the President of the United States, out of doors for the better part of a pleasant spring afternoon.

It also appears to have simplified matters somewhat for those who have entered or plan to enter the Pick-the-Winner Contest which is being conducted by The Washington Post. We doubt that very many of the more cerebral sort of contestants will choose the Senators, unless out of an excess of civic patriotism or of personal loyalty to Mr. Joe Kuhel. It is already pretty obvious that for the rest of the season the main effort of the Senators will consist of attempting on occasion to give the illusion of a big league baseball club. As the weather gets warmer, this will be more difficult and nerve-shattering work.

If they fail in the effort it will not be Mr. Griffith's fault, or Mr. Kuhel's fault, but simply the natural result of a system which enables the clubs with the biggest capital and resources to acquire and maintain a monopoly of the best baseball talent. For a good many years the more modestly endowed clubs have found it more profitable to dispose of their more expert players in the interleague markets than to retain them on the payroll in the hope of attracting larger attendances. One or two syndicates, such as the St. Louis Cardinals under Mr. Branch Rickey, have found it possible to engage simultaneously in both the entertainment and trading aspects of the business, but this is evidently outside the resources of humbler entrepreneurs like Mr. Griffith and Mr. Mack.

Strange Unification

Not the least of the reasons for the armed forces was the aim of giving Congress a comprehensive view of our defense requirements. Having few, if any, military experts among its own members, Congress found it extremely difficult to reconcile the rival claims of the Army and the Navy and the departments for personnel and funds for equipment. The merger program found warm acceptance on Capitol Hill because of the belief that it would result in the submission of only one armed services program to Congress. In actual practice, however, the Army, Navy and Air Force are still in active competition for the favors of Congress with the result of confusing legislators and diminishing the chance of well-balanced defense legislation being enacted.

Senator Wayne L. Morse of the Armed Services Committee spoke dejectedly of this state of affairs last week before the Washington Central Labor Union and again in Congress yesterday. In spite of the unification mandate of Congress last year, he told the CLU, the three supposedly integrated units are pursuing national defense "in three directions." The result could not be other than confusion. And out of this confusion many legislators feel justified in substituting the easy political expedient of a 70-group air force for the restoration of the draft and universal military training. Election-year jitters on Capitol Hill would be bad enough in any event. The point here is that this dangerous evasion of responsibility has been made easy by the deplorable division within the defense establishment itself. When the experts are miles apart in their suggestions as to what is needed, non-expert legislators have a perfect excuse for following the course of least resistance.

The issue before Congress should be whether it should approve or disapprove a single, unified defense program laid before it by the Administration—not which of several programs with backing in the armed services should be chosen. By their failure to submerge their differences and to carry out the spirit of unification, the services have jeopardized the cause of preparedness at the legislative level as well as at the level of military operations.

Race And Citizenship

The United States has lately removed its discriminatory restrictions in respect of immigrants from China and India, placing them on a quota basis similar to that applied to European countries. Representative Walter H. Judd has introduced a bill designed to carry this rational trend to its logical conclusion and remove race entirely from the qualifications determining admission to the United States or the granting of American citizenship. Hearings on the bill began this week with testimony by Dr. Judd and by former Ambassador Joseph Grew.

It need not be feared in the least that this bill would open the gates of America to a flood of Oriental immigrants. It would not change the quota law in any respect; it would merely extend it to the peoples living within an area designated as the "Asia-Pacific Triangle," making very stringent quota provisions applicable to them. No more than a few hundred individuals living in this triangle and now ineligible to enter the United States would be granted admission under the Judd bill. Acceptance of the bill would serve invaluably to erase among Asiatics a hostility toward the United States born of our invidious discrimination against them.

There are now in the United States and Hawaii more than 80,000 persons, most of them of Japanese ancestry, who have a legal right to permanent residence but who are denied the privilege to become American citizens. They are subject in many situations to disadvantagement and discrimination under State laws directed against "aliens ineligible to citizenship." These would be the chief beneficiaries of the Judd proposal. Elementary considerations of fair play call for a lifting of the restrictions on these people. Men and women qualified by character and conduct and by observance of the other requirements of naturalization should not be denied the privilege solely because of the accident of their racial background. Let American citizenship be an ideal to which all men are entitled at least to aspire.

THE PIPER

The morning came, a piper,
And whistled me from bed.
I rose to brew my pot of tea,
And break my loaf of bread,
But the gay, the bright insistence
Of that whistle sounding clear
And high outside my open door
Was all that I could hear.

I set my kettle back before
It had begun to sing.
I left my loaf unbroken quite,
And walked a path in spring:
A little feathered dewy path,
And high, a hidden bird
Reiterated often one
Clear shining silver word:
"Sweetheart, Sweetheart . . ." my loaf forgot,
My tea untouched by flame—
I walked the wood as one who hears
A long unuttered word.

Blind Obedience

William H. Shields, in his letter of April 14, would exculpate the SS officers on trial in Nuernberg for the commission of war crimes, on the ground that they had acted on superior orders. This argument would admit as excuse a circumstance which up to now has not been recognized by the criminal law of civilized nations. In fact, the plea of superior orders would not help the accused even if they were tried according to German law, for Section 47 of the German Military Penal Code of 1940 reads:

"If a criminal law be violated by the execution of an order given in line of duty, the superior who issued the order shall alone be responsible. However, the subordinate who obeyed the order shall be punished as a party in crime . . . if it was known to him that the order by the superior involved an act the aim of which was the commission of a penal or military offense."

Common crimes are not excused by superior orders. But even when an enlisted man may be protected by the above provision, an officer cannot plead superior orders if he acted within his discretionary power. or ignorance of the law since an officer is expected to be familiar with military law and the law of warfare. The acts for which these Nazi officers stand trial are criminal under German penal and military law which, though flagrantly disregarded, was never abrogated by the Nazi government. W. B. ELLINGER.

Negroes In The Revolution

I note in your issue April 18, under the title "The DAR Gathers for Its Continental Congress" the following: "Since under slavery the records of Negro families were considered of no importance it would be difficult for most Negroes to trace their ancestry beyond question, the more so, according to a DAR spokesman, since even their services in the Revolutionary War are not well established by records."

Mr. Arnold in his History of Rhode Island gives an account of Colonel Greene's black regiment at the Battle of Rhode Island, August 29, 1778, in which the valor of the colored soldiers turned the tide.

Marquis de Chastellux in his Travels mentions meeting a Rhode Island regiment at a ferry: "The greatest part of them are Negroes or mulattoes, but they are strong, robust men."

The Legislature of New York on March 20, 1781, passed an act authorizing the enlistment of colored troops.

Governor Eustis of Massachusetts in a speech in the House of Representatives December 12, 1820, said: "At the commencement of the Revolutionary War there were found in the Middle and Northern States many blacks and other peoples of color capable of bearing arms; part of them free, the greater part slaves. The freemen entered our ranks with the whites. The time of those who were slaves was purchased by the States." Annals of Congress.

The capture of Major General Prescott, commanding the Royal Army at Newport, by the Negro man, Prince, is well authenticated.

The archives of the State of Massachusetts contain a petition in behalf of Salem Poor, of Colonel Frye's regiment, Captain Ames' company, a Negro man "who behaved like an experienced officer as well as an excellent soldier."

Hening's Statutes at Large of the State of Virginia contain an Act of the Virginia Legislature emancipating a Negro slave, James, the property of William Armistead, gentlen an of New Kent County, "who did with the permission of his master enter the services of Marquis Lafayette and at the peril of his life found means to frequent the British camp and faithfully execute important commissions entrusted to him by the Marquis."

The foregoing citations are selected from many found in the work of George Livermore entitled, An Historical Research Respecting the Founders of the Republic and Their Opinions on the Negroes as Slaves, Citizens and Soldiers, Boston, 1862.

Referring to the comment of Mrs. Grace L. H. Brosseau, editor of the DAR magazine, one may say that she disagrees with many eminent historians and contemporaries as to the place of the Boston Massacre in American History, prominent among whom is Daniel Webster.

Exhibiting German Art

I think a Nation-wide exhibition of the German collection of paintings will not only give the country an opportunity to see a phase of Western civilization at its best, but would focus attention on artistic standards and values which have withstood the test of time.

Words As Controls

"Arlington Shutout" in The Washington Post of April 15, is an interesting editorial in the light of general semantics, and especially A. Korzybski's postulation that those who control the symbols, control the people.

It is a telling comment on our legal system that word-juggling can produce a situation like the one existing in Arlington County. It points up a common mental mechanism in our culture, especially utilized in law, that of reacting to definitions rather than to realities. Yet, in the present situation, the reaction of the Civil Service Commission is still further limited to words alone apart from what they mean. According to Funk and Wagnall, a delegate is "a person appointed and sent, as by another, with power to transact business as his representative. Synonym: deputy, legate, proxy, representative, substitute. These words agree in designating one who acts in the place of some other or others." It is obvious that "delegates" to the county convention "represent" only themselves.

The labeling of participants as "delegates" does not make them so in fact, and is somewhat similar to labeling as "Communists" those whose political opinions you dislike, in order to associate them in the minds of others with an undesirable character.

I think when the majority of people become aware of such semantic tricks, the "rulers of symbols" will have much less control over the people than they now do. Most of this awareness, I believe, will come from accurate portrayals of the "realities" behind the symbols by editorials such as yours. PETER D. HOGAN.

Balanced Force

It is impossible to read the arguments of Mr. Mackall as last presented in your April 15 column without seeing his real objective: An Air Force empire of air power. To my knowledge, the Navy has never opposed "the use of long-range bombers in favor of carrier-based planes for delivering the atom bomb;" it has, however, opposed the exclusive use of land-based bombers for this purpose.

Moreover, he apparently shares the widely held illusion that jet propulsion plus atom bombs equals victory. All the scientific data publicly available shows that this formula is incomplete and, therefore, dangerously inaccurate. We must return inevitably to the idea of a balanced force with which to do the security job.

If Mr. Mackall will agree that it is more important that we be able to bomb an attacker decisively than who does it, we can proceed to the real air power question of the day. It is: How shall we discover the hostile intent and capability of the USSR, plan to confront it with a decisive, peace-inspiring force, design and produce the necessary weapons, train the men and deploy these forces where they will prevent or win a war?

It is not the single question of who shall "get in the atom-bomb-delivery act," or who scoops up the biggest pile of appropriation chips. It is not a test of competition, but of unification. It is a complex question, and I modestly join with Secretary Forrestal in giving "a balanced force" as the best answer.

Let's face our immediate diplomatic situation and relate air power to it. Western Europe is now the front line of democracy. The Marshall Plan having provided the hope for the future, the nations of western Europe have recently combined in a political union. With economic assistance we must give political support, and with the Russian bear in the front yard, political support means military power.

If there is one single thing that all Europeans agree upon, it is that they don't want to be "liberated" again. The President and the Secretary of State have, by implication, promised the nations of the West that we will support them in all "appropriate" ways. It is with this commitment in mind that Mr. Forrestal and all our military leaders (except apparently those in the Air Force) have approached the problem of confronting the USSR with a decisive force.

For example, unless a Parisian knows that America will prevent the USSR from rolling over him, the pious American promises and even the ERP handouts will have little effect. Thus, we must be prepared to exert our force along the long line from Tromso to Teheran with the Air Force, Army and Navy acting in concert, for surely B-29s loaded with atom bombs winging overhead will be of small solace to the Parisian in the Russian concentration camp at Versailles.

Therefore, we are in the position of having to balance our land and sea power against that of the USSR, as well as establishing unquestionable supremacy in the air. To do the job most economically, we must have an intelligence force which will discover Soviet intentions and capabilities, a planning force, and a research and development force which will design the strategy and weapons for victory, and in view of the current congressional tack, most important of all a training force which will draft men for the present emergency and develop men for those of the future.

Air power has come a long way since "Billy" Mitchell courageously set the pace, but we cannot let it become an illusion like the Maginot Line. If we were not in a full crisis, one could be tolerant of the Air Force officers like General Spaatz who have been smothered under the Army blanket for so long. But, in this moment of the world's history, we cannot relax, and "let the mustangs have a little run." They must be harnessed to the team. AIRMAN.

Prince And Pauper Living

By Malvina Lindsay

Communist Weapon

THE SAME STORY keeps drifting in from the trouble spots of the earth. Always in the background is the muttering, underfed mob. Always in the spotlight is a sleek little group going through ceremonies or eight-course banquets in palatial halls, or dining gaily to music in lush restaurants. Always lurking near are crafty-faced agitators trying to exploit the misery of one group, the stupidity of the other.

This is the story that comes from Bogota, Athens, Italy, China, other places. It is the greatest threat democracy faces in its struggle with a glib-tongued totalitarianism.

Now, with the Italian elections over and order apparently restored in Bogota, the prince-pauper story may be briefly dormant. But it will break out in more and more places—with probably a repetition in Italy soon—unless status quo oligarchs everywhere begin to use their heads. Latin America, particularly, where the masses having made some social progress, are eager for more, may have other flareups. Authorities on Colombian politics believe the mob of Bogota was in a ripe mood for agitators (probably Communist) because of popular fear that a ruling conservative minority might halt the slow social progress that had been under way.

IN EUROPE the problem is more immediate. European news correspondents, long hardened to the juxtaposition of the world's "haves" and "have nots," emphasize the peril to democratic forces of having as their allies, rich, hard-shelled conservatives or black-market profiteers who have no better sense than to make ostentatious display of their luxury before gauntlets of beggars, and to oppose with psychopathic fear governmental measures to better the lot of the masses.

A very human portrayal of these two European levels of living is given by Willie Snow Ethridge in her recent book, It's Greek to Me. Mrs. Ethridge, wife of Mark Ethridge, chairman of the American delegation of the U. N. Commission that studied Greek border incidents, was in an advantageous position to observe the two economic worlds as her travels with her husband took her into Greece, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Austria and Hungary.

It is encouraging to learn that she found the Communist dominated areas also having their "contradictory life," as she termed it. In Sofia, Bulgaria she saw the new Communist aristocracy loading its tables with wine and caviar, staging gala operas, handing out luxurious gifts to its favorites, putting up a facade of feasting and ceremony while the people on the streets not in uniform looked "thin, pallid, uneasy" and the peasants grubbed for existence. But that, of course, is only a negative comfort to Americans concerned about the great living contrasts in Greece, Italy, Latin America, other places for which the Communists are bidding.

MRS. ETHRIDGE, who had thought of Greece as in complete disorder, full of starving people, found social life in Athens flourishing, with two cocktail hours daily and luxurious top-circle dining. Society was made up of Greeks who had held onto their money or made it during occupation, of the large diplomatic corps, and of many visiting foreigners including Americans. She tells of dinners that began "with molds of pressed chicken, and moved on through soup, meat, vegetable salads and two desserts." Everywhere she went—except in side streets and villages where an egg was precious as a jewel—she seemingly encountered plates of broiled lobster, salami sandwiches, fried baby octopuses, barbecued lamb. Though she had expected to live on vitamin pills, she found the shops bulging with food. But very few people had any means of buying it.

Of course some striking contrasts in living might be pointed out in the United States. But they are not of such consequence as to incite mobs or to figure in elections—certainly not in those of Wisconsin, Nebraska or Ohio. Nor is this country a pawn in the two-world struggle. Nor is it on the verge of collapse. Nor is it being fed and kept going by another nation.

It may also be true, as the secure and comfortable are always so eager to point out, that the issue of human freedom is what is predominantly at stake, and empty stomachs are more or less incidental. However, hunger for centuries has proved the best weapon of revolutionaries. Recently the Communists have been finding it the equivalent of a bomb—which may be given atomic possibilities if the "haves" persist in their selfish and suicidal parade of their plenty.

AAUW Membership

I have just read the letter of April 16 of Mrs. Laura Puffer Morgan, a former president of the Washington branch of the American Association of University Women.

The majority of the branch are asking that the national organization modify its by-laws so that the branches may have a certain amount of flexibility in operation.

What Mrs. Morgan carefully failed to emphasize is the fact that the Constitution of the United States can be changed and has been several times.

This idiotic by-law welcoming all women college graduates is untenable especially at this time with Communists rife in the land. Our request to try to improve the national by-laws and to bring them up to date was flatly refused. We were ordered to conform by May 6 or to get out.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

"Propaganda" Labeling

PROPAGANDA is one of those words that slip conveniently off the politician's tongue. He uses it to attack any point of view that he happens to disagree with.

Childs

A curious crusade is being carried on here behind the main current of the news. The crusader, the man on a white horse, the man with banners, is California's Senator Sheridan Downey. The object of his devotion is California's great Central Valley where on irrigated land rich crops of fruit and vegetables are grown.

Downey's goal is to have the limitation lifted restricting the holding of any individual to 160 acres of land under the irrigation project of the Bureau of Reclamation. In the valley today, 34 of the biggest owners, most of them corporations, have 748,490 acres of land. If these owners got the benefit of water provided by the Bureau of Reclamation, they would have to split up their holdings.

The argument Downey chiefly relies upon is a complicated one having to do with water levels under the earth and what would happen to the underground water with large-scale irrigation. He insists that the small holder would end up by paying the water bill of the large holder, who would refuse to come under the Bureau of Reclamation project because of the 160-acre limit.

NO ORDINARY citizen can pass on the merits of this argument. But the ordinary citizen can and does have opinions of the big corporations farm versus the moderate-size family farm.

It is just here, it seems to me, that Downey, the passionate crusader, goes off the track. He says it is "propaganda" by the Bureau of Reclamation, and most particularly by Commissioner of Reclamation Michael W. Straus, that has made so many people want to keep the 160-acre limit.

He has written a book, They Would Rule the Valley, to prove it. He took the time of a subcommittee of the Senate for days to present his case against the Bureau of Reclamation "propagandists."

When the Senate committee got tired and lost interest, Downey took his case over to the House. There he persuaded Representative Forest A. Harness of Indiana, chairman of a subcommittee that specializes in tracking down bureaucrats suspected of making propaganda, to look into the case. Downey never misses a chance to deliver a speech attacking Straus.

The funny thing about all this is that it builds Straus up into one of the greatest propagandists of all time. It makes him into a master mind, persuading organizations and individuals by his subtle propaganda to accept the 160-acre limitation. That is, of course, perfectly silly.

The Grange, the Farmers Union, the veterans' organizations, the National Catholic Rural Life Conference, the AFL and CIO all are for keeping the limit. So are many other groups.

SOME MONTHS ago, water users on the Coachella Irrigation District voted on a Bureau of Reclamation contract embracing in positive terms the acreage restriction law. The vote was 1129 to 19 in favor of the contract.

A year ago Bishop Robert J. Armstrong of Sacramento wrote on "Family Farm vs. Factory Farm" in the Catholic magazine America. In the article, he said:

"The latest attempt, therefore, to change our national land policy is a challenge which cannot be lightly laid aside by those who have faith in the liberty-loving independent American farmers who cultivate the soil. They rear the families that support and people America's large cities. The fight against the political power of corporate monopoly demands an extra effort from the unorganized majority of American cities. The same fight must be waged on the land."

Senator Downey would apparently have us believe that all of this results from the "propaganda" of a few bureaucrats in Washington. That is not the way deep convictions take hold. They are woven into men's minds and hearts.

That has been demonstrated in Soviet Russia. After 30 years of unceasing propaganda and all the techniques of force and violence, including starvation, the Russian peasant still clings to his love of a piece of land of his own.

The time has come to stop this silly talk about propaganda. It has got so that a Government official can hardly explain the work of his department in the normal course of his duty without being accused of propagandizing. The politician should realize that people are not quite so simple-minded.

T-W-E Housing Bill Facing First Big Test in Senate Today

By Robert C. Albright

Post Reporter

The Taft-Wagner-Ellender long-range housing bill on its second trip through the Senate in two years faced its first big test today—a motion to strike out its public housing heart.

A row over the 500,000-unit low rent housing section upset leadership plans for quick passage of the liberalized measure before nightfall last night.

The test vote, which leaders said may be close, will come shortly after the Senate convenes on a move by Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) to rip the section from the bill.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), who later hopped a train for Ohio to defend his "favorite son" status against Harold E. Stassen, led the fight for quick passage of the bill he coauthorized with Senators Robert A. Wagner (D., N. Y.) and Allen J. Ellender (D., La.).

Taft reached a series of compromises with Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) vice chairman of the Joint Congressional Housing Committee, that largely resolved differences in two separate drafts of the bill.

The measure appeared oiled for swift clearance when the public housing dispute — long the center of House GOP resistance to the measure—broke out anew.

Taft, in one of his rare breaks with the right wing of his party, led the attack on the Cain motion. He said the Federal Government has an obligation to provide "decent shelter" for low-income "solid citizens" who cannot pay present high rents.

He charged real estate interests are opposing the entire bill "simply because 10 per cent of it deals with public housing." He said they largely favor the remaining 90 per cent, providing incentives for private construction. He denied any element of competition with private industry.

Cain, with some conservative Democratic support, argued public housing features would ultimately cost more than 5 billion dollars and deal with "a social and welfare problem, instead of a housing problem." Taft placed the cost of the five-year program at nearer three billion.

Senator Spessard A. Holland (D., Fla.) got into the fight on Cain's side, saying the Government in the present world situation should not enter another "vast and very expensive field."

Siding with Taft, Senate Democratic Whip Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) denied private enterprise "can do this job," and Senate Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley (Ky.) said the Government can afford to spend the money.

As against the 10-year, 15-million new homes goal of the private construction loans and subsidies provided in the bill, the public housing section shoots at 500,000 low-rent family units in five years. The cost of the latter would start at 32 million dollars and level off at 160 million dollars in 1953, continuing at that rate for 40 years.

Taft meanwhile met McCarthy half way on two amendments to the public-housing section, embodied in the Wisconsin Republican's own draft of the bill and indicated he would accept an addition to the bill paying half the cost of homes for paralyzed veterans who are permanent wheelchair cases.

The Taft-McCarthy compromise would bar discrimination against relief applicants for low-rental units, require that "greatest need" be considered and actually oust from public-housing units those whose incomes had climbed above specified limits.

Veto of Paper Vendor Bill Is Overridden

The Senate yesterday overrode President Truman's veto and enacted into law a bill which excludes full-time newspaper and magazine vendors from social security benefits.

The vote was 77 to 7, or 21 more than the two-thirds necessary to override.

The House rejected the veto last week, 307 to 28.

The President tried to kill the bill on April 5, saying it threatened the "integrity" of the entire Social Security system.

He argued it would set a dangerous precedent by removing protection of the act from persons "entitled to its benefits." He also repeated that the act should be broadened, not restricted.

But its congressional sponsors beat him with their argument that news vendors who are employed full-time actually are independent contractors and, as such, never should have been included under the act.

The new law is identical to one proposed last year. Mr. Truman killed that one by a pocket veto after both houses of Congress had adjourned.

It grows out of a Federal Court ruling that vendors qualify as "employes" under terms of the act and therefore are entitled to its benefits.

192,494 DPs Settled by IRO, With 900,000 Still in Camps

The International Refugee Organization reported yesterday that homes were found for 192,494 war refugees and displaced persons during the first eight months of the IRO's work.

Of the total, 12,203 were resettled in this country.

The report covered the period between July 1, 1947, when the IRO preparatory commission began work, to February 29.

It said that 67,098 refugees were repatriated; that is, sent back to their original native lands. More than half returned to countries behind the Iron Curtain in eastern Europe.

The remaining 125,374 were resettled in countries new to them. Britain took 40,455; Belgium, 17,001; France, 14,409; Canada, 11,641; Palestine, 5186.

The IRO estimated that up to 900,000 DPs still are awaiting homes, most are being care for in IRO camps in Europe.

The world organization, set up under United Nations auspices, said the vast majority of these DPs will have to be resettled in countries new, to them, "because of fears of religious or political persecutions."

The IRO gave this breakdown of the "nationality or ethnic origin" of the DPs in its camps:

Poland—162,310.
Baltic states—143,410.
Jewish (all countries)—157,560.
Ukrainian—93,640.
Others—76,770.

Bills are pending in Congress to allow up to 100,000 DPs a year to enter the United States in a four-year period.

The Mayors Of Genzano

ROME—Whether or not he runs in November, President Harry S. Truman has already faced a formidable political opponent in the Italian hill town of Genzano, about an hour out of Rome. Two slogans are painted on Genzano's walls. One reads "A Vote for the People's Front is a Vote for Stalin." The other reads "A Vote for the Republicans is a Vote for Truman." Both statements are, in a sense, entirely accurate.

In the Italian nation as a whole, the Communists have been badly beaten. But in Genzano, President Truman has suffered a smashing defeat. This is a time to remember that the Communist voters of Genzano represented a substantial minority of the Italian people. Italy is like a sick man who has passed one dangerous crisis of his disease, but still suffers from a permanent low infection which may flare up again. It is vital, from the standpoint of American policy, to know why the men of Genzano voted against Truman.

In Genzano, two of the reasons are the former mayors of the town, Signor Ercole de Santis and Signor Mario Colacchi. Signor de Santis was mayor until a few days ago, when he was arrested on the charge of denying the ballot to some 400 anti-Communists among the Genzano citizenry. Before him Signor Colacchi served. Signor Colacchi was arrested for hiding a cache of arms against the day when his fellow Communists in Genzano might need them. Signor Colacchi spent 37 days in jail, but Signor de Santis is still somewhat mysterously at large.

SIGNORS de Santis and Colacchi are both genial fellows. They are also, clearly, very tough men. In this they differ markedly from such colleagues as Signor Gino Grecchi, Communist leader of Aprilia, or Signor Malvito Vecchierelli, Communist mayor of nearby Anzio. Signor Grecchi is a likable, painfully shy local farmer. He was carefully dressed in his ill-fitting Sunday best for the voting. Anzio's Mayor Vecchierelli, if he lived in the United States, might well be a successful salesman, a booster and a member of many clubs and fraternal organizations, for he has a broad smile, a booming amiability and the easy instinctive charm of the born politician.

One difference between Signors de Santis and Colacchi and Signors Grecchi and Vecchierelli is that Genzano is heavily Communist, whereas Aprilia and Anzio are not. Another difference is that Grecchi and Vecchierelli are amateur Communists. De Santis and Colacchi are professionals.

It required no more than a few minutes' conversation with them to sense as much. They repeat the Communist litany letter perfect, unlike the faltering Grecchi and Vecchiarelli. Colacci is the younger of the two, a man of perhaps 30, with mobile features and hard eyes, and he talks often and with oratorical passion. De Santis, a former Partisan, though less voluble than his friend, gives the impression of greater strength. The two men have long worked as a team, and what the team has accomplished is considerable. Even the Christian Democrats concede the Communist bloc two thirds of Genzano's vote.

In a word, de Santis and Colacchi have steered their candidate in the Genzano elections, Josef Stalin, to a smashing victory over his opponent, President Harry S. Truman. Yet surely the neatly dressed man from Missouri had every advantage over the son of the Georgian priest.

WORKING for Truman were almost two billion dollars in American relief for Italy, a strongly pro-American Italian government, the Western stand on Trieste, the whole power of the immensely powerful Catholic Church, and freedom. Working against Stalin were the Soviet claim for reparations and part of the Italian navy, tens of thousands of Italian prisoners of war rotting in the Russian camps, Trieste; the government and church, and slavery. Yet the voters of Genzano, a Catholic town of peasants and small merchants, voted overwhelmingly for Stalin.

Suffering under these handicaps, Stalin, not Truman, carries Genzano. Furthermore, it is pretty clear that with the Marshall Plan already passed, the United States cannot do much more for Italy than has already been done. The rest is up to the Italians, providing the non-Communists get a sufficient majority to make a stable government. The Italians themselves must change the minds of Genzano.

Most of the Communist voters of Genzano are amateur Communists, like Signors Grecchi and Vecchierelli. They have been driven to communism simply because communism promises change from the intolerable present. The new Italian government must make the present tolerable, if we are to be sure that the candidate of Signors de Santis and Colacchi cannot win in the end. And here, as usual, the American Government also unfortunately comes in.

The feeble and unprogressive handling of many of Italy's dreadful social and economic problems is to be attributed to the Italian government's theory that conservative America disapproves all measures of reform. That theory must be disproved. The United States must become again not merely a sort of reactionary Santa Claus but the symbol of progress and hope for the underprivileged. That is the lesson of Genzano.

Arnall Ready to Run For Vice President

Kansas City, April 20 (AP).—Ellis Arnall, former Governor of Georgia, said last night he was not actively seeking the Democratic nomination for Vice President, but indicated he would accept it.

"Who could turn it down?" he parried in answer to a direct question at a press conference.

The Democrats' answer to Henry Wallace's third-party campaign should be "a liberal Southerner" as President Truman's running mate, he said.

Sorry, Coolidge Tells South, For His Gibe at 'Bilbo Belt

Atlanta, April 20 (AP).—A New England Yankee apologized today for harsh words he said recently about the South.

Lieut. Gov. Arthur W. Coolidge of Massachusetts declared he was sorry he accused the "Bilbo-belt banjo strummers" of "kidnaping" New England industries.

In a telegram to U. S. Senator Olin Johnston (D., S. C.), Coolidge said:

"I regret the offense which my words have caused. Bitterness is not my nature. I was stirred because the program to induce northern industries to migrate threatens the jobs of New England workers."

Then came the gallant phrase: "I trust that Southern chivalry will prompt in all those affronted an acceptance of my apology, for I do appreciate the sterling merit of Dixie."

Gov. Fielding L. Wright of Mississippi, declared: "On behalf of the State of Mississippi I accept his apology in the spirit in which it is offered."

Representative Davis (D., Tenn.) accepted on behalf of himself, E. H. Crump, Memphis political leader, and those others who replied to the original charge with "vigorous and effective language."

Crump called Coolidge a "two-by-four blatherskite."

A MAN SELECTS A TIE . . .

Most of the time he submits to the choice of some well-beloved representative of the opposite sex and on his birthday, some anniversary or at Christmas or Easter, he accepts a gift of ties—and wears them.

When he chooses for himself—that is different! Here he can express himself! Against the conservative background of blue, gray or brown suit, he will splash a dominating color note.

We cover the entire palette of colors and most of the desirable fabrics in our ties. It pleases us to see a man select his own ties—or to have some lovely woman choose them for him.

Safeway Sales Set New Peak But Net Drops

By S. Oliver Goodman

Net sales of Safeway Stores, Inc., in 1947 reached a record $1,037,796,659 but net income dropped to $8,102,463, President Lingan A. Warren said in the annual report released yesterday.

Warren

In the previous year sales totaled $847,455,524 and net income amounted to $11,413,626, he added.

Net per share last year was $2.76, against $4.09 in 1946.

At the yearend the food chain had 2252 stores in operation throughout the country, compared with 2272 on December 31, 1946. Of this total Safeway operated more than 200 outlets in Washington, Maryland and Virginia.

Warren added that the company plans to reinstitute its "buy-build-lease-sell" program as soon as building costs become stable.

While high in dollar volume, the yearend inventory represented only a 5.6 weeks' supply for all the firm's retail stores. With the exception of inventories for processing and storage operations, Warren said, the ratio of inventory to sales was less than that which was in ecect during the war period.

DEFINITION: How to describe a banker? John A. Reilly, president of the Washington Board of Trade, got some hearty guffaws at a Chartered Life Underwriters meeting with this: "A banker is a man who lends you an umbrella when the sun is shining and takes the umbrella away when it's raining." (Reilly is also president of the Second National Bank but retains his sense of humor.)

PROMOTIONS: Five members of the Washington office of New York Life Insurance Co. have received promotions, Manager Earl D. Krewson reported yesterday. William A. King, formerly assistant manager of a new branch office in Charleston, W. Va. James D. Bloomer, former agency instructor, has been shifted to a similar position in a new Houston, Tex., office. Boyd F. Harlan, clerk, was elevated to agency instructor here. Eugene E. Krewson was appointed manager in Philadelphia and Charles T. Bell became assistant manager here.

NET MOUNTS: Lincoln Service Corp., industrial banking firm with home offices in Washington, netted $119,122 in the first quarter this year, equal to $3.35 a common share. This compared with $96,841 or $2.60 a share in the same 1947 period. President Charles Deimar reported the firm had in operation 38 branch subsidiaries on March 31, against 29 on the same date last year. The corporation, he added, is negotiating to acquire several finance companies in the south. Election of J. R. Keegan as assistant treasurer of Lincoln Service also was announced.

EARNINGS: Atlantic Refining Co. reported net profit of $8,180,000 for first quarter, equal to $2.89 a common share, compared with $2,765,000 or 95 cents a share in same 1947 period. Other income reports.

World Bank Nets Million in 2 Years

The 46-nation World Bank announced yesterday that its income has been $1,178,752 more than its expenses for the two years since it was organized.

Operations during the first nine months of the present fiscal year have more than overcome a deficit of $1,063,805 with which it started the fiscal year last June 30, the statement said.

"Expenses necessarily exceeded income during the early stages of organization before interest was received from lending operations," it added.

Income from investments and from 513 million dollars in credits to France, Holland, Denmark, Luxembourg and Chile amounted to $12,780,633 for the nine months ended April 1. Expenses for that period were $8,577,770 and $1,960,266 was set apart as a special reserve against possible losses in the future.

The bank said it has 470 million dollars in United States dollars and United States Government securities which is available for loan purposes.

GOP Discards Plans to Cut Excise Taxes

House Republican tax chiefs yesterday abandoned plans for a substantial cut in excise taxes this year.

They decided to keep wartime rates on railroad tickets, cosmetics, liquor, furs and other "luxury" items. If any reductoins are made they will affect levies on telephone and other communications costs.

Chairman Harold Knutson (R., Minn.) of the tax-writing House and Means Committee said increased military costs made it unwise to take another big slice out of Federal revenues.

Congress recently passed over President Truman's veto a $4,800,000,000 reduction in personal income taxes.

Knutson said the only chance likely is in the communications taxes which may be reduced to prewar levels.

Excise taxes were increased during the war and have not been lowered. Most are at 20 per cent.

"We at first thought we could reduce excise taxes 800 million dollars a year," Knutson said. "But that figure is out now. The picture has changed completely."

Knutson's committee is working on a long-range revilson of the entire Federal tax structure.

Farm Land Prices Equal Highs of 1920

The Nation's farms are worth more than double the average of 1935-39, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported yesterday.

The average value is now equal to the 1920 highs, when the boom in farm lands exploded to bring tragedy to thousands of farmers. The average farm that cost $100 an acre in 1914 now brings $170, BAE reported.

Differing from the 1920 boom, however, is the sections in which the increase is the greatest. In 1920 the biggest boom was in the midwest, with Iowa the center. Now, however, Iowa farm land value is only 70 per cent that of 1920, South Dakota only half, etc.

It now takes $226 to buy farm land in Virginia that sold for $100 in 1914. This is 20 per cent higher than the value reached during the 1920 boom. Maryland farms are selling for $228 that sold for $100 in 1914. North Carolina is the highest compared with 1914—or $324 an acre contrasted with $100 in that basic year.

Higher prices for farm products, particularly tobacco, have contributed to the higher farm land values, BAE said.

"Cash was paid in more than half the sales, making this part of the situation much safer than after World War I," BAE states. "In the sales financed by mortgages, the down payments were large. They averaged 41 per cent of the purchase price."

Hershey Says Scout Abilities Invaluable for Emergencies

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey last night said that "the ability of Boy Scouts to care for themselves out where it's elemental may mean the difference between life and death for them—even here at home."

The director of the Office of Selective Service Records told 140 volunteer workers in the $125,000 District Scout drive for better camp facilities:

"So far we've been spared what has happened in many other countries. . . . But if we should have anything happen which knocks out our reservoirs and electric lights, you'd better have some Scouts in your neibhborhood."

Scouting is one sure method of reducing the high percentage of youths found unfit mentally or physically for service in the last war, Hershey said in urging support of the fund drive.

The special gifts division volunteers, meeting at the National Press Club, heard a 12-year-old second class scout,, David Kurtzman of Troop No. 3, Georgetown Presbyterian Church, state that the two existing summer camps can accommodate only 25 per cent of 7000 eligible for camp.

Other speakers were Ralph A. Van Orsdel, division chairman, and William M. Werber, general chairman. The Rev. James E. Cowhig, chancellor of the Washington archdiocese, gave the invocation.

Pasover Celebration Begins Today

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Celebration of the Passover festival will begin in synagogues, temples and Jewish homes here Friday at sundown.

The eight-day feast commemorates Israel's redemption from Egyptian bondage about 3400 years ago.

"The festival of Passover will dramatize in every Jewish home the struggle in Palestine today, and will forge an unbreakable bond between American Israel and Palestinian Jewry, who are reliving the ancient rebellion against tyrannical rule," declared Rabbi Morris Max, executive vice president of the Rabbinical Council of America.

He issued a statement jointly with Samuel Nirenstein, president of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America.

The seders, or services in Jewish homes, will be held Friday, following brief services in synagogues and temples.

In eating matroh, the unleavened bread, and bitter herbs, Jews are reminded of the evils of bondage.

The Passover wine is said to symbolize God's goodness and salvation in the past, and a yearning for redemption by the Jewish people.

It Takes Ore to Make the Steel You Use and PROFITS to keep mines running

It takes vast amounts of expensive equipment and machinery to keep iron ore moving smoothly to the blast furnaces.

It also takes a lot of money.

It is a man-sized job for the profit dollar.

But the profit dollar doesn't have the strength it used to have.

For the cost of new mining machinery, replacement and maintenance has gone up. And as those costs have gone up, the purchasing power of the profit dollar has dropped.

For example, today's profit dollar buys only 58 cents' worth of electric ore shovel compared with 1938.

Steel profits averaged 6.3 cents on the sales dollar last year.

Steel profits last year averaged 9.4 cents per dollar of investment.

Sid Hudson's Side Arm Stuff Tames Yankees, 9-1

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

AS OF 2 P. M. yesterday Bucky Harris was in no pain, and happy about all of the opening-day developments in the American League despite the fact his Yankees were trailing the first-place Athletics by a half game.

POVICH

Those two lickings the A's gave the Red Sox in the Fenway Park openers have provided Harris with some nice breakfast table reading, and he couldn't restrain the temptation to needle the Red Sox once more.

"It looks," he said, "as if the A's are the team to beat in this league."

If he is impressed with Boston's pennant chances, as he probably is, Harris has never let on that he considers Joe McCarthy's club a serious threat to his Yankees. For public consumption, at least, he has laughed them off.

Like last December when the Red Sox bought up Vern Stephens, Billy Hitchcock, and Pitchers Jack Kramer and Ellis Kinder at an outlay of $350,000. That's when Harris, quite unmoved, commented: "It looks as if the Red Sox are trying to beat out Detroit for second place."

AT THIS POINT, however, Harris has no reason to feel any elation about his pitching staff, the admittedly weakest department on the Yankees, which he was in a frenzy to build up last winter.

The Yankees did come up with Ed Lopat from the White Sox and Red Embree from Cleveland, but to date that pair has been quite undistinguished. Embree hasn't started yet but in the spring games he wasn't impressive, and Lopat lasted only one inning in his first start.

In fact, Harris' winning pitcher of Monday, Allie Reynolds, scarcely pitched winning baseball. He was swatted for 11 hits by the Nats, was wild, and lucky to get away with a winning performance.

Harris still covets one of Washington's first-line pitchers and even before Lopat was kayoed in one inning yesterday the Yankees' manager was talking trade with Clark Griffith. Harris' preference for Early Wynn has evaporated, however, and now he is talking in terms of Walter Masterson.

THE YANKEES could get a pitcher from the Nats but they are stymied in the deal that Griffith has suggested. Washington wants Hank Bauer, the Yankee-owned outfielder now with Kansas City, but Harris also wants Bauer against the day that one of his veteran outfielders passes from the picture.

Griffith is completely smitten with the powerful Bauer, whom he saw play on only one occasion. It was the day Bauer made four hits, four fancy catches, stole a base and threw two Washington base runners out. Griffith envisions him as the hitter with the right-handed power to move the Nats into the first division.

At this point, however, Griffith is not pressing the suggestion that the Yankees give up Bauer in a swap for a badly-needed pitcher. He thinks the Yankees' pitching plight will be more desperate a bit later and they will renew the trade talk.

BILL WERBER, the old third baseman for the Yankees, the Red Sox and the Athletics and Reds, was in both dugouts before the game yesterday cutting up old touches with the Yankees and Washington players. He watched Frankie Crosetti cavorting in the pregame infield practice and pointed him out as "the fellow who gave me the worst afternoon I had in the major leagues."

It happened in a Yankee-Red Sox game, when Crosetti was playing shortstop for the Yanks, and Werber had just beaten out a two-bagger by dint of hard running.

"Crosetti came sidling by and said 'That was a nice hit.' Then he said 'I wish I could run like you.' Then he told me I was having a great year and said he was glad to see it.

"The next thing Crosetti said was 'Look what I found,' and I looked, and he was tagging me out with the hidden-ball trick."

Fear Tars Might Shift Games:

Colts, Navy Grid Dates Worry Baltimore Stadium Officials

Baltimore, April 20 (AP).—Scheduled football games the same weeks in the municipal stadium by the Navy and the Baltimore Colts had a lot of people worried today, but Annapolis authorities felt it all would come out in the wash.

The subject of next fall's dates came up yesterday at separate meetings of the Stadium Advisory Committee and the Navy Athletic Association. The fly in the ointment is a Navy request that no other teams be allowed to play five days before or one day, after the Middies use the field.

It happens that the schedules calls for the colts to play the Sunday after Navy's September 25 game with California and the October 2 game with Cornell.

Some members of the Advisory Committee thought this would induce the Navy to transfer the two games. But Cap. E. B. Taylor, Navy director of athletics, allayed the fear.

"We regard Baltimore as our home town," he said. "I don't know where we'd take the games even if we wanted to. What we are asking is that the schedules be reworked to see if we can't clear up this conflict. We are not threatening to leave or planning to leave."

That was all right as far as it went, but neither the Navy nor the Colts have yet signed contracts for the stadium.

And the date conflict doesn't take into consideration the Navy-Notre Dame game on October 30. The Navy has said that if the stadium's full capacity of 53,000 seats isn't available it would ask Notre Dame to take the game to Cleveland.

The stadium committee yesterday learned it would be necessary to remove 12,000 while rebuilding the stadium. A suggestion to install temporary bleachers for the Navy-Notre Dame game ran into the stone wall of "who would pay for the seats?"

Newhouser Beats Chisox

Chicago, April 20 (AP).—Lefty Hal Newhouser twirled a well-paced season opener today as Detroit rallied for three ninth-inning runs and a 5-2 decision over the Chicago White Sox before 14,801.

The Tigers' Rookie First Sacker George Vico slammed a homer on the first pitch served him in a major league park.

Starter Joe Haynes allowed 11 hits and was chased by three well-bunched Detroit blows in the ninth.

Coasting on a 2-0 lead, Newhouser ran into trouble when Catcher Mike Tresh poked a homer into the left field stands in the seventh and the Sox tied the score at 2-all with another marker in the eighth.

The game's deciding run was driven across by Pitcher Freddie Hutchinson, pinch-hitting for Catcher Bob Swift in the ninth.

Tom M'Bride Homers With Bases Loaded In 1st Inning

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Sid Hudson, with his new side-arm approach to his pitching job, neatly de-fused the Yankees' power yesterday and Tom McBride's bat exploded in a four-run blast that lifted the Nats to a 9-1 victory.

The Nats thieved the Yankees' opening-day thunder, wrecking the debut of Ed Lopat in a New York uniform with a five-run detonation in the opening inning, topped by McBride's bases-full homer.

For the 6889 Griffith Stadium customers it was wonderful, with the Nats showing no trace of their first-day jitters and grabbing an 8-1 lead in the first three innings.

Hudson, driven to complete renovation of his pitching style by a shoulder ailment that pained him on every overhand delivery last season, lashed the Yankees back with a five-hit performance and shut 'em out in the last eight innings.

Six Hits and Five Runs

Unperturbed by a Yankee run off Hudson in the opening inning, the Nats reared up and smeared the left-handed Lopat with six hits in their own first time at bat to take a 5-1 lead.

Eddie Yost and Al Kozar launched the big inning with solid singles and with one out Vernon singled to right to tie the game at 1-1. Leon Culberson beat out a slow roller to fill the bases and set the scenery for McBride's top-hole contribution.

McBride's effort was a line drive to deep center that rocketed into the fartherest corner of the fences, and sent everybody scurrying home, in addition to himself. It was a quick and luscious dividend for Manager Joe Kuhel who benched Right Fielder Sherry Robertson in favor of the right-handed hitting of McBride against southpaw pitching.

The Nats were displaying their muscles all afternoon. In the second inning, Al Kozar fired a triple into centerfield, and scored on Gil Coan's lazy single off Randy Gumpert, who had replaced Lopat. In the third inning, Eddie Yost whacked a two-run two-bagger into left field.

A Beauty Bunt by Coan

Hudson himself figured in the 12-hit attack of the Nats with a single that led to a run in the sixth. It was a very involved run, however. Yost forced Hudson but scrambled to second base when Stirnweiss threw wild in a double-play effort. Tommy Byrne, the incumbent Yankee pitcher, wild-pitched him to third, and with two out Coan neatly dragged a bunt past Byrne and beat it out to score Yost.

The Yankees' lone run stemmed from a walk to Henrich with one out in the first inning. Keller's single moved him to third and he

Wynn for Pesky Trade Reported

It was reported last night that the Nats have a deal in the making which would send Pitcher Early Wynn to the Boston Red Sox for Infielder Johnny Pesky.

Pesky opened the season at third base for the Red Sox but played shortstop last year. In the event the Wynn-Pesky deal materalizes, Pesky unquestionably would become the Nats' shortstop.

Wynn was a 17-game winner for the Nats last season. He was hit hard, however, in the opening game of the American league season Monday as the Yankees beat the Nats, 12-4.

Cox's Circuit Blow Wins

Bums Out-Homered, 2-1, Beat Giants in Opening Game, 7-6

New York, April 20 (AP).—Brooklyn turned the Polo Grounds home run against its inventor, the New York Giants, today by shading Mel Ott's gang, 7-6, on Billy Cox's two-run blast off the left-field roof in the eighth inning.

Walker Cooper and Jack Lohrke obliged with home side homers for the Giants who set a record with 221 of them last year but it wasn't enough. Even their ace pitcher, Larry Jansen, couldn't hold the Dodgers in check to the dismay of most of the opening crowd of 48,130 payees.

Rex Barney, who had held the Giants to five hits in six innings, was lifted for a pinch hitter in the seventh, but received credit for the win.

Leo Durocher, Dodger manager, returning to the game after a year's exile by Commissioner A. B. Chandler, had one brush with the law. He argued long and loud with Umpire Bill Stewart when a spectator reached from a box to scoop a wildy thrown ball off the field while it remained in play. The ump refused to give in.

Groom, 33 Thoroughbreds Die in Pascoag Fire

Horses Flee In Panic as Barns Burn

Burrilville, R. I., April 20 (U.P.).—An unidentified groom and at least 33 thoroughbreds were killed today when the second fire in a month swept Pascoag race track's stabling area. Three barns were destroyed and damage was estimated at $150,000.

A fourth barn was damaged and several tack rooms housing track attendants were destroyed in the fire of undetermined origin that started in the pre-dawn darkness. Several horses remained at large after fleeing the blazing area.

Six Horses Destroyed

At least six horses were destroyed after they injured themselves by charging in panic into automobiles, stable walls and a fire engine.

One horse, a maiden two-year-old named Tuffy H., was valued at $10,000. Most of the others were $2000 claiming. Some of the horses were entered in the meet at nearby Lincoln Downs race track and others were to have been shipped to Suffolk Downs in East Boston.

Lincoln Downs Patrol Judge John Daly, one of the first to reach the scene, said: "Some of the horses turned and plunged back into the burning buildigs, some fanned out over the countryside. In their terror, many charged headlong at anything they saw and had to be destroyed after colliding with automobilesand a fire engine."

Tail Catches Fire

Daly told of seeing one horse, its tail aflame, plunge at full speed into a parked fire truck.

Horses burned to death or destroyed included Mighty Tough, EnoghBorland, Boxida, Carmen Wes, Silent Rose, Double Toddy, Eleanor Powell, Carolina Ann, Smoke Ball, Mud Time, Mighty Code, Epicure, Flow Ship, Commando Tom, In Hurry, Talludo, Tacomie, Ringleader, Dishogue, Box Idea, Great Idea and Remember Us.

'Graw Sprint Today Draws Stake Horses

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Havre de Grace, Md., April 20.—Half a dozen candidates for Saturday's Harford Handicap will be on display here tomorrow in the featured Bel Air Purse, a 6-furlong dash which headlines the program as the sport resumes after a two-day lay-off.

Daily Dip and Supper Date, owned and trained by Guy Bedwell, will race as an entry in the feature against G. M. Cohen's Denagee, Mrs. J. J. Cates' Transair, Cedar Farm's Lovemenow and Edward Lasker's Flood Town, all of them named for the weekend stake. Also in tomorrow's race but not in the Harford are Shivaree, Play High and Butler.

Things were quiet here today as the officials prepared to rthe reopening of the track. Of the four horses who ran in the Chesapeake Stakes Saturday, it appeared only one is a likely starter in the Kentucky Derby on Saturday, May 1. That one is Calumet Farm's Citation, winner of the Chesapeake.

Citatoin scored so easily in the Saturday stake that he discouraged his rivals to the point where they canceled orders for cars to transport them to Louisville. Saggy came out of the Chesapeake with his knees bothering him. Dr. Almac was sent to the farm for a rest and Bovard's connections decided he wasn't good enough to face Citation again in the Derby.

Trainer H. A. (Jimmy) Jones, the Calumet trainer, says Citatoin will leave Thursday morning between 10 and 11 o'clock, arriving at Churchill Downs Friday, where he will be taken over by Ben Jones, father of the trainer, and who has a division of the Calumet horses in Kentucky.

Hoyas Score Winning Run In 9th Inning

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Maryland did everything it could to keep Georgetown's winning streak alive yesterday at Medical School Field, finally succeeding in the ninth when the Terps' eleventh miscue enabled the Hoyas to win, 7-6.

The gift victory was the sixth straight for the Hoyas, who now own a 9-2 record.

Leading recipient of Maryland's generosity was Tommy Flynn, Georgetown right-hander who scored his fifth victory in a row despite allowing 12 hits, including two triples.

He was outpitched by Joe Fitzpatrick, who was touched for only seven hits but the Maryland fielders outfumbled the Hoyas with ease.

The final cruel blow to the patient Fitzpatrick came in the last inning after he had blanked Georgetown for three innings and had retired the first two men to face him.

Ray Corley smacked a clean single to center and came all the way home when First Baseman Jim Moeller let Frank Alagia's hard grounder go through him.

Tony Sileo was Maryland's leading offender. After making three errors at third base, he was shifted to right field where he contributed two more. Al Tuminski followed closely with three errors at second and third.

Betting Ruled Skill

Little Rock, April 20 (AP).—Parimutuel betting was adjudged a game of skill today rather than a lottery.

Chancellor Frank Dodge so ruled n upholding constitutionality of the 1935 Arkansas law legalizing horse racing and parimutuel betting. His decision paralelled the State's contention that the element of chance was lacking in such betting.

GW Trounces Keydets, 13-5

Lexington, Va., April 20 (AP).—George Washington lugged out a 13-5 triumph over Virginia Military Institute here this afternoon to snuff out Keydet hopes for a winning start in the Southern Conference baseball race.

In collecting 16 hits against VMI Hurlers Homer Chryssikos and Stover Thomas, the Colonials included three lusty wallops that cleared the left field bluff for home runs. The four masters came off the bats of Don Druckenmiller, Gene Gould and Joe Cavallo.

Orioles Beat Navy

Annapolis, Md., April 20 (AP).—The Baltimore Orioles warmed up for the 1948 debut in the International League Thursday with an 8-5 victory today over the Navy baseball team.

Pitchers Fred Wollpert, who retired after 5 innings with a 4-2 lead, and Ted Wendt combined to hurl the Orioles' thirteenth and last exhibition game. The Orioles were never headed after Jim Wasdell, rightfielder, doubled against the centerfield bank with three on to clean the bases in the third inning. Reaves Baysinger, making his first mound start of the season for Navy, went all the way, giving up nine hits.

Arctas Wins In Surprise

Garden State Park, Camden, N. J., April 20 (AP).—William G. Helis's Arctos, starting for the first time in 1948, scored a surprise 2-length victory in the feature; the Ashland, at Garden State today.

Fertile Acres Farm's Gray Warrior finished second in this test for 4-year-olds and upward. He was 6 lengths in advance of W. Noble's odds-on favorite, Kay Gibson.

A weekeday crowd of 13,450 racing fans saw the 4-year-old daughter of Count Gallahad, who won only two races and $8205 in 1947, surge down the stretch in an effortless fashion and defeat such highly regarded routers as Kay Gibson and Royal Lover.

Jockey Porter Roberts rode the winner over the mile and a sixteenth route in 1:45 1/5. Backers of the winner were rewarded a $13 mutuel.

The field of five left the barrier with Bull Tar and Kay Gibson fighting it out to the first turn. Kay Gibson was forced to the outside and Gray Warrior slipped through along the rail. Bull Tar tired at this point and Gray Warrior went on to set the pace.

scored when the Nats failed to double up DiMaggio on a grounder to Christman.

Thereafter the Yankees were a soft touch for Hudson's new-look pitching. He had to wriggle out of a situation in the seventh when the Yanks filled the bases with two out on Niarhos' infield hit, Christman's fumble and a walk, but he disposed of Henrich on a soft grounder to Vernon.

NOTES: Of the Yankees five hits against Hudson, two were infield taps . . . Joe DiMaggio hit the longest ball of the game, a drive that Coan caught in front of the left field bleacher wall in the sixth, that would have been a homer on opening day when the temporary seats were up . . . DiMaggio swung late—a day late . . . Gil Coan batted .500 for the day with two hits in four appearances, bu the ran 1000, stealing second neatly on his first attempt of the season . . . Coan's drag bunt that got the Nats a run in the sixth was a beauteous thing that was too fast for Byrne to handle and caught Stirnweiss flat-footed. He beat it out by four strides . . . Vic Raschi or Frank Shea will pitch for the Yankees tomorrow against Mickey Haefner who has never missed a turn against the Yanks in his five seasons with the Nats.

New York, April 20 (AP).—Ray Sanders, ailing first baseman acquired from the Boston Braves by the Brooklyn Dodgers as part of a deal that sent Second Baseman Eddie Stanky to Boston, was returned to to the Braves today by Branch Rickey.

Rickey announced the return of Sanders just before the start of the season's first game with the New York Giants. Manager Leo Durocher of the Dodgers sent Preston Ward, rookie from Pueblo, Colo., to first base and kept Jackie Robinson on second.

Giles, president of the Cincinnati Reds, said today he had sent a letter to Ford Frick, National League president, protesting Umpire Jocko Conlan's "roughing up" of a newspaper photographer during the National League opener here yesterday between the Reds and the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The photographer, Herb Heise of the Cincinnati Enquirer, was pushed from the field during an eighth inning free-for-all scuffle.

Advisory Group Urges Social Security Aid For Federal Workers

A new plan was unveiled today to bring Federal workers under the Social Security system.

The Advisory Council on Social Security to the Senate Finance Committee has recommended that Federal workers be brought immediately under the old-age and survivors insurance coverage of Social Security. Subsequent reports are slated to call for full Social Security coverage for all Federal workers. Edward R. Stettinius, jr., former State Secretary, is chairman of the council.

The council report emphasized that "nothing should be done to weaken the Federal Civil Service retirement system; that the Civil Service system should be maintained as a supplementary retirement system because of its importance in furthering the efficient conduct of Government." Finally, it insisted its recommendations would strengthen Civil Service in that:

1. They would bring all Federal workers under Social Security (the reports points out that 500,000 are not covered by any old-age and survivors system);

2. Federal workers who leave or die with less than five years of service would have their money in the Civil Service system transferred to Social Security and be made eligible for benefits, and,

3. Inadequate survivors benefits provided by the new Langer-Chavez-Stevenson Retirement Act would be supplemented. Under the present act, the report says, a widow of a Federal worker who had five years of service and an average salary of $3000 would receive a monthly payment of $11 and his child would bet only $6 a month.

"The Federal employe," the report states, "like all others, needs survivorship protection based on the insurance principle of full protection for the young worker as well as for the older age groups."

However, Congress isn't likely to enact the Federal worker recommendations or any other suggestions made by the council at this session.

GOSSIP: There's a report that two members of Congress are angling to be appointed Agriculture Secretary to succeed Clinton Anderson. Both men, it's said, are anxious to retire from public life as Cabinet members since neither plans to run for reelection. However, Assistant Secretary Charles Brannan has the inside track for the job.

PAY PROGRESS: That's a misleading head since there was very little progress yesterday on the pay-raise bills. In fact, the news on the legislation was merely so-so.

The powerful Republican Policy Committee in the Senate has decided to adopt a wait-and-see attitude toward the bills. Chairman Taft (R., Ohio) told reporters after yesterday's session that the pay bill had been discussed briefly, but the committee took no action on it. He added:

"We'll discuss it with House leaders to see what can be worked out."

Taft implied that he was anxious for the House to act first on the legislation. But on the House side, leaders there say the Senate must take the initiative. In fact, it can be reported on excellent authority that the House GOP high command is most unenthusiastic toward any Federal employe pay bill.

In any event, House or Senate actio nwon't come for several weeks. The GOP policymakers yesterday mapped out a program to keep the Senate busy through May 13.

NOTES: The phone number for the Economic Cooperation Administration is Sterling 6400 . . . An order yesterday recentralized back in the central office all job classification functions of Veterans Administration offices here . . . John Fitzgerald of Brooklyn, first vice president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, is dead. A retired Customs employe, he helped to organize the NFFE . . . The pressure is on Public Housing Administration to cancel its plans to gradually close the Government Girl dormitories at Arlington Farms. Many agencies are demanding the dormitories be kept open.

VETERANS: The Vursell subcommittee yesterday reported three veterans' bills to the full House Civil Service Committee. They were:

1. The Senate-approved bill to make the decisions of the Civil Service Commission mandatory on the agencies in cases involving veterans.

2. The Rees bill to allow disabled veterans who are no longer physically able to carry mail to transfer to postal clerk jobs.

3. A second Rees bill to give jobs to those disabled veterans who qualified for positions before the war but whose physical condition now disqualifies them.

NOTES: The President yesterday signed an order to allow Paul D. Miles, an FCC employe, to retain his reemployment rights with FCC for another two years. Miles is on loan to the International Telecommunication Union. . . . The Baldwin subcommittee of the Senate Civil Service Committee will meet tomorrow to draft legislation to restrict the operations of GSI, the operators of most Federal cafeterias. . . . The CIO and AFL are scrapping for the top labor job in ECA. The CIO is supporting Clinton Golden and the AFL is backing Irving Brown.

Boy, 16, Dies In Fairfax Crash; 5 Hurt In Collision

Neck Broken When Auto Hits Against Bridge; Ambulance Riders 'Critical'

A 16-year-old boy was killed in Fairfax County and two persons were injured critically in traffic accidents yesterday.

The fatality was John Douglas Ashby, of Manassas, Va., who apparently died instantly of a broken neck when the auto in which he was a passenger struck a bridge upright on Lee hwy., just east of Centreville in Fairfax County.

Police said the accident happened at about 3:15 a. m. and that the driver of the car, H. G. Speaks, 24, also of Manassas, told them he fell asleep at the wheel. Speaks was released in $100 bond pending a hearing on atechnical charge of manslaughter.

Here in the District, five persons were injured at about noon when a Chambers ambulance and an automobile collided at11th st. and Florida ave. nw.

James L. Stevens, driver of the ambulance, of 1408 Chapin st. nw., and James F. Laios, 22, of 3630 Highwood dr. se., who was riding with him were both reported in critical condition at Garfield Hospital last night with possible skull fractures.

A third person riding in the ambulance, Herbert C. Gordon, 29, of 305 34th st. ne., was treated at Garfield for cuts and bruises.

Cuts and bruises were also suffered by James Walker, 43, of 3002 Georgia ave. nw., driver of the automobile, and Timothy Keene, 50, of 1018 Whittingham pl. ne., a passenger in Walker's car. Walker was treated at Garfield Hospital and Keene at Emergency Hospital.

Police released Walker in $500 bond after charging him with passing a stop sign and failing to yield the right of way.

Youth Crashes Car Before Police Chief

An 18-year-old Riverdale, Md., youth whose car did acrobatics at the Peace Cross in Bladensburg early yesterday before smashing into a telephone pole was charged with drunken driving and four other violations.

Police said the youth was Richard E. Dignan, a bricklayer, of 6214 Sheridan ave., Riverdale. Bond totaling $2300 and additional collateral of $26.70 was set in his case.

Chief of Police Henry Nebel of Bladensburg said he was driving his car north on Bladensburg rd. at about 3 a. m. and at the Peace Cross prepared to make a right turn into the Defense hwy.

Chief Witnesses Crash

Suddenly, he said, another car swerved in front of his, cut to the left to turn into Blandensburg rd., and ran across several small islands narrowly missing two poles.

Chief Nebel said at first he thought the car was going to crash into a house by the Crossroads, but that it suddenly veered back onto Bladensburg rd. He said the car rammed into a telephone pole about 200 or 300 feet further away.

Chief Nebel's first reaction was to radio for an ambulance. Then he saw the driver of the wrecked automobile start to run away. Nebel, unable to follow, because of a foot injury, radioed Prince Georges County police.

Youth Is Unhurt

County Policemen James Burgess and William Little sped to the scene and five minutes later captured Dignan at 47th and Upshur sts., Bladensburg, about five blocks from the scene of the crash.

Police said the car belonged to the youth's brother and had been reported stolen by the brother at 2:45 a. m. The car was badly damaged but the youth was unhurt.

Police held Dignan in $1000 bond for drunken driving, in $200 bond for unauthorized use of an automobile, in $1000 bond for driving at a speed greater than reasonable and proper, in $100 bond for passing on a curve, and set $26.70 collateral for leaving the scene of an accident.

Dignan is to appear at a hearing in Hyattsville Police Court May 6.

'Princess' Banned As Middle Name For Mrs. Hesse

District Court Justice F. Dickinson Letts yesterday denied a request from Elizabeth, Princess of Hesse, recently granted citizenship here, that her name be officially changed to Elizabeth Princess Hesse.

Justice Letts pointed out that her motion that Princess be made her middle name was at variance with the law requiring that all titles be dropped when American citizenship is granted.

He then granted her request that her name be made officially Mrs. Elizabeth de Hesse.

The former Elizabeth Reid Rogers, she lost her American citizenship in 1915 when she married Prince Christian Brabant of the House of Hesse.

Committee Named

D. C. Begins Loyalty Test Preparations

A seven-man committee of District employes was set up by the Commissioners yesterday to formulate plans for a loyalty check of city workers.

The Commissioners ordered the committee to "investigate, study and consider all phases of a loyalty program for the District Government, and report its findings and recommendations to the Commissioners . . . at as early a date as possible."

Commissioner John Russell Young suggested last Monday that members of the police department conduct the investigation of employe loyalty.

Yesterday he said using the police department was "only one of a lot of possibilities."

"It will be up to them (the committee) to decide which is best and give us a report on it," he explained.

The committee's report will cover the scope of the program, the estimated cost, and who should conduct the actual investigating, it was explained.

The committee will be headed by a representative of the Corporation Counsel's office and will include one member each from the police department, personnel board, executive office (secretary to the Board of Commissioners), and the offices of the three Commissioners.

Heads of each of the offices named "shall designate their representative," the Commissioners ordered.

Commissioner Young suggested that the District Government set up its own loyalty program because the Civil Service Commission said it lacked "authority" to include city employes in the Federal program, he explained.

His proposal was prompted by the Federal program, he indicated, rather than indications of disloyalty among District workers.

District Personnel Board records showed that 16,910 District employes probably would be "eligible" for loyalty investigation—5700 classified under civil service, 5340 employed in the schools, 1900 policemen, 920 firemen and 3050 per diem workers.

Personnel officials said court employes were not included in the tally because they are "judicial" rather than "executive" department employes. Some per diem workers—who are "hired one day and leave the next"—might be excluded from the check if their work is not significant enough to warrant investigation, they added.

Area Growth Called Factor In Pollution

Harrisburg, Pa., April 20 (AP).—Population growth in the Washington suburban area was cited today as a major problem in eliminating pollution from the Potomac River.

The Interstate Commission for the Potomac River Basin heard a report from Edwin A. Schmitt, chairman of its technical committee, stating that engineering and financial agreements had been reached for treatment of sewage in the Anacostia drainage basin.

Suburban Development

Harold A. Kemp, commission representative from the District of Columbia, pointed out, however, that development of suburban areas adjacent to the Nation's Capital extended the pollution problem into the tributaries of the river.

John Nolen, jr., member of the District technical committee, urged that close cooperation was essential between the planning agencies of the Washington metropolitan area, and agencies responsible for sewage disposal from the suburban sectors.

He pointed out that plans must be perfected now to handle collection, treatment and disposal of sewage from those sectors where population growths may be anticipated.

Industry Cooperating

A report from the industrial advisory committee indicated that industries in general were cooperating in the drive to abate pollution of the upper reaches of the Potomac.

J. G. Patrick, committee chairman, said a study will be made this fall to determine methods of eliminating waste from the apple industry, which reaches the river from small streams in the Maryland and southern Pennsylvania apple belt.

The land use committee approved a petition to ask Congress to have its agriculture committee augment a 1946 survey of the stream.

The original survey disclosed where corrective measures were needed to end pollution of the watershed. The committee now hopes to learn from a second survey the effect of silt deposits on certain parts of the stream.

Railroad Pays $75,000 For Baby's Lost Hands

Charleston, W. Va., April 20 (AP).—A compromise settlement of $75,000 for a Raleigh County child who lost both hands in a railroad accident was reached today, Attorney A. A. Lilly of the plaintiff's counsel announced.

The settlement ended extended litigation for Charles Daniel Armentrout against the Virginian Railway. The boy lost both hands when, at the age of 18 months, he crawled onto the railroad track near his home and a locomotive backed up.

Home Rule Aired in Budget Hearing; House Passes D. C. Rent Curb Bill

Controls Extension Virtually Certain With Senate Having Already Approved

Extension of rent controls here for another year was virtually assured by House approval yesterday.

The Senate has already approved legislation to continue local rent controls through March 31, 1949.

The House version of the legislation differs from that of the Senate, but as a matter of routine, the differences will be ironed out by Senate-House conferees. No difficulty is anticipated on this score, and the President is expected to sign the extension measure before present controls expire at the end of this month.

Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.), chairman of the House District Committee, brought the extension bill to the floor and accepted an amendment proposed by Representative Carl T. Curtis (R., Nebr.) which would exempt absentee tenants from antieviction provisions of the rental control law.

Curtis charged that under the present law, tenants could not be evicted except under special circumstances; and that some tenants were making a racket out of this advantage. These persons, Curtis said, would rent unfurnished rooms at low-ceiling rates, furnish them, and then subrent them at exorbitant rates. Such absentee tenants should not be protected against eviction, Curtis declared.

Rent controls are eased up a little under the extension legislation. On April 30 controls are lifted on transient hotel rooms, nonhousekeeping rooms in private homes and new housing accommodations.

D. C. Board Bars Clapp as Welfare Head

District Commissioners yesterday flatly rejected the nomination of Raymond F. Clapp as head of the District Department of Public Welfare.

Without giving specific reasons, they asked members of the welfare board to select someone else for the post left vacant at the death of Ray Huff last December.

"We just didn't like the appointment," Commissioner Guy Mason told reporters. "Our action is no indication that we think Mr. Clapp incompetent in his job as principal assistant to the welfare director."

"We haven't a single candidate for the position," Mason added, "so we're not trying to cram anybody down their (board members') throats."

Disapproval of Clapp's nomination came at the first full meeting of the Board of District Commissioners since the nomination was presented by the welfare board on February 19. Three welfare board members attended the meeting.

They are Edgar Morris, welfare board chairman; Fred Kogod, assistant chairman, and A. J. Driscoll, member.

Morris said the board members would meet at 1:30 p. m. Friday "to select another candidate." Asked if there was any possibility Clapp's name would be re-submitted to the Commissioners, he said such action would be "highly unlikely." He declined to discuss candidates for the nomination.

Clapp, 57, of 2804 N st. se., has been serving as Acting Director since Huff's death. Out of six applicants for the directorship, he was the unanimous choice in vote of welfare board members, it was learned.

Tenants Agree To Howard U. Rent Boosts

Tenants in 40 houses owned by Howard University agreed yesterday to pay more rent if the university promises to make repairs, Rent Control Examiner Denis K. Lane revealed following a hearing.

Lane informed the university he will recommend granting the boost on the assumption the promise will be kept.

The homes are in the 300 block of College st. nw., 600 blocks of Howard and Gresham pls., and Fairmont st. nw., and the 2500 and 2600 block of Georgia ave. nw.

Rents which range from $35 to $75 a month would go up to $39.70 and $86.15 under the plan, Lane revealed.

Commissioners Favor Paying Nine Hospitals

The District Commissioners agreed yesterday that Washington should pay $800,267.64 to nine private Washington hospitals for the treatments they have given in this fiscal year to indigent patients.

Their decision charted a program which—if approved by Congress—would mean that the District each fiscal year would repay the nine hospitals for their major expenses in treating indigent patients during the preceding year.

The District now reimburses only three of the nine hospitals for care of indigent persons—Casualty, Emergency and Childrens. The city also pays a lump sum to the Washington Home for Incurables. The plan also suggests that Freedmen's Hospital be brought into the new system.

The payments to hospitals under the proposed plan would be based on the number of patients treated and the number of days of treatment. The rate would be the patient cost per day in each hospital, or the per diem cost at Gallinger, whichever is lwoer. The Casualty rate is set at $8.97; and for the other hospitals at the Gallinger rate of $9.28 per day. They would also get $2 per clinic visit, $2.25 per ambulance run, and $1.50 per X-ray.

Here is what the hospitals would get in next year's budget if the plan is approved:

Hospital	Inpatients	Outpatients
Columbia	$2,727.60	$662
Children's	152,349.76	68,518
Casualty	124,727.85	14,926
Episcopal	22,912.32	15,190
Georgetown	53,933.12	12,009
George Washington	2,916.16	4,272
Providence	87,007.04	27,660
Garfield	40,935.68	5,636
Emergency	104,279.36	20,862
Totals	$570,798.89	$179,790

The grand total included the figures for inpatients and outpatients, plus $12,678.75 for ambulance services, $2000 for X-rays and $35,000 for the Washington Home for Incurables.

To Train Drivers

D. C. Offered Free Autos For Schools

An offer to provide the District school system with 14 dual control driver-training autos was made yesterday by the District Chapter of the American Automobile Association and the Chevrolet Division of General Motors.

The proposal was made within a couple of hours after the President had signed a bill permitting 15, 15 and 17-year-old school children to operate the training vehicles without permits while taking the driving course.

Washington I. Cleveland, head of the local AAA, made the offer in testifying before a House subcommittee considering the 1949 District budget.

Cleveland said the proposal was contingent on the District providing $42,080 for instructors and operation of the dual-control cars.

Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.), chairman of the House Appropriations Subcommittee, to whom the offer was made, said every consideration would be given to the proposal, despite the District being hard-pressed financially.

Meanwhile, the President's signature was affixed to two other local pieces of legislation yesterday. One permits doctors who have passed national specialty board exams to practice here without further tests. The other lifts the level of salaries of Alcoholic Beverage Control Board members.

Horan Fears Senate Will Disapprove; 30 Representatives of Various Groups Demand Increases in City's Services

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Strong talk for home rule entered the annual House hearing for District citizens yesterday on their 102-million-dollar city budget.

Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.) told the hearing he would work and speak for home rule. He predicted the plan would be approved by the House but not by the Senate.

Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.) said he hopes to spport the home rule bill. He said that with the people in charge of their own financial aairs "we'd have a better watchdog over public funds."

Horan is chairman of the House subcommittee in charge of the District budget. He announced at the end of the 4½ hour hearing that his group will start work today with District officials to write up the appropriation bill for the year starting July 1.

All-Day Session Today

Miller is a member of the House District Committee which meets at 9:30 a. m. today to give the home rule plan its first major test. An all-day session is slated. The home rule bill, sponsored by the District subcommittee headed by Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.), would give Washington an elected council and school board, in place of present appointed officials, and a non-voting delegate in the House.

The pre-view talk on home rule in Horan's hearing came as a sideline to the main appeal of nearly all the 30 witnesses for increases in city services, mostly in school facilities and public welfare work.

Standing against the proposals for budget increases were John H. Connaughton and Vernis Absher, representing the Federation of Citizens Associations. Connaughton, president of the Federation, urged that the budget be cut back 4.5 million to stay within the revenue that can be raised from present tax laws.

He urged that no new taxes be enacted pending granting of home rule. If a sales tax is to be enacted, Connaughton said, it should be accompanied by repeal of the city's personal income tax. If the income tax were repealed, he said his organization would not object to a sales tax. He said the sales tax should exempt food, medicine and other items.

Horan Sees Higher Budgets

Horan enterjected, "I am very strong for home rule, but I cannot allow the supposition that home rule would interfere with development of a sensible budget. I've worked on the budget in an impersonal manner, and I suspect that with home rule, budgets will be just a little bit higher; yet I'm for it because the people who pay the taxes should have a direct voice in how the money is spent."

School problems of Washington's boom-town areas, particularly in the southeast were outlined by several witnesses, including Representative Ed Gossett (D., Tex.).

Gossett said he has two children in the Stanton school, and will have five there if he stays long enough at his present address, 2335 Skyland pl. se. He said there are 577 children in the school now, and the graph of future enrollment goes almost straight up to 1379 children two years from now. He said the school is ridiculously overcrowded and will be on shifts soon. He said there were scores of schools in his country district in Texas that would put schools here to shame.

The school board asked $250,000 for next year to start a 16-room Stanton school replacement near Good Hope and Naylor rds. se. at a cost of $631,000.

Stanton School Delegation

A citizens delegation for Stanton School attended, wearing "Stanton" ribbons, including 3-year-old Marcia Ann Stamm, with her mother, Mrs. A. V. Stamm, 2814 Erie st. se. Among those who testified for the group were C. O. Morrison, chairman of the new Stanton School committee; George W. Absher, president of the Hillcrest Citizens Association, and Mrs. James T. Mackintosh, jr., president of the Stanton P-TA.

Similar appeals were presented for other school projects. Mrs. Doralis A. Cloer, for Congress Heights P-TA, reported that school, with a capacity of 560, now has 801 children. She said in six years the school population for that area will be 2677. Lex L. Dodds, of the Patterson Elementary School P-TA, said that school has 274 children more than its 720-pupil capacity. He said 57 will graduate this spring; 627 more children already in the area will be ready to enter next fall, and some 1400 more are expected to move into newly constructed housing there. Howard A. Nessen, Washington Highlands Citizens Association, urged that money for a site and plans for a new Oxon Run elementary school be approved to take some load off Patterson. He said the area needs another junior high school, and plans should be made for a new senior high there. Mrs. George H. Hagerty, of Southeast Council of Citizens Associations, joined in the appeal for expanded school facilities in the southeast section.

Mrs. Arliss A. Davis urged that the school board's request for $200,000 for starting an elementary school in the River Terrace section of northeast Washington be restored to the budget, along with $14,000 for equipping the school.

Several witnesses called for expansion of Negro school facilities. They included William A. Hill, executive secretary, District branch, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; the Rev. A. Joseph Edwards, pastor of Zion Baptist Church, speaking for a citizens committee on the school budget; Charles J. Quander, Kingman Park Civic Association, and Joy P. Davis, Banneker Junior High P-TA, who filed a statement.

Improved school services for handicapped children were urged by Mrs. Edna S. Koenig, secretary of the Health School, P-TA; Mrs. Florence E. Welch, president, Association for the Education of Physically Handicapped Shut-in Children, and Mrs. Earl L. Ellis, 1921 21st pl. se., who filed a statement. Mrs. Isabel C. Moore of the Northwest Council of Citizens Associations, urged improved adult education and recreation facilities.

L. C. Palmer of the District Apprenticeship Council asked that apprentices here who live nearby beyond the District be allowed to attend District schools without tuition. Horan said he would not agree to that, but would cooperate in finding some other solution.

Mrs. John C. McClintock of the District League of Women Voters called for additional health, welfare and school services. She also suggested that patients in St. Elizabeths charged to the District should be a Federal responsibility.

Expansion of the city welfare budget was urged by Benjamin W. Thoron, Family Service Association; Arthur H. Fawcett, Council of Social Agencies, the Rev. Leonard S. Edmonds, who filed a statement for the Federation of Churches; Mrs. George Tobias, American Association of Social Workers; Mrs. Hester C. Stoll, American Association of Medical Social Workers; Mrs. Henry Gichner, Council of Social Agencies, and Mrs. Harold Bannerman, Children's Protective Association.

Chairman Horan indicated strong interest in Board of Trade appeal for restoring budget cuts in the Department of Vehicles and Traffic presented by Alvin B. Barber. Horan said that if progress is not made in solving traffic problems, the 1950 District sesquicentenial will be "one continuous traffic jam."

Improved recreation facilities also were asked. Mrs. Helen Craig, Hilltop Recreation Council, and George W. Absher, Hillcrest Citizens, joined in an appeal for a field house for the Hillcrest Playground, 30th st. and Alabama ave. se. Expansion of the city's preschool play center program was urged by Mrs. Richard K. McKey, representing the mothers interested in the project.

Small Mess Table Popular at Belvoir

The GI mess table, which used to be so long the food was served with proximity fuses, is doomed in a Fort Belvoir experiment.

Substituting home-like atmosphere for reach and tablecloths for boards, the venture seats only four men at a table with food they picked up cafeteria-style. They eat off plates—not mess kits or partitioned trays.

They like it, according to Capt. Richard Rector and Mess Steward T/Sergt Ralph J. Edwards.

The idea was suggested some time ago to regimental food supervisor M/Sergt. Harl F. Outman by Col. Guy F. Maple, Engineer Center regiment commanding officer. Co. A, 9829 Engineer Battalion, a new outfit, was chosen for the try.

Tables were built from salvaged material.

Plans call for more of the same.

Red Cross Needs Blood

An emergency appeal for Type O-Rh positive blood has been issued by the District Red Cross Blood Center, at 1730 E st. nw., to meet an unexpected run on the blood bank.

Though all blood types are needed, Mrs. Nita S. Russell, blood recruitment director declared that the bank's supply of O-Rh positive bloods had been reduced to a mere half-pint by the start of this week. Even that half-pint, she said, had been spoken for.

In one case last week, Mrs. Russell said, a pint of O-Rh positive blood was taken from a donor at the District Blood Center and within an hour it was being injected into the veins of a patient. O-Rh positive blood is one of the more common types.

'Argue' With Autos

Marine Hero 'Manila John' Is Reinterred

They buried "Manila John" and a little chunk of every enlisted Marine's heart yesterday with the kind of ceremonial fuss John died running away from.

Sergt. Basilone

It was the second time Gunnery Sergt. John Basilone, the Raritan, N. J., boy who became the hero of Guadalcanal, and the first enlisted Marine to win the Congressional Medal of Honor in World War II, has been laid at rest.

The first time he was buried in the black sand of Iwo Jima, where he died on D-Day, leading his machine-gun section toward Motoyama Airfield No. 1. The second, yesterday, was in the beautiful spring-green section of Arlington set aside for servicemen killed in World War II.

Both were special occasions to the noncommissioned Marines. Manila John represented something special to them, above and beyond the Medal of Honor he won for killing 38 Japs single-handed on "the Canal" and the Navy Cross he got for wiping out a blockhouse on Iwo.

He was the symbol. He was that greatest of the great—"The Marine's Marine."

There were many reasons. But, overall it was because John Basilone did things just the way the enlisted Marine talked and thought of doing things. He met the enemy under great odds and won. He received the medal and America's thunderous acclaim.

Then he returned to the grubby ranks of the combat leatherneck rather than accept a "safe" assignment which was his right. When he turned down the commission they urged on him, the enlisted men claimed him as their own.

At Seat Pleasant, reburial services will be held at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church for Marine Corps Pfc. Albert R. Gates, whose parents live at 7207 F st., Seat Pleasant. Rabbits Valued at $9

A dead rabbit family is worth only $9 of Montgomery County's dog fund money—and the fee doesn't consider the admitted potential of a live rabbit family.

This, generally, was the complaint lodged with Montgomery County commissioners yesterday by Mrs. Erma H. Whitlow, 5721 Wilson la., Bethesda, Md. All she could find after dogs pilfered the rabbit warren, she said, was the pelt of a pedigreed New Zealand White buck.

On the hoof, he was worth $20, her claim said. She agreed to knock off $1.50 for the pelt. Also claimed: An even $5 for the mama rabbit and 50 cents each for the seven bunnies.

Two commissioners set her loss at $9.

Navy Torpedo Tests Made in California

The Navy has fired more torpedoes in an 8-mile, man-made lake in California's Sierra Madre Mountains than it let loose on the Japanese fleet during World War II.

This was disclosed yesterday when the Navy told for the first time the secret of its vast outdoor laboratory for underwater missiles near Morris Dam.

The water in back of the dam has been the scene of the launching of more than 3000 torpedoes since 1943. The Navy says it has made "tremendous progress" due to the tests.

Why Not Woman Vice President

"A woman for Vice President of the United States? Why not," says Frances Perkins, former Secretary of Labor, writing in the April issue of Today's Woman magazine.

There are hundreds of women in both major political parties who have the necessary qualifications for the Vice Presidency, writes Miss Perkins. Specifically she cites Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Mrs. LaFell Dickinson, former president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Mildred McAfee Horton, Wellesley College president and wartime commander of the WAVES; Social Security Board Member Mary Williams Dewson and Mrs. Martha Taft, wife of the GOP leader and himself a presidential candidate. Of Mrs. Taft's qualifications to be Vice President, Miss Perkins adds, "Her husband would be a complication."

Does the former Cabinet member think we will have a woman Vice President in the near future? No. If any woman's name is put in nomination by either party during the coming conventions, predicts Miss Perkins, "she will be shrewd enough and sophisticated enough to take it as an honor and withdraw her name to help the candidate she favors. Politics is a career for hardly anyone in America except the leaders of great city machine organizations."

India Edwards Slated to Head Democratic Women's Division

Mrs. India Edwards, publicity director for the women's division, Democratic National Committee, has been slated to succeed Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse as executive director of the women's division, The Washington Post learned yesterday. Mrs. Woodhouse resigned to take an Army job teaching German women the meaning of democracy.

She will fly to Germany April 30 and expects to return August 1 in time to seek the Democratic nomination for Connecticut's House seat in the Second Congressional District, which she held until a Republican landslide ousted her in 1945.

Mrs. Woodhouse's resignation from the national committee was announced yesterday by Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) party chairman. Praising her for her direction of women's activities, the party chairman said that he accepted her decision with "regret."

In her new post, Mrs. Woodhouse will be a "visiting expert" for the Secretary of the Army with the Office of Military Government in Germany. Working with field groups under the Army's educational and cultural relations division, she will develop programs and instruct German women in their rights and responsibilities in a democratic society.

Mrs. Woodhouse has had the German teaching job in mind since she visited that country in 1945. She had discussed the need for such work with Mary Beard, famous historian, and other women from time to time.

The former Congresswoman from Connecticut has been prominent in party affairs since 1940 and for the past two years has held down the post as executive director of the National Committee's Women Division. She spoke before a women's forum in Long Island yesterday and will leave today for her New England home.

Just before departing from Washington she expressed a hope that she would finish her new duties in time to fight for "the uprogressive liberal program of President Truman and the Democratic Party in November."

Mrs. Edwards, long prominent in Democratic affairs, was formerly with the Chicago Tribune.

Well known in the educational as well as political circles, Mrs. Woodhouse taught economics at Connecticut College, Smith College, Teachers' College of Columbia plus the Universities of Texas and Iowa. In addition she was personnel director, Women's College, University of North Carolina. During World War II she was consultant to the National Roster of Scientific and Specialized Personnel of the War Manpower Commission. Another of her past jobs was senior economist in the Bureau of Home Economics, United States Department of Agriculture.

While in Congress Mrs. Woodhouse was secretary of an informal congressional committee for the protection of the consumer and was chosen the member of the Nation's lawmakers who had done most for the consumer. At present she is vice chairman of the National Association of Consumers and managing director, Institute of Women's Professional Relations.

Sen. Brewster Addresses GOP Women

Senator Owen Brewster of Maine addressed the supper meeting of the Evening Political Study Group, D. C. League of Republican Women, yesterday at the Washington Club.

He gave a brief resume of the Republican record in Congress over the past two years, asserting that the party platform was written in the legislative bodies.

Among Republican achievements during the 80th Congress, the Senator cited reduction of taxes in spite of presidential vetoes, balancing the budget "in spite of the opposition's ridicule of its possibility," and bipartisan cooperation for foreign policy.

Dr. Wambaugh Speaks of ERP

During the last few days democracy in Europe has rallied noticeably and now shows definite signs of becoming sufficiently strong to resist communism, Dr. Sarah Wambaugh said yesterday.

Dr. Wambaugh, world authority on international plebiscites, was guest speaker at the meeting of the Women's Action Committee for Lasting Peace given at the home of Mrs. Gifford Pinchot.

The new born strength of democratic forces in Europe, the speaker asserted, can be attributed almost entirely to the European Recovery Program.

Lack of organization in Europe has been invitation to leftist conquerors, she continued, but the ERP gives Europeans reason to unite.

Within the next few months—provided anti-Communist factions prove conclusively successfully in Italy—we will see a vast improvement in the status of European democracy, Dr. Wambaugh asserted.

The program yesterday also included a talk by Mrs. Lillian Mowrer, president of the organization, on the national convention of the WACLP held earlier this month in Washington.

Czech Diva Will Attend 'The Search' at Playhouse; Congress Paints for Show

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

CRIBBING FROM COE: A flock of shamrocks plucked from the "ould sod" will arrive by British Overseas Airways for tonight's Dupont Theater premiere of "Captain Boycott." Ireland's Minister and Mrs. Sean Nunan will be "bunched" because the British film is set in Erin.—Jarmila Novotna, glamorous Czech who combines Metropolitan Opera roles with movie acting, will waft to Washington for the opening at the Playhouse on April 27 of "The Search." A year ago, lured by Elsa Maxwell, Mme. Novotna, almost incredibly youthful and lovely, sang at the American Friends of France benefit ball. In "The Search," set in displaced persons camp in Central Europe, the Czech diva sheds theatrical trappings for reality.

Last summer, in Czechoslovakia, she was sent the script. It seemed an unlikely role at first, but growing interested, Mme. Novotna plunged in wholeheartedly, lived for brief spans in several DP camps.

Since then DP camps have loomed uncomfortably close to her personal life. Her properties, first appropriated by the Nazis, have been confiscated by Communists; her husband, Baron George Daubek, is still in Czechoslovakia. The late Jan Masaryk, incidentally, was her son's godfather.

SWIPING FROM THE ART DEPARTMENT: The Congressional Club Art Show is scheduled for Sunday, April 25, at the Congressional Club. Exhibitors are members of Congress, Cabinet, Supreme Court, Library of Congress, their wives and employes. The exhibit is chairmaned by Mrs. Frank Sundstrom, wife of the New Jersey Representative, and a crackerjack artist. Mrs. Estes Kefauver, whose husband's bailiwick is Tennessee, is vice chairman. Our talent runs to slapping paint on garden furniture so we are less interested in aesthetics than the artists' personal peculiarities.

Here is what we've culled: There is not a single artist in the Senate—wives, yes, Senators, no. The Library of Congress produces more artists per capita than House or Senate.

Arkansas Representative and Mrs. Brooks Hays paint as a pair. They go in for landscapes. Both work on the same canvas. Tennessee's Representative Percy Priest's daubs are jokes to everyone except himself. Last year he exhibited a self-portrait; since then he has married and this season has come up with a portrait of his bride. Mrs. Christian Herter has done some fine canvases. Her father-in-law, Albert Herter, was a famous artist. Mrs. Sundstrom comes by her talent by inheritance, her father was Will Johnstone, cartoonist on the old New York World. She sticks to watercolors, by the way. Mrs. Sheridan Downey, wife of the California Senator, not only paints but is organizing groups of congressional lady artists for country painting trips.

In Supreme Court circles Mrs. Harlan Stone is a watercolorist, Mrs. Hugo Black goes in for still life paintings, recently won a prize at the Corcoran Gallery; Mary Lous Rutledge, daughter of Associate Justice Wiley Rutledge, is first rate, paints modern style..

Representative Walt Horan, who hails from Washington State, is an expert wood carver, executes scenes, not figures. His daughter has done some clever pencil sketches of him at work. Mrs. Kefauver is a portratist.

OUR OWN ROMANCE DEPARTMENT: Jimmy Cromwell is marrying again and here is a tidbit about his former wife, Doris Duke. Doris had decided to buy a very grand house in Paris when her new husband was given a diplomatic post in Buenos Aires. The owner of house, very wealthy, too, said she would understand perfectly if the deal was called off. "Call it off!" exclaimed Doris, "where would I leave my trunks?"—What has happened to the marriage of Mrs. Eleanor de Bekessy and George Steele? Both went to Paris, were supposed to marry several weeks ago. Eleanor, a daughter of Mrs. Joseph Davies, has been married four times before to Preston Sturges, George Rand, Robert Gautier and De Bekessy, who is better known under his nom de plume, Hans Habe. George was married to Evelyn Fahnestock, then Helen Farrell.—Down Virginia way the impending divorce of the popular Jimmy Van Alens has upset their friends no end. Eleanor is a daughter of the Bill Langleys, Jimmy a son of the immensely wealthy Mrs. James Laurens of Newport, who recently surprised her friends by marrying Louis Brugiere. Jimmy, it is rumored, will soon remarry—to "Candy" Alig Vanderlip, lissome former wife of Kelvin Vanderlip, who works as editorial assistant to Whitelaw Reid, owner of the New York Herald Tribune.

Mary Haworth's Mail

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband and I have been happily married for 10 years and have two daughters, now 6 and 4 years of age.

We have never given them any reason to think we don't love them, yet Lisa, the older girl, is constantly accusing us of not loving her and whenever I take her to task pretty severely she says she hates me and threatens to leave home.

Since our children have learned to enjoy movies we nearly always take them with us when we go, if the fare is suitable for children; but the last two times it wasn't and we left them home with a girl, who later said they had been "pretty good," except she'd had to carry them back to bed several times.

The next morning, on questioning, they told me about it and they were worse than the girl had said. It seems she had to threaten them with a spanking, saying she had my permission if necessary, which finally settled them to sleep.

Mother Rules By Punishing

I SCOLDED them soundly for breaking their promise to be good and told them I would never again take them to a show, even if it were for children; and I did this thinking perhaps they felt if they were naughty with the girl we would always take them with us.

When I finished, Lisa said that I didn't love her, that I am "mean" to her, don't feed her, etc., and that she is going to leave home, a threat which worries me a bit, because an 11-year-old boy in our vicinity recently left home and his family hasn't found him yet.

Should I pass it over lightly or talk things over with her? She is sweet and can be good when she wants to, but her disposition is uneven and she finds it hard to forgive, even when we make the first overture.

Some of our friends tell me that their children have threatened to leave home occasionally and that the parents have even gone so far as to help them pack. Of course the children backed down, but probably because they had no place to go, and not from any change of heart. Can you help us? E. D.

Child Believes Herself Outcast

DEAR E. D.: You say you've never given Lisa any reason to think you don't love her, but obviously she's had experiences which cause her to feel rejected, for she is passionately reporting what she feels.

Reasoning capacity develops rather slowly in human growth, if indeed it develops at all. Some people go through life without ever attaining coherent use of that faculty, which lucidly exercised is a hallmark of maturity rather than an attribute of childhood. All too often, what people give out as "thought" is simply a verbalization of how they feel about this or that.

Lisa's charge that you don't feed her—which of course doesn't mean that you let her go hungry for lack of meals or food in the house—probably refers point blank to the origin of her childish sense of dire grievance against you.

The origin, I daresay, has to do with her emotional reaction to the shock-experience of seeing endless mother-care (centered on feeding) given baby sister, when Lisa, after baby's birth, was then assigned to feed herself.

Any adult would see this as a sensible arrangement—a due step upwards in Lisa's growth, also a time-saver for you,—but Lisa would be too young to fathom the "reasons" for change; and would only feel cast into outer darkness, as compared to baby who'd taken the spotlight with mother, previously her's.

Gesell's Books Aid to Parents

IT'S a pretty safe bet that this is where your relationship with Lisa got out of joint, with the net result that you've been applying baffled punitive displeasure to her baffled resentment—in a widening circle of mutual misunderstanding—ever since.

The baby sitter's charitable judgment of the children and rugged patience finally capped with mild threat to spank is an example you might profitably copy. Witness she judged them "pretty good" whereas you scored them as culprits deserving cruel punishment (by their standards) for the same instance of childish assertiveness.

For guidance, study the following books: "Infant and Child in the Culture of Today" and "The Child From Five to Ten," written by Dr. Arnold Gesell, director, Yale Clinic on Child Development, in collaboration with Frances L. Ilg, associate professor in the field of child development at Yale. Both are published by Harper & Brothers. M. H.

How to Clean Glazed Chintz

I have a wing chair upholstered in flowered glazed chintz which is quite badly soiled. Will you tell me the proper way to clean it? E. L.

You might be able to improve the appearance of this chair by shampooing the upholstery with soap suds. This method of cleaning may remove some of the glaze from the chintz and should be tested on an inconspicuous spot to determine if the fabric is color fast to soap and water before applying it to the entire piece. Dissolve one cup mild soap flakes in two cups of water and whip until a heavy froth is formed. Apply only the suds to the upholstery with a brush. Work in a circular motion, removing suds when area is clean and rinsing very thoroughly by wiping with a soft cloth wrung out of clean water. Continue in this manner until entire piece is shampooed. Set out of doors to dry thoroughly or, if this isn't possible, turn an electric fan onto the piece. If the material is not fast to soap and water, I would suggest you have it cleaned by a professional upholstery cleaner.

We moved into a new house about a year ago. It has hardwood oak floors and powder post beetles have been eating in several places in one room. Can you tell me a home method for getting rid of them? K. B. B.

The surest method for eradicating powder post beetles is to tear out the infested wood, wash the surrounding wood with kerosene and replace with sound wood. For a small infestation, the surface affected can be washed with kerosene. (Take every precaution against fire by working in a well-ventilated room away from open flames). Or, using an oil can or a medicine dropper, kerosene can be forced into each hole to kill the worms within, which if not killed will powder the inside wood and when they develop into beetles eat their way to the surface causing holes.

Which is correct, and why? "Things look differently at noon," or "Things look different at noon?" C. G. W.

"Things look different at noon" is correct, and here's the rule which applies, as taken from "Modern English," by Emerson and Bender (McMillan, 1945):

"After such verbs as feel, taste, smell, look, seem and turn, we should use an adjective if we wish to describe the subject and an adverb if we wish to describe the manner of the action expressed by the verb."

I have a pink feathered hat that is soiled and I would like to clean it for spring. Could you tell me the best way to clean it? S. G.

About the most you can do with safety to clean your hat at home would be to dust it with a dry cleaning powder, allow the powder to remain on the hat 30 minutes and brush or shake off. If this improves the appearance, the treatment can be repeated. If this doesn't clean it enough to make it wearable, I suggest you look in the yellow pages under "Hat Cleaners and Repairers" for a firm to do the job for you.

We are planning to move into our new home soon but the lawn and walks will not have been finished. When they are, I would like to have open house. Would that be proper? Also, would you tell me what refreshments should be served, what time of day should be chosen, how to invite (via telephone or mail) and any other little details concerning this type of entertaining, as I'm a little hazy on the subject. H. E. W.

It would be proper and very nice to invite your friends in when you are comfortably settled in your new home. Open houses usually take the form of an afternoon or early evening reception with hours designated on the invitation, such as 3 to 5 or 4 to 7 or any other afternoon time convenient to you.

At such a party, refreshments are usually arranged prettily on the dining room table. At this time of year with weather so variable, it is nice to plan both a hot and cold drink which is poured by close friends at either end of the table. To go with the drinks, have large plates of dainty sandwiches, tea cakes, mints and nuts. Use a lace or dainty cloth on the table and arrange a lovely, large floral centerpiece with lighted candles as a centerpiece. If your guest list is long, I would suggest you invite them by mail. Since you write from a rural address, perhaps a decorative and accurate map showing your guests how to drive to your home could be used as an invitation. If you or your husband are handy at such things, sketch the map on a sheet of paper, adding interesting little sketches as guide posts along the way. For the invitation just write at the bottom of the map,

Can you tell me how to block needlepoint? E. D.

Place the needlepoint, right side down, on a well-padded ironing board (A Turkish towel, with a smooth-surfaced cloth over it, makes a good padding.) Stretch and pull the needlepoint until all the sides are straight. Place a damp cloth over it and press with a moderately hot iron. Continue pressing until the pressing cloth is just barely dry. When all of the needlepoint has been pressed, hang where it can dry thoroughly without wrinkling.

I have a tall old-fashioned glass lamp on which I wish to use a rather heavy glass shade. My problem is how to secure the metal frame (which holds the shade) firmly to the glass bowl of the lamp. I have heard there is a new adhesive on the market which firmly secures metal on glass. Could you tell me where to buy it? E. G. M.

The adhesive to which you refer is probably the new black type which is sold in tubes for 25 cents in most dime, hardware and variety stores.

My problem is about a cheese board and a bread board which my husband made for me from what seems hard and well-seasoned gumwood. These boards have a very nice grain and are really pretty. How can we treat them before using to keep them looking nice. M. A. H.

If you wish, you could rub linseed oil into the side of the boards which does not come in contact with the food. Apply the oil to the raw wood, allow to stand several hours to absorb and rub well. This treatment should be repeated at intervals of three or four days until no more oil will be absorbed, giving it vigorous rubbings frequently. Or, instead of the oil, you could apply several thin coats of paste wax, polishing well after each coat is thoroughly dry. The food side of the board should be scrubbed clean after each use, being careful to dry very thoroughly to avoid warping. The boards should be hung where they will stay dry and clean.

One on the Aisle—

Tony's Warbling Peps Up 'Casbah'

By Richard L. Coe

KEITH'S "CASBAH" is rather like playing charades at Doris Duke's.

Of course I haven't played charades at Doris Duke's, but I'm quite sure that if I did, I'd have that dreamily unreal feeling that seeped into me at Keith's yesterday afternoon.

Everyone in "Casbah" is dressed up as something other than what he is. They're mostly all making believe they're French or Arab. The heroine—I suppose that's what she is—halts in her love making to dream of Paris. "We could," she says, "go to the Latin Quarter."

So you can see she knows her Paris, all right, all right. She's a sophisticated type, she is, dripping handsomely set ice and carrying the skins of roughly 485 wee rabbits on her ivory shoulders.

The man she's smooching with is that Mae West of the male sex, Tony Martin. Tony shuffles around like a live bomb and every woman in Algiers is just aching to light the fuse. But Tony's been living in the Casbah for quite a spell now and his only comfort is in singing how "For Every Man There's a Woman."

As in all good fiction, the woman for Tony is the very one he can't have. She is free to flit outside the Casbah, which she has been doing to opulent profit. She is visiting Algiers on the yacht of her fiance a morose gentleman who picked her up in a Paris department store and has put some fancy slip covers on her already superb upholstery. But in Tony this creature has found that All That Doesn't Really Matter and If The World Will Only Let Them Alone They Will Settle Down.

Boyer's Old Role

No doubt, the outline of this spectacle is familiar to you. You knew it once as a stirring French film with Jean Gabin, called "Pepe le Moko." A few years later it cropped up as "Algiers," wherein Charles Boyer found Hedy Lamarr and set off a flood of imitations which hasn't subsided yet.

You can't say they've spared any pains (unless they're your own) in recreating Boyer's famed Casbah. The stony thoroughfares over which pass slippered feet and the quartier's plumbing are positively authentic down to the ultimate nick, and there are dancing girls directed by the celebrated anthropologist, Katherine Dunham. The characters have lovely realistic names like Omar, Inez, Claude, Odette, Ahmed and Roland, pronounced RO-lan.

Tony's Songs

The divertissement is punctuated from time to time with a song from Tony, whose rich, throbbing tones have been known to bring out the riot squads in Radio City. Tony sings that song about everyone having someone, "It Was Written in the Stars," "What's Good About Goodby?" and "Hooray for Love." The guy's definitely good at this sort of thing and would be a handy party to have around when the charadin' gets dull.

Hedy's old role is played by a Swedish newcomer, Marta Toren. Miss Toren, alas, does not sing, and please don't tell me Hedy didn't either. That sterling muse of Universal, Yvonne De Carlo, sways about in her artless way as Inez, the girl who knows Tony must stay in the Casbah or become a prisoner of the gendarmes, a fancy term we charade folk use for the cops.

Well, I can't say I didn't live yesterday afternoon. I still am not certain what sort of parties Doris Duke gives, but the only thing I missed at Keith's were a few platters of keb-bab washed down with cafe arabe.

Magann.

"CARMEN," as you may have read in Paul Hume's Sunday page, is the first venture of Ethyl Manning's Columbia Light Opera Company into the sphere often called "grand." . . . None other than Coe Glade (no relationship to this department) will be singing the Bizet heroine Thursday and Friday nights at Roosevelt Auditorium . . . Miss Glade has sung the role all over the globe as well as with visiting companies here . . . Don Jose will be another guest, Ernest Lawrence . . . Miss Manning's local singers in the supporting roles include Maria de la Hull, Katherine Emery, Amilia Shorda, Mary Vagnoni, Robert Royce, Rod Clay, Ralph Devlin and Jack Baum . . .

"CASBAH." Universal release produced by Nat C. Goldstone, with Erik Charell as assistant producer. Screen play by L. Bush-Fekete and Arnold Manoff from the novel, "Pepe le Moko," by Detective Ashelbe. Songs by Harold Arlen and Leo Robin. Musical direction by Walter Scharf. Directed by John Berry. At Keith's.

Tuck Continues Work On Reorganization Plan

Richmond, Va., April 20 (AP).—Governor Tuck and key State officials continued work today on the program for reorganization of the State government.

No official statements were forthcoming after yesterday's session attended by Governor Tuck, Budget Director J. H. Bradford, State Auditor J. Gordon Bennett, former United States Senator Thomas G. Burch and Charles Duke, registrar of the College of William and Mary. Burch served as chairman, and Duke as a member, of a special commission which made the reorganization study.

It was disclosed, however, that the Governor is on the lookout for an experienced administrator, familiar with the State government, who could look after the program for the next couple of years. The new system will telescope Virginia's government from 77 agencies to 30, and much internal reorganization also is expected within the individual departments. The program becomes effective July 1.

Jewish Charities Willed Bulk of $75,000 Estate

Three Jewish charitable organizations will receive most of a $75,000 estate left by the late Mrs. Mary Sterling, of Takoma Park.

In approving a petition for probate of her will, Montgomery Orphans' Court officially yesterday listed the organizations as the Youth Aliyah Fund of Hadassah, Women's Zionist Organization of America, Inc., the Jewish National Fund of America, Inc., and the Washington Colony in the Holy Land, Inc.

In her will, Mrs. Sterling, who died March 23, stipulated that if any heirs contest the bequest, their legacies shall be revoked and added to the funds left to the three organizations. Heirs listed were three sons: Alexander, who will receive $5000; George, $3000, and Albert, $100.

Named executors were a son, George Sterling, and Harry S. Klavan, Rabbi Isadore Breslau and Rabbi Zemach Green.

Md. Fisheries Patrol to Get More Craft

Annapolis, Md., April 20 (AP).—The State Board of Public Works told the Tidewater Fisheries Commission today to go ahead with plans for equipping its patrol fleet with from 8 to 10 more craft.

The board told Director David H. Wallace to have specifications completed and seek bids. Authority for actual purchase of craft must come from the board, after estimates are in.

In other actions the board approved:

Use of a $22,00 bond issue allotment for providing a barn and storage facilities at Springfield State Hospital, plus $10,995 for other facilities.

Transfer of $9000 of surplus materials from the former Navy base at Solomons to College Park for a new NYA building.

Rejected bids for a new president's home at Princess Anne College and authorized the Department of Public Improvements to design one to cost up to $30,000;

Awarded contracts totaling $48,210 for roads and grading, sewers and roadway lighting at Rosewood Training School;

Directed James G. Rennie, chief of the Budget Bureau, to determine where funds could be drawn for an estimated $25,000 president's home at Bowie State Teachers College;

Okayed an hourly pay increase from 47.5 cents to 50 cents for prison labor on road projects;

Allotted $14,172 for repairs and services at the Montrose School for Girls; and Told Rennie to confer with the War Assets Administration on a proposal to make the Department of Budget and Procurement the central agency for disposing of war surplus property to State and local agencies and nonprofit institutions.

On the written recommendation of Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, the board authorized starting pay increase for St. Mary's Female Seminary teachers to $2800 with B. A. degrees and $3300 with M. A. degrees. The maximum additional cost would be $10,000 next year, Rennie said.

Comptroller James J. Lacy was authorized to speak with officials of St. Mary's Industrial School in Baltimore about continuing it in operation.

Seaman Fined $125 For Train Assault

Baltimore, April 20 (AP).—Robert Haley, 33-year-old Baltimore seaman, was fined $125 and costs on assault and disorderly conduct charges today after being convicted of an attack on a Washington woman aboard a train en route from Boston to Washington.

A Pennsylvania Railroad policeman arrested Haley when the train arrived here.

Mrs. M. E. Kelley complained to the conductor that Haley was trying to force his attentions on her daughter, Mrs. Francis Myers, of 2118 P st. nw., Washington.

She said she left her daughter for a few moments and when she returned noticed a red welt on the daughter's face. She said Mrs. Myers related that Haley struck her.

Haley apologized to both women in court.

Farm Work Advised At Mental Hospitals

Annapolis, April 20 (AP).—State Engineer John B. Funk proposed today that farm operations be expanded at Maryland mental institutions.

His recommendation was contained in a lengthy report to the Board of Public Works. In it he noted that Dr. George H. Preston, commissioner of mental hygiene, had questioned the value of extensive farm work at the institutions. A study of the program was conducted by Funk.

Stolen Rug With Curse Mysteriously Returned

Huntington, W. Va., April 20 (AP).—A thief who took an oriental rug with a curse woven into it was apparently either superstitious—or else has had enough of the curse.

The rug, made 134 years ago in Afghanistan, was stolen from a department store here in February. At that time the owner warned that its Arabic lettering read: "I am Haji. Whoever has me unauthorized shall have tragedy."

Yesterday the rug was mysteriously returned. It was found thrust under a carpet display in the store.

For That Sluggish, Down-and-Out Feeling

Remember the time when you could eat like a horse, bubbled-over with energy, felt happy as a lark? Was it not because you liked to eat—didn't know what indigestion was, felt strong as an ox? As age advances the "old stomach and the ever-changing blood" need help. Now you may again release vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that S.S.S. Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the S.S.S. tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, S.S.S. Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juices when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on S.S.S. Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh, fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. S.S.S. Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Bethesdan's Bequest Held Not Taxable

A $150,000 bequest to the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children by a former Bethesda, Md., physician is not subject to a $9000 Maryland inheritance tax, Montgomery County Circuit Court ruled yesterday.

The ruling was sought by Walter C. Clarke, Montgomery County register of wills. The bequest was left by the late Dr. Edward L. Morrison, vice president of Doctors Hospital, who died August 14, 1945.

Clarke, in his suit, contended Maryland law exempts charitable institutions from inheritance levies only if all or a substantial part of their activities are conducted in the State.

Attorney Jo V. Morgan, who represented the Shriners, maintained the organization's hospital in Philadelphia cares for children from both Maryland and the District of Columbia.

The ruling was a 2-1 decision, with Judges Charles W. Woodward and Patrick Schnauffer ruling for the Shriners and Judge Stedman Prescott dissenting.

Arlington Man Urges GOP Primaries

Arlington Treasurer John Locke Green yesterday called for a new State Republican Convention to amend party rules to provide for State-wide Republican primaries this August.

His request was contained in a letter to Robert H. Woods, State Republican chairman and party candidate for the U. S. Senate.

In an earlier letter, Green, a county Republican leader, charged Virginia Republicans had no say in Woods' nomination April 10 in the party's State convention at Roanoke. The State chairman replied that he had always "fought for the right of the majority to prevail."

Green, the only Republican officeholder in Arlington County, urged Woods to call a second convention on the primary issue to give Republicans "the right to go to the polls and cast a ballot for their choice."

The recent Eighth District Republican convention at Culpeper voted after a bitter floor fight to hold District-wide primaries next August, and three northern Virginia GOP groups—Arlington, Alexandria and Fairfax County—have pressed strongly for spread of the primary system throughout the State.

Wallace Opposes Communism Here

New York, April 20 (U.P.).—Henry A. Wallace said yesterday he did not want communism in the United States and rejected the support of those who believe in the overthrow of the United States Government by force.

Wallace and his third-party running mate, Senator Glen H. Taylor (D., Idaho), spoke at a $100-a-plate dinner which launched a fund-raising drive to put the new party on the ballot in all 48 States.

"The leaders of the new party do not want communism in the United States, but we know that the great menace to American freedom . . . is a home-grown fascism, more imminent and infinitely more vicious than communism."

Allegany Tax Rate Reduced 48 Cents

Cumberland, Md., April 20 (AP).—The county tax rate was fixed at $1.67, a reduction of 5 cents, by the Allegany County board of commissioners today.

The decrease is in reality a drop of 48 cents as the levy is for 15-month period ending June 30, 1949, instead of the usual 12 months.

The commissioners said the reduction was possible because of increased State revenue, added money from local industries due to the elimination of exemptions, and savings.

The largest appropriation was $997,161 for public schools, while $316,291 was levied for debt service.

Broken Water Main Threatens Highway

A broken water main last night threatened to flood Mayhew rd. near the Military hwy., between Bolling and Andrews Fields.

Rushed to the scene to assist repair crews were members of Prince Georges County police from Marlboro, the Morningside Fire Department and troops from Andrews Field.

Elementary School Principals to Meet

Baltimore, April 20 (AP).—The department of elementary school principals of the Maryland State Teachers' Association will hold a luncheon meeting at the Stafford Hotel here Saturday, it was announced today.

Elementary principals from Maryland are invited. Elementary education leaders will discuss "The Changing Responsibilities of the Elementary School Principal."

New York (U.P.).—Delegates from 60 nations have been invited to exchange information about infantile paralysis at a poliomyelitis conference to be held here July 12-17. First meeting of its kind, the conference is sponsored by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Portal-to-Portal

Clinton, N. Y. (U.P.).—Cold weather and snow are no barrier to friendly visits between two families living in the Hamilton College veterans' housing project. Mrs. Det Granata of Mount Vernon, visits Mrs. Bill Kellerhals, New York, by crawling through a hole cut in the wall.

Jury Frees Virginian of Vice Charge

Baltimore, April 20 (AP).—A Federal Court jury found Charles Junior Hudson, 23-year-old Lynchburg, Va., resident, innocent today on a charge of transporting a young woman from Virginia to Hagerstown, Md., for purposes of prostitution.

Hudson was one of 10 persons arrested a few months ago by the FBI in connection with what the agency described as a white slave ring centering in Hagerstown. The first three brought to trial were convicted and sentenced to prison terms ranging up to 18 months.

Others will be tried soon.

Hudson had been accused of transporting his sister-in-law to Hagerstown last October.

Hudson contended he went to the Maryland city in an effort to induce his wife to leave a house of prostitution and he took his sister-in-law along to aid him.

Judge William C. Coleman presided.

Fuel Oil Users Asked to Fill Up For Next Winter

Fuel oil users yesterday were urged to stock up now for possible shortages next winter.

The Commissioners' Fuel Oil Coordinating Committee also recommended that oil users install "an additional fuel oil tank where space and funds are available."

These steps by citizens "will materially increase" the city's storage capacity, the committee pointed out.

The recommendations were contained in the final report of the committee, whose operations were concluded yesterday by the Commissioners.

More than 3,900,000 gallons of fuel oil and 77,000 gallons of kerosene were approved by the committee for delivery during last winter's fuel oil crisis, the report said.

Motion Filed Seeking New Trial for Rakes

Richmond, Va., April 20 (AP).—The Fourth Federal Circuit Court of Appeals will hear a motion at its June term in Asheville, N. C., asking that the sentence of Hugh N. Rakes, Leesburg, to three years in prison, be remanded to the Federal District Court here.

It was filed yesterday with the Appellate Court in an attempt to get the District Court to set aside the verdict and grant a new trial.

Rakes was found guilty of aiding in the misapplication of $500,000 fro mthe Farmers and Merchants Bank of Fredericksburg.

On the Town

RAIN, Rane reign, rein . . . Confusing, to say the least, is the situation that popped up when Victoria Rane was booked into the Balalaika . . . Her agent in New York sent down a press release with her name spelled Victory Rain (the least he could do for that 10 per cent would be to spell the name correctly) and the ads were placed in the paper with that spelling. Later the club sent out another release with her name spelled Victoria Rain. Still later Victoria arrived in town amid thunderclouds and loudly announced that her name was V-I-C-T-O-R-I-A R-A-N-E and to please let everyone know it. As for us, we can't say we blame her because with the draft and all we wouldn't want someone else going in our place just because of a little mix-up in spelling!

Vanya
At Mayflower Lounge

A constant source of wonder to customers in the Mayflower Lounge has been how Vanya, of the team of Pierre d'Angelo and Vanya, manages to keep those floppy hats on while she's going through the dance routines with her partner. We're pretty certain mere hatpins could never do the job . . . Another note of interest on this team is that when they request Begin the Beguine from Dick Barlow, the orchestra leader, they always ask for "the sexy version."

Club Kavakos is rocking to the music of Buddy Mareno and his orchestra . . . Buddy, who sings as well as leads his orchestra, was the featured vocalist with Harry James, Dick Jurgens and a number of the bigger bands in the country for some time before organizing his own outfit. Buddy won favor with the bobby soxers over the country and they even went so far as to form a fan club for him, which always helps when the booking agent goes into a club. . . . He'll be at the club through Friday.

The Pall Rall Room took an entertainment turn for the better when it engaged Hal Yates to do a two-week turn . . . To date the talent there has been a little too much on the highbrow side for the crowd. Hal's routines are a little risque but not too much so. You might call them slightly suggestive . . . He puts them over with a smile and a good bit of personality. Beford Hal joined us here. He played for three years in the Barnum Hotel in Bridgeport, Conn. . . . Julian and his orchestra are doing the dance music in the room while they double at luncheon and on Sundays in the Statler. Keeps the boys hopping.

A LITTLE prayer to whoever looks over night club talent. Please keep the solo novelty acts away from playing classical music when they aren't able to handle it competently.

With the news popping as hot and heavy as it has been lately Don Makin, who incorporates the headlines into his songs, has been having no trouble finding new material . . . The customers in the Anchor Room seem to like him.

The Hamilton has completely redecorated its new Chantilly Room which is said to have run them $50,000. It's available for private parties and such.

Ray Marshall is back with the Ko-Ko-Nuts again in the Merry-Land Club. He had a lengthy tussle with an illness but looks to be in wonderful shape now. It means the boys can cut loose with the routines that have held them over at the club for such a long time . . . Owner Olvia Davis is in New York looking over talent, which means that Hal Thornton will be with us for a few more weeks.

Flicker flashbacks: When the Duke of Windsor was visiting this country some time ago Meyer Davis, the Greenbrier orchestra leader, was furnishing dance music for a party in the duke's honor. Meyer and the duke got into a discussion of jazz, which the duke is very fond of. Naturally Meyer wanted to know why royalty would be interested in anything as earthy as jazz. The duke's reply was, "Meyer, the real truth is that soft music sounds so obsequious—and I've had too much of that business in this life of mine."

Laurel Elects M. L. Harrison As Mayor

Merrill L. Harrison, for 12 years city clerk of Laurel, Md., has been elected for a two-year term.

Unopposed for the post vacated by Mayor John H. Fetty, he received 749 votes in the election, held Monday. Voters also approved, by 591-122, a $25,000 bond issue for a new fire engine and equipment, and authorized special licensing for Sunday bowling alley operations.

Five councilmen were elected, including:

Councilmen-at-large (two), Norris C. Beall, 587, incumbent and chief of the fire department, and Maynard L. Ward, 529. Thomas B. Israel, former councilman, was defeated, polling 366 votes.

First Ward (one), James B. Turney, 682, unopposed incumbent.

Second Ward (one), J. Gilbert White, 464, incumbent, over George S. Barkman, 347.

Third Ward (one), W. LeRoy Armstrong, 538, incumbent, over Charles H. Lilley, 255.

Retiring Council President Bert Ayton was not a candidate for reelection as a councilman-at-large.

Suit Would Force School Loan Approval

Richmond, Va., April 20(AP).—Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond, jr., today asked the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals for a writ of mandamus to compel approval of certain school construction loans.

The proceeding, instituted the day after Almond took office, is a friendly one against the State comptroller and the State treasurer.

It was broukht to remove any doubt whcih might hang over the bonds of Virginia counties issued under a new system of financing local school construction.

State Comptroller Henry G. Gilmer and State Treasurer Jesse W. Dillon, in doubt about the constitutionality of the new plan, asked that the mandamus proceeding be brought against them. The high court is expected to appoint counsel to defend the two State officers in the litigatoin.

May Be Heard in June Term

Indications today were that the briefs would be filed by the attorney general and by the two officers in time for the Supreme Court to hear the dispute early in its June term. It was expected that both sides would ask a prompt opinion from the court so that construction could be started under some of the loans if the procedure meets the Supreme Court's apl proval.

Before Almond was sworn in yesterday, Assistant Attorney General Walter E. Rogers had approved the plan as constitutional.

Until recently, the State Literary Fund has had sufficient money. Loans have been made from the literary fund at 2 per cent. Difficulties arose when so many counties wanted to borrow money that the fund's reserves were committed almost in full.

Retirement Fund Investments

In 1946, foreseeing this situation, the General Assembly passed a law permitting the board of trustees of the Virginia retirement system to invest its trust funds in bonds of local school districts held in the literary fund as evidence of loans by the fund. The trustees decided to invest up to five million dollars in this fashion, and commitments since have been approved for nearly this full amount.

Loans out of the literary fund would carry 3 per cent interest, however, if they carried the provision that bonds issued thereunder would be assigned to the retirement system.

No vouchers actually have been issued for the retirement system to purchase any such 3 per cent bonds from the literary fund, but at least one Virginia county was ready to ask for the cash to pay for a new school building.

New Pulaski County Schools Assured

Pulaski, Va., April 20 (AP).—Construction of new elementary school buildings for North Pulaski and Fairland was assured today.

Pulaski County supervisors approved a loan of up to $135,000 for the projects last night, and the county school board thereupon authorized Superintendent Frank J. Critzer to notify Drinkle, Trinkle & Obyns, Dublin contractors, of acceptance of the firm's low bid of $309,500.

One contingency lay ahead for county taxpayers. If the county is not able to get its promised State literary fund loan because of the legal entanglements in which it has become involved in Richmond, an increase of 25 cents per $10 in the county tax rate will be invoked in 1949.

Low Bid of 13 Million For Buggs Island Dam

Norfolk, Va., April 20 (AP).—Low bid of $13,363,275 for construction of the Buggs Island Dam was submitted by a combination of three companies, Col. G. T. Derby, district Army engineer, announced today.

The combination is composed of J. A. Jones Construction Co., Charlotte, N. C.; Charles H. Tompkins Co., Washington, D. C., and Wright Contracting Co., Columbus, Ga.

Three bids were received for construction of the dam, which will be one the Roanoke River, partly in Mecklenburg County, Va., and partly in Vance County, N. C.

W. B. Eley Sworn In

Norfolk, Va., April 20 (AP).—William B. Eley, 26, law graduate of the University of Virginia, today was sworn in as Assistant United States Attorney by Federal Judge Albert V. Bryan.

Washington Fans Open Barrage On Slow-Starting Nats

W. M. O'C. took one look at the location of his seat at the opening game and moaned:

"For the Redskins my seats are behind home plate and for the Nats I find myself on the 50-yard line."

Perry Walders of 3524 B st. se. started the baseball puns after the first half of the first inning of the opener. As the Yanks got their seventh run he muttered:

"I don't think I'll go to any more games this year. A fellow could be charged with contributing to the delinquency of minor leaguers."

Keep Kuhel, Perry—the season is just starting, and we're already even with the Yanks.

PERSONAL NOTES

Clark Griffith, Griffith Stadium: Permit me to suggest that you stop selling tickets for Seat 10, Row 19, Section N of the upper grandstand. There ain't any such animal.

AGRICULTURE'S LEAK

I note that the Secretary of Agriculture has signed a complaint against J. M. Leak of Arab, Ala., charging that gentleman with violation of the Commodity Exchange Act.

Is this the Leak which has been causing the Agriculture Department so much concern lately?

TREASURER'S REPORT

"I am inclosing some streetcar tokens for Children's Hospital," writes a donor who wishes to remain anonymous.

"I lost my only boy to heart disease, and I'd like to help some kid to a better break than that."

A happier story comes from Mrs. E. A. Donovan of 606 S. 18th st., Arlington, Va., who accompanies her donation with:

"Last year, our infant son was operated on twice at Children's Hospital. Today he is a happy, robust toddler—for which we thank Providence, and inclose this remembrance."

Ellen, Anne and Bucky Cording of 103 N. George Mason dr., Arlington, Va., may have been just a mite reluctant to give up their tokens, but Mama writes:

"Please give these to the hospital before my 2-year-old twins swallow them."

Two 9-year-old members of Cub Scout Pack 119 send along $1.25 earned by selling pincushions. My thanks to Cubs Michael Altman of 2733 S. Veitch st., and Thomas Huseby of 2823 S. Glebe rd., both of Arlington, Va.

Additional contributions have been received from: Mrs. C. L. Mitchell, 1340 Jefferson st. nw.; 6-year-old Karen Sullivan, 2311 N. Custis rd., Arlington, Va.; "A University of Maryland student" (war stamps); the folks at 10 W. Linden st., Alexandria, Va.; the gang at Greenway Delicatessen; and 7 cents in cash from a very young reader who printed me a swell letter but forgot to sign his name.

CHALLENGE

J. J. B. Burroughs of 321 Woodland rd. has a pet snail named Philomen which has been undergoing speed trials recently.

The other day Philomen clicked off 12 inches in 5 minutes flat (breezing, track fast) and District Liner Burroughs is ready to challenge the world.

MISCELLANY

The sweet young thing in front of us at the baseball opener asked her companion, "Is it cricket to let a pitcher stay out there when he's getting such a drubbing?" Her companion muttered, "No, dear, and it's hardly baseball, either." . . . Our item about the chance meeting of District Liners Blankenship and Twark, who had been in the same Akron stenotype class 18 years before, brings a surprising echo. Mrs. Ruth I. Smith of 2517 K st. nw. attended the same business school at the same time. (Wonder if there's anybody left in Akron, or have they all moved to Washington?) . . . Mr. and Mrs. William Kiker, jr., of 310 Raleigh st. se., have a message for the two young men who were so helpful when the Kikers' son fell from their car on Columbia pike. They say: "Thanks a million; we were too excited to get your names or acknowledge your help at the time. Fortunately, the boy escaped serious injury" . . . Joe Basso of 7414 Georgia ave. nw. (Randolph 2681) needs help in locating Business and Roosevelt High graduates who would like to attend the April 30 alumni reunion (6:30 p. m., Roosevelt High School, $1.75). Joe has been spending so much time hunting through the phone book for familiar names he's afraid his wife will wind up a "telephone widow."

NEW YORK.—Martha Raye, now in London, telephoned the Harem night club one night and talked to manager Nat Harris for 31 minutes. "Hey, this call's costing you a lot of money," Harris interrupted. Miss Raye told him: "For this I don't pay money, I pay pounds" . . . Jesse Royce Landis, the actress, is at Fifth Ave. Hospital recuperating from a gallstone operation. When she came out of the ether the surgeon showed her the stones. "Oh, dear," said Miss Landis, "if I only were an oyster they'd all be pearls," and went back to sleep.

On the last crossing of the Queen Mary, Henry Ford II was introduced to Eric Crosby, head of the Kent of London brush firm. Crosby showed him a hair brush valued at $750 . . . $750 for a hair brush?" Ford gasped. "Why so much?" . . . "There are only six brushes of this type in the whole world," said Crosby. "How much would a Ford car cost if there were only six in the whole world?"

"LSMFD" buttons are being worn at all the law schools where "Justice Bill Douglas for President" clubs have been organized. The initials represent "Law School Men For Douglas" . . . The Penguin edition of Erskine Caldwell's "God's Little Acre" has sold four million copies. Caldwell is coming to New York for a four-day celebration of this record . . . When Ed Weeks of Atlantic Monthly addressed the Peabody Award winners, he said that radio has passed its adolescent stage, but still retains the adolescent habit of repetition. When Elmer Davis stepped up to collect his award, the radio commentator said: "The publishing business isn't guilty of the adolescent habits, because it is not an adolescent business. It's reached maturity. We might even say it's gone beyond that stage—and borders on senility."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Forrestal Outfoxed by Vinson

By Drew Pearson

No legislative battle in recent years has witnessed so much backstage wirepulling and so much crimson on one Cabinet member's face as the row over whether the United States should be defended by 70 air groups.

Rep. Vinson

Ironically the man who finally engineered the overwhelming 343-to-3 House vote for a big Air Force was the Navy's best friend in Congress—Hard-as-nails Representative Carl Vinson of Georgia.

The veteran Democrat not only browbeat the measure through the House, but outfoxed Secretary of Defense Jim Forrestal every step of the way. Finally, Vinson even performed the miracle of winning Penny-pinching John Taber, the chairman of the Appropriations Committe, over to a 70-group Air Force.

Here is the amazing, behind-the-scenes story:

For years, as chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committe, Vinson has gone down the line for the Navy. He was their best friend in Congress. But three weeks ago Vinson deserted the Navy, insisted upon hearing the Air Force's story simultaneously with arguments for the draft and universal training.

Afterward, Georgia Democrat Vinson huddled with Texas Democrat Lyndon Johnson, another Navy man now an air advocate, and the two scrawled a resolution on the back of an office meme, calling for a 70-group Air Force. Next day they hammered this resolution through the Armed Services Committee by a 23-to-0 vote.

Muzzling Symington

However, when Secretary for Air Stuart Symington appeared before the committee, Chairman Walter Andrews, New York Republican, warned him not to mention 70 groups. He must only testify regarding the draft and UMT, Andrews instructed. Andrews was elected to Congress by the people of Buffalo, N. Y., next door to the congressional district of Symington's father-in-law, GOP Jim Wadsworth of Geneseo, N. Y. Nevertheless, Andrews did not want Symington to talk.

"Wait a minute," snorted Vinson. "We don't want any censorship."

The Secretary for Air, he claimed, had a right to say what he wished. Finally Andrews gave in. As a result, Symington was able to deliver his sensational warning that Russia is building planes 12 times faster than the USA.

This enraged Symington's boss, Secretary of Defense Forrestal. Actually Forrestal had taken sides with the admirals and did his best to sabotage Symington's testimony.

First he sent an appeal to Vinson, urging him to come over to his office in the Pentagon Building at once. They had been close allies in fighting for a powerful, two-ocean Navy, and Forrestal hoped to appeal to Vinson's old Navy loyalty.

But the leathery Georgian was in no mood to back down. He went to see Forrestal, but he brought along two close friends—Congressman Lyndon Johnson and Paul Kilday, both Texas Democrats. Johnson had served in the Navy during the war and helped to straighten out Army-Navy rivalries.

Forrestal was cordial but insistent. Referring to the Congressmen as "air seamen," he complained that they had gone back on him, urged that they delay their proposal for a 70-group Air Force until he got a report from the joint chiefs of staff.

"We have been getting reports on this for three years," snapped Vinson. He reminded Forrestal that 18 months ago, General Eisenhower had testified that the Air Force should not be allowed to fall below 70 groups.

"Eisenhower," said Vinson bluntly, "is enough Chief of Staff for me."

Soft-Soaping Taber

After failing with Vinson, Forrestal next tried to soft-soap nickel-nursing Appropriations Chairman Taber, who usually can't see beyond a dollar sign. Forrestal's arithmetic easily convinced Taber that 70 air groups would cost money, and he promptly started to prune down the air force appropriations bill. The 922 million dollars necessary for the 70-group program was omitted.

Scarcely had Taber reported the bill out of committee, however, than Vinson called in Johnson and Kilday.

"Forrestal has pulled the rug out from under the Air Force," he announced. "Now we'll have to pull the rug out from under Forrestal. We've got the votes, but Forrestal has Taber. All we have to do is get Taber."

That same afternoon Vinson buttonholed Taber. If Taber would support a 70-group Air Force, Vinson said that he would back an economy measure to trim the procurement costs by 100 million dollars. This could be done by reinvoking the wartime clause that gave the Air Force authority to renegotiate profits. In other words, if a manufacturer was able to produce a cheaper plane than estimated, the Air Force could reexamine the contract and cut excess profits.

Taber called in Symington, asked whether he could get along on 822 million dollars for 70 groups. The youthful Air Secretary, however, said that 922 million dollars was the rock-bottom figure. Next morning Vinson himself called Symington, described the plan to renegotiate profits. Symington then agreed to do his utmost to keep within the 822-million-dollar figure.

So an amendment was offered, raising the plane procurement fund by 822 million dollars for a 70-group Air Force.

My humble best

I often wish that I had kept . . . The path that beckoned me . . . , Because I know it would have meant . . . A greater victory . . . I would not have the worldly things . . . That now I call my own . . . And possibly I would have been . . . Forgotten and alone . . . But I would not be worrying . . . About a cloud of gray . . . And I would not have had the sins . . . That weigh my soul today . . . And yet there are accomplishments . . . Of which my heart is proud . . . And there are even praises that . . . The people say out loud . . . And while I might have done much more . . . To gain eternal fame . . . At least I have the comfort of . . . A good and worthy name.
